The "grafter," which we incidently read about in some notes of one of your other correspondents, has been more than noticeably at work on this occasion. His method here is unique; he visits the different florists around town, inquires about the prices, asks for a card, and informs them that he is looking up prices for some societies, and if he finds the florist easy he incidentally asks for a slight commission if he should be fortunate enough to receive an order. This has been carried on on a small scale for some time until now we find that there are a few who are in a position to pick up nearly all the Government work, and they are following this plan to their own advantage. It nearly always so happens that the man who has the least hold on the design trade is willing to give the best commission, and consequently gets the big pull on these orders. We regret that our Government officials are allowed to be duped in this way, and that the orders are not placed direct with the florists. It only needs the florist to shut down on this kind of business, and those who are solicited would recognize that these grafters are agents of one or two crepe chasers instead of representing the best florists in the city, as they now pretend to be.

Wm. Fendley, of Brampton, who has made quite a reputation this winter for himself with his violets, is now sending in some very fine carnations, especially some Glacier.

Thos. A. Plumb, who started about a year ago on Yonge street, has, through his courtesy and good management, so increased his retail trade, that he has found it necessary to move to larger quarters, and has moved across the street to a larger and more commodious store, and we expect to hear of him controlling the north-end business.

Easter Trade.

Easter has come and gone and now we have but to talk about what happened. This Easter was a great Easter, the greatest we have ever had, without a doubt. Every one to whom I have spoken says that there was an increase over last year's sales, but how much they are unable to state at present. The wholesale shipping trade was by far the heaviest ever known in this city, and the home trade was in proportion. One very satisfactory state was that the commission men sold out almost slick and clean, thus insuring good returns to the growers.

As was expected, carnations were very scarce, but roses were in fine shape and the supply was just about enough to give every one all they could use. The stock, too, as a rule, was nice and fresh, and there was very little evidence of pickling.

Bulbous stock was equal to the demand and sold well, there being very little left. The demand for pot plants was never better, the public seeming to take to them more this year than ever before.

The usual post-holiday lull in business failed to make its appearance this year and trade is all that could be desired. Prices are holding up remarkably well and the stock is being sold out rapidly. Carnations are still scarce, and although the growers say that there are thousands of buds in sight, yet the weather has been so dark and gloomy as a rule that they just stand and but few open. Roses are just about equal to the demand, and the best of them are of fine quality. Bulbous stock has about played out. There is still a fair supply of lilies and they sell well. Callas also are in demand. Smilax is still scarce. Asparagus is in better supply.

Notes.

The new city greenhouses in Eden Park, built especially for display purposes, were opened to the public on Easter Sunday. There was a fine display of a great many varieties of blooming and foliage plants. The greenhouses are models of their kind, built with the new cement construction.

Saturday was the meeting night of the florists' club, but as there was not a quorum present it had to be called off.

Ben George is receiving congratulations. It's a boy, and is getting along nicely.

I have just learned, and from absolute authority, that our old and well-known friend Dick Witterstaetter is going to discontinue paddling through life alone, and on May 1st or thereabouts will take unto himself a wife. As yet I have been unable to ascertain the name of the fortunate young lady, but for her benefit I am obliged to say that without doubt her charms must be great to have been able to lure Dick from single blessedness. And now I want to offer my congratulations to Dick and his bride to be, and wish them many, many years of happiness and prosperity.

Shipping trade has been unusually good and there is an active out-of-town demand for all kinds of stock.

The Market.

Easter has been here and has gone under the most favorable weather imaginable. I have never seen such quantities of flowers on hand. Business which did not promise well during the first part of the week opened up very nicely on Friday morning, and came with a rush on Saturday so that the florists had about all they could handle, and although the prices realized were not quite as high as last year at this time, business can be called good all around.

Country shipping orders were not so plentiful as those of a year ago, the reason being, I think, that we have more outside flowers, such as lilacs, roses, bulbous stock, fruit blossoms and wild flowers, owing to the lateness of Easter. Lilium longiflorum and L. Harrisii were to be had in any quantity, something quite unusual here and sold wholesale in six and seven-inch pots at from $4 to $6 per dozen, and at retail for about twice that price. Cut lilies at from $3 to $5 per dozen, wholesale. The quality, especially of the L. longiflorum, was good, better, in fact, than the L. Harrisii.

Roses were in good supply, Beauties sold at from $3 to $6 per dozen, wholesale. Maids at from 50 cents to $1. Kaiserin and Brides about the same. Liberty and Testout at 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen.

Carnations were to be had in unlimited quantities and were of splendid quality, ranging in price from $2 to $5 per 100, with a few very fancy ones at 75 cents per dozen.

Valley at $3 per 100. White and purple lilac at any price and calla lilies going begging at 50 cents per 100.

Violets, except a few Marie Louise and Swanley White have about disappeared and daffodils are no longer seen. Narcissus poeticus are also among the "has beens."

To sum everything up, flowers were very plentiful and cheap and the amount of trade about the same as that of last season and the prices realized by the florists about 30 per cent less than that of last Easter. I think, however, when everything has been figured up and all bills paid, we can say that we are very well satisfied.

Notes.

The spring flower show of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will be held on April 30, May 1 and 2, in the maple room of the Palace hotel. Valuable premiums, cash prizes and medals are to be awarded to the successful exhibitors for roses, carnations, sweet peas, pansies, decorative plants, floral designs, etc. It promises to be a very successful affair and will be ably managed by Mr. J. W. Bagge. The society is in a very prosperous condition and numbers all the up-to-date growers on its roster.

F. Shibeley, of Sutter street, reports a splendid Easter trade. His windows are among the most artistic in town and his assortment of flowers are always of the best to be had.

Sievers & Boland have secured larger quarters for their ever increasing business and will move about May 1, to several doors above their present location, on Post street. They have leased the entire ground floor of a large building and will fit it up in splendid shape.

The regular monthly meeting of the California State Floral Society was held today at Central Hall, on Sutter street. A large number of the members were on hand and May 15 next was appointed to be Book Day, on which occasion each member is requested to contribute a book on horticulture, floriculture or kindred subjects to the society's library.

I regret to have to chronicle the death, after a short illness, of Mr. John Davie, gardener to Mr. Joseph Grant, at Burlingame. Mr. Davie was well known in these parts as a successful gardener and plantsman, and an active member of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Did we ever see a more disagreeable week, so far as Old Sol's department was concerned? And could it be different than depressing in every way? One might think our monied class would telephone orders thick and fast for a few flowers to help dispel the gloom; but they hardly seemed to think that way, and trade was slim indeed until the closing day of the week, when clouds of all kinds were lifted and we experienced a fairly good rush of business.

Other causes than the weather were partly to be blamed. There is always the slack of business after a holiday to reckon with and this time all dealers had quite a bunch of goods of different kinds left over, which they were anxious to dispose of before purchasing anything else.

Flowers did bloom faster last week than could be expected, too. They were quite plentiful all the week, excepting violets and perhaps good carnations were none too much so. But in spite of all prophesy, lilies, good and strong, have been coming in right along since Easter. There is too much glass around now to choke off a supply of its product. But the growers seem to have full faith in the future, and heavy building is in progress for the coming summer. A partial list would include Budlong & Son, Providence, two houses, each 600 feet long; Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., two houses, each 300 feet long; Patten, of Lowell, one house 300 feet long, and Nicholson of South Framingham, one or two large houses.

A feature in the case is the appearance of large numbers of Kaiserins so early in the season. They are coming from three or four large growers and running very good for variety and season. Shippers as a usual thing do not realize how tender this rose is, and consequently do not handle it carefully enough. All red roses will stand considerable abuse, pink ones and some white ones will stand a little, but the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria quickly resents anything of the kind, and the least bit of it marks a twelve-cent rose down to a three or four-cent one very quickly.

One move has been made to assist the Columbus Avenue Co-Operative Market in its endeavor to stand alone in sublime isolation. Quarters in the basement have been rented to a hardy fern and other "green goods" dealer, and to a wire worker, so that trips up town for goods in their lines will hereafter be unnecessary. J. S. Manter.

OBITUARY.

James W. Withers, whose death was announced in our New York notes last week, died as the result of chronic nephritis.

For the past year there had been marked symptoms of failing health, which culminated into incapacity for business about the first of October of last year. His condition became progressively worse and on the advice of his medical attendants he left the United States in order to secure warmer climatic conditions, sailing for Jamaica on January 24th. With the exception of a slight rally immediately on his arrival at his destination, no beneficial results were attained, and, the heart and lungs becoming finally involved, he succumbed to the inroads of the organic disease April 13.

Mr. Withers was born in Welchpool, Montgomeryshire, Wales, forty-two years ago and was the son of the steward and factor on the estate of the Earl of Powis. At an early age he was apprenticed to the gardening profession at Vaynor Hall, one of the old-time famous gardens of Great Britain, and he evinced such aptitude in his chosen work that at the early age of twenty-one he found himself in charge as head gardener at Cructon, near Shrewsbury, England. Shortly after this he was engaged in the produce business in England, but soon returned to his regular work and for a time was in charge of the begonia propagation in the nurseries of John Laing & Sons, Forest Hill, near London.

He came to the United States in 1891 and after spending a short time in the Oasis Nurseries, Westbury Station, L. I., he became associated with the then firm of Pitcher & Manda at Short Hills, N. J. He represented this firm during a large portion of the time that the World's Fair was running in Chicago. During this period he suffered from a seizure of rheumatic fever which left its traces in the system and led to the organic troubles in his more recent sickness.

Returning from Chicago, he went to London to arrange for the closing up of the European branch of the United States Nurseries, and shortly after his return became associated with the Florists' Exchange. The owners of that paper had also purchased American Gardening, and part of his time was devoted to the interests of the latter paper. He did very meritorious work in connection with the Exchange. In 1898 he purchased American Gardening from the old firm and operated it on his own account until April of 1901, when he formed the American Gardening Publishing Company.

Before his health began to fail so perceptibly Mr. Withers was known throughout the horticultural arena for his great energy and untiring devotion to whatever cause he had in hand at the moment. The long, lingering disease was practically unsuspected by many of those who had ample opportunities for association with him, and the news of his collapse and ultimate death comes as a shock to many who knew him as a man of exceptionally vigorous appearance, until a year ago or so.

LOWELL, MASS.

Easter business was extraordinarily good when everything is considered, being in the midst of a strike—2,000 mill operatives on strike. Most all of the shops were well stocked with the finest array of blooming plants and cut flowers, with the exception of a few small dealers who lacked the courage to fill up.

Lilies were in abundance—none better seen here for a long time. Twenty-five cents a bud was the prevailing price. Of course we have "Cheap Johns" as everywhere else, who cut the price to 15 cents. The last few days previous to Easter were very rainy and anything but encouraging to those who were well stocked, but the last three days were all that could be asked for. Business started with a rush and continued to keep up until Sunday noon in good style, when all closed up at 1 p. m.

The blooming plants that were offered for sale were all well grown stock—azaleas, spireas, American Beauties in 5-inch pots, Crimson Ramblers and hydrangeas, with plenty of bulbous stock in pans, all of which was disposed of at good figures.

The supply of cut flowers was good both in quality and quantity. Roses and carnations were the predominating flowers sold, with a sprinkling of sweet peas, wall flowers, valley and mignonette, and great quantities of hyacinths, tulips and daffodils. The supply of violets was a little shy, both single and double, but the blooms were very good—that is, the double ones were, when the lateness of the season is taken into consideration; the single ones all went to sleep, owing to the heat.

Everything taken into consideration, business was good and almost everyone reports satisfactory returns.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

President Rackham has called a meeting of the Board of Directors, to be held in Detroit on May 6th for the purpose of preparing a premium list for the next meeting and for the transaction of other business, and would like to hear from all interested before that date as to their views regarding the premium list, in order that the matter may be considered. Several of the directors have signified their intention of being present.

UTICA, N. Y.

On the evening of April 8 only a very small number of bowlers turned out, as I suppose most of the boys were busy, it being so near Easter, but on April 15 they turned out in good numbers and we had a very fine evening of it. They had all got well rested up after the Easter trade, which was the best that we have ever seen—from 25 to 40 per cent better than last year. Nearly everything sold well and we are all well pleased. Lilies had first call and were followed closely by azaleas. We had fine weather on Saturday and Sunday. Carnations were somewhat scarce.

You will notice by the list of bowlers at the last meeting, April 15, that Rowlands was absent. I have just heard that he has gone fishing, and the boys are anxiously awaiting for his return, hoping it will mean a trout dinner.

One more Dutchman to-day. When will the end come? It does seem almost as if they had one for every bulb grown in Holland.

I hear of one florist who already has his carnations planted out. Rather early, as we had a very hard frost on the 19th. The first of May is quite early enough in this climate.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Fine weather prevailed for Easter and trade was good, considerably greater than last year. Prices were about the same except on carnations, which averaged $1.50 to $2 per dozen, with some selected fancy stock at $3. There was an ample supply of plants except lilies only one florist reporting enough of these. Azaleas sold readily and good bulbous stuff, including daffodils, which never sold so well. Sale on palms and Bostons was quite limited. Crimson Ramblers were picked up eagerly.

There was a great demand for cheap flowering plants, in fact an increased demand for plants rather than cut flowers. Cinerarias and spireas sold poorly. They are evidently "back numbers." Baskets of miscellaneous flowering plants sold readily. Violets were in demand, but no stock here. The greatest demand was for carnations, as usual. Some Beauties sold as high as $2 each.

THE BUFFALO SHOW.

Editor The Florists' Review: I would be glad if you would publish the following for the benefit of the florists of western New York:

The H. A. Meldrum Co. department store on Main street, Buffalo, held last fall a chrysanthemum show. The classes were limited but sufficient to draw out a really fine show, the cash premiums amounting to $400 were promptly paid and many thousands of people were attracted to the store. Free shows are usually very popular.

This year they have asked the Buffalo Florists' Club to get up a schedule of prizes amounting to $1,000 in cash prizes. The individual prizes will be large, for the exhibition is to be confined to chrysanthemums and a very few roses.

Mr. Charles Keitsch has been appointed to manage the exhibition, which is a guarantee that it will be carried out in a systematic and businesslike way.

William Scott,
President Buffalo Florists' Club.

Columbus, O.—The Franklin Park Floral Co. reports Easter trade as much larger than last year, with a good supply of stock to do it with.

Seed Trade News.

Seed Imports.—The importation of foreign seeds is growing at the rate of more than $200,000 annually, according to figures prepared by the Treasury Bureau of Statistics. Dutiable seeds to the value of $845,000 were imported in the eight months ending with February last. The assessment of duties on seeds for the corresponding eight months of 1902 reached $665,700, while in the same period of 1901, the seed importations on which duty was levied possessed a valuation of $431,852. These statistics do not include seeds free of duty under the provisions of the Dingley law. Nondutiable seeds from foreign countries were imported during eight months ending February last to the value of $995,866, as compared with $1,324,687 for the corresponding period of 1902. Altogether, seeds valued at more than $2,000,000 were brought to the United States last year. As an exporter of seeds, this country is forging rapidly ahead. The figures for the eight months ending with February show that $8,435,429 worth of American seeds were shipped to Europe and elsewhere, an increase of nearly $3,000,000 over the corresponding eight months of 1901.

New York.—D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, have protested against the action of the collector of customs at Detroit, who advanced values on seeds imported by the firm on the claim that certain portions of the seeds are sold in the German market at an advance over the price paid by them. Ferry & Co argue that the customs authorities in assessing duty should take into consideration the wholesale contract price. In reaching a decision, the reappraisement division of the General Board will have to decide what the usual wholesale quantities are in Germany, and as well as the wholesale price in that market.

East Sumner, Me.—The Eastman Seed Co. is arranging for an unusually large acreage the coming season of their leading specialties in early vegetables.

Detroit, Mich.—The American Seed Co. has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are Joseph L. Gillespie, Charles W. Latham, John Bingen and Jos. J. Gillespie.

339 MANHATTAN SUPPLY CO. East 23rd St. NEW YORK

OSWEGO, N. Y.

Easter sales were about as usual, with no call for any particular flower unless it might be violets, and that was perhaps the more noticeable on account of their scarcity. Carnations sold well, and roses came next, but for cut bulbous stuff there was not the slightest call. The usual amount of three and five days' cut flowers, which were shipped in, and which were a disgrace by 9 a. m. Easter Sunday, were sent out. This perhaps is not altogether hurtful to the trade, for it helps to keep the business within bounds and gives a decided show to the plantsman.

Easter lilies were good, but too expensive for the majority of people. They were mostly sold in pots. The weather was very favorable for sales and deliveries. Lots of small jags of cut flowers were called for by phone, but the florist usually questioned how many were wanted and then he had them or not according to circumstances, knowing that all would sell and be carried away by customers.

Nearly all churches here were this year decorated by individual donations, with very poor results.

W. B. Stewart.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

On the night of April 13th Baur & Smith's greenhouses were broken into and a large quantity of cut flowers stolen, principally carnations and sweet peas, which had been cut for delivery the next morning. The flowers were found the next day and Wm. Ross, a journeyman florist, was arrested and found guilty of the theft. Mr. Ross has worked for many growers in this section of the country and is a well known character. He has been known to commit numerous thefts of this kind, but heretofore he has always escaped arrest. His trial has been continued until another man who was with him can be found.

NEW ORLEANS.

Easter trade this year was very good, an increase in cash sales of about 30 per cent. Cut Harrisii and pot plants sold out. Beauties, Maids, Brides, Gates, sold well. Valley had quiet call. Carnations and violets had very little call. So far as I noticed, made-up baskets did not sell; everyone wanted loose flowers. Palms and ferns did not sell. Anything in blooming plants went. Could have sold 100 more pot lilies if I had had them. Azaleas sold out. Easter business in the South is getting to be as good as the best day in the year, which is Christmas.

U. J. Virgin.

Springfield, Ill.—Bell Miller reports Easter trade as good, with everything salable cleaned up. Flowers not plentiful on account of dark weather Friday and Saturday. Lilies very scarce. Stock very poor this year, as bulbs were no good. Roses and carnations were very good, as bright weather during the past month greatly improved the quality.

Correction.—A printer's error in the advertisement of Nathan Smith & Son, on page 902 of our last issue, made them offer Acalypha bicolor compacta at $2.20 per dozen when it should have read $2.50 per dozen. The price appears correctly in the adv. this week.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Easter trade was a record breaker with every dealer. Never before was there such a stock at hand and never before has it been so cleaned up. Lilies led, with azaleas next. Bulbous stock, especially daffodils, was in good demand. Carnations were in ample supply, but some high grade stock was left over.

It was a plant Easter in every sense of the word. The bulk of the business was done Friday and Saturday on account of very stormy weather the rest of the week. This made matters lively for the delivery teams, John Coombs being obliged to put on ten teams, while five ordinarily suffices.

Many azaleas were dead ripe, making prices break somewhat. Practically everything was cleaned up and every retailer is dog tired, but smiles in his sleep—or at least did when he got a chance.

O.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

After about two weeks of a downpour of rain, Friday morning opened up with fine weather and sunshine that started the ball a-rolling for Easter trade, which continued with a rush until Sunday noon, and at that time there was not a flower to be seen in the city, and scarcely a plant. Every florist had an abundance of lilies, which were wiped out completely. These naturally led the sale of plants. Azaleas were in good demand, as well as potted hyacinths, tulips and cinerarias. Crimson Ramblers went rather slowly. Aside from the tremendous demand for cut flowers there was a continual stream of funeral work the whole week; this of course made the work harder and it was very difficult to keep up with the orders. The Easter trade in general was 50 per cent better than any previous year.

Ino.

UTICA, N. Y.

Easter trade was fully double that of any previous year. While we had some showers during the week preceding Easter Saturday, still the weather was such as held the stock in good order and did not prevent customers from getting about and making selections in season. The plants most in demand were in the following order: Azaleas, lilies, Ramblers, pot roses, lilacs, rhododendrons, viburnums, acacias, hydrangeas; and then followed the full line of bulbous stock in pans, pots, etc. In cut flowers, roses, carnations, valley, peas and violets had the call, followed by lesser candidates for public favor. Very little ribbon and fancy furnishings were in evidence, or called for; in fact, the trade wanted handsome plants and no fixings. In general I believe the trade has reason to congratulate itself on an all-round prosperous season.

Spare.

Terre Haute, Ind.—John G. Heinl & Son report Easter trade the best they have ever had. Everything sold, both plants and cut flowers. Selected Beauties, fancy roses and the best carnations sold first and at good prices.

Monday's prices were encouraging to the growers, the finest stock bringing considerably above average prices. A few Beauties touched 30 cents and Brides and Maids 10 to 12. The retailers are busy and with hardly an exception report a satisfactory Easter business and more trade since than they expected. With a continuance of the cool weather April will make amends for the disastrous week prior to Easter.

In the last week there were six cold, rainy days, with all conditions unfavorable for flowers. The after-Easter weddings were numerous and the demand for these and other social affairs was rather greater than the supply. This week the trade is remarkably active and the shipments notably short, so that everything is promptly cleaned up.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—A. Washburn & Sons report Easter trade as a little in advance of previous years, with prices a little higher. Stock was cleaned up, both in cut flowers and plants. Azaleas went a little slower than usual. Carnations seem to have a place that roses and bulb stock do not fill and some customers turn away when carnations are not to be had.

PONTIAC, ILL.—W. J. Miller & Son report Easter trade as double that of last year, with prices about the same as last season. There was no shortage except on lilies. They are well pleased with results. They are now getting the ground ready to plant out carnations and expect to commence planting April 20.

A CARD.

Editor Florists' Review:—Permit me to use your columns to express my sincere appreciation to all who so kindly extended their sympathy in the sad loss of my wife. Especially do I thank the Detroit and Mt. Clemens brethren, also Messrs. Randall and Fisk, for the beautiful floral offerings, which afford so much comfort, and known only to those in like condition. Robert Klagge.
Mt. Clemens, Mich., April 15, 1903.

Wichita, Kan.—W. H. Culp & Co. say: "Total sales about 20 per cent better than last year, with prices about the same. Lilies cleaned up, with supply about equal to demand. Supply of other plants about equal to demand. Blooming plants sold best, good hyacinths selling well. Very little call for decorative plants, such as palms, ferns, etc. Plenty of cut flowers in most cases, considerable roses and some carnations being shipped in from wholesale markets. Roses, Beauties, fancy carnations, white hyacinths, lilies and valley sold best. Fair sale for white tulips and daffodils; colored tulips poor sale. Good flowers sold best, second grade stuff not selling well even at low prices when first class stock could be had. Taken altogether it was a most satisfactory Easter, a record breaker with us, and one that made some money for the florists."

Elgin, Ill.—B. O'Neil reports Easter trade as hardly equal to last year. The weather was very bad. The retailer has much trouble in explaining the aerial prices of Easter and for his troubles his profits are very small.

Brattleboro, Vt.—C. E. Allen reports Easter sales in general as equal to last year and probably larger in some grades of blooming plants. Good quality at the right price usually finds a ready market.

Little Rock, Ark.—Tipton & Hurst report Easter trade as at least 25 per cent larger than last year. In blooming plants the call was for lilies first, carnations next, with roses on the drag.

ST. PAUL.

The Easter Business.

If any one supposed that trade was declining here last week's business happily dispelled that illusion. Notwithstanding adverse weather conditions Easter business was away ahead of any previous year. Nearly everything sold well and nearly everything was sold out clean. Colored flowers sold better than white, which was quite the reverse of former years' experience. As usual plants were in the greatest demand, and lilies were the most popular plants. The supply of these was not equal to the call and a great many more might have been sold. Azaleas were pretty well cleaned out, as well as hydrangeas, cinerarias, Rambler roses, etc. Spireas sold slowly this year. In cut flowers everything was eagerly picked up. Beauties met with ready sale. Other roses were as usual freely called for. Carnations were popular, while the demand for violets was far beyond expectation and supply. There was a big demand for lilies, which could only be partially met. The smaller stores did a rushing business in bulbous stock such as hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in pots.

A. S. Swanson had a fine display of seasonable stock, with a bevy of young lady clerks. As novelties he had Wistaria sinensis in standard tree form. Viburnum opulus in standard and low grown bushy stock. His tulips were exquisite, while his supply of bulbous stock seemed inexhaustible.

L. L. May & Co. had an unusually fine display in their commodious conservatory. Lilies, lilacs, azaleas, hydrangeas, spireas, Ramblers, hybrids, etc., made up the list of desirable stock. Some well done hyacinths in fancy baskets were very attractive and catchy and sold very readily. Their shipping trade was by far the largest in their history.

Holm & Olson had an elegant display of seasonable stock and had a big trade.

E. F. Lemke had a nice stock and reports good sales.

Otto Hiersekorn, Chas. Vogt and all the other downtown stores were crowded with customers and rushed with orders.

Prices ranged high considering the lateness of the season. At retail they were as follows: Beauties, $5 to $12 per dozen; other roses, $2 to $3; carnations, $1 to $2; valley, tulips and other bulbous stock, 75 cents; violets, $2 per 100; lilies, $3 per dozen.

The weather though wet and disagreeable on Friday and Saturday, was not very cold and but little trouble was experienced in making deliveries. Without making any systematic canvass I should say that total business showed an increase of 15 to 20 per cent over any previous Easter. The most pronounced shortage was lilies and violets. The greatest surplus, spireas and bulbous stock. X. Y. Z.

Springfield, Mass.—Mark Aitken reports the largest Easter trade he ever had. It was a plant Easter, though cut flowers had a strong hold. They sold in about the same quantity as last year, the increased sales being in plants. Violets were rather scarce on account of the advanced season. Bulbous flowers were plentiful and sold well. Of roses there were about enough to go round but not nearly enough carnations. People seemed to be willing to pay a better price than in former years, providing they get better plants.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The weather was fair until Friday, when late in the afternoon it began to rain, continuing all night; dull and threatening Saturday up to 3 o'clock, not enough, though, to keep people home, and business went with a rush. About 3 o'clock it began to rain; by 4 it poured, and about 6 we experienced the most severe electrical storm, accompanied by hail, that ever visited this city. It seemed as if a cloud had burst and with it came a downpour of hail, large as hickorynuts, smashing glass and doing other damage. About two inches of water fell in those 30 minutes. Business was suspended. Hail lay in the streets in windrows six inches deep as late as 10 o'clock. Some hail stones were an inch in diameter. This storm destroyed considerable business that would have been done had the weather remained fair. The greenhouses suffered more or less from hail. Twenty-five dollars will cover Peter Kunst's loss; twice that Wm. Cunningham's, while Crabb & Hunter seemed to get it the hardest; yet $100 will cover their loss.

In spite of this streak of adversity business was good, better than last year, on an average of fully 20 per cent and would have been much better if half the day had not been spoiled.

Carnations were scarce, remarkably so, the demand being for double what was in sight; roses about equal to the demand; violets and lilies in good supply, sold well and brought good prices. Tulips and daffs were not in as good demand as in former years, and one downtown store reports that while everything else sold well roses did not. Pot plants sold even better than cut flowers, and there were lots of them. Lilies, of course, led, then came Crimson Ramblers, roses, hydrangeas, although not as freely as in former years. Azaleas still hold their accustomed place, while bulb stock was a drug, hyacinths selling best. The Boston store had a special sale of lilies and A. Beauty roses. E. J. Herrick, grocery store, lilies and miscllaneous. Crabb & Hunter gave a special sale at Brown's seed store. Peter Kunst, Freyling & Mendals and Bruin-Slot & Sons had each two to three wagons backed up on Monroe street, all doing a good business until the hail cut their plants to pieces, knocking them out of commission.

The next meeting of the club takes place Friday night, April 24, at the Board of Trade rooms. We hope nothing will occur to cloud this meeting.

G. F. C.

Atchison, Kan.—Mangelsdorf Bros. Co. report Easter trade in general as better than last year, but not so profitable, owing to the unusually warm weather preceding Easter. With the coolest house at 80 degrees it was impossible to hold back hyacinths, azaleas, etc. Lilies were as usual in most demand. The supply of roses and carnations was insufficient and the warm weather made the quality slightly inferior to that of last year. Mr. Edward Snell is making preparations to engage in the florist business in this city.

Sandusky, O.—The Central Greenhouses say Easter sales did not differ substantially from those of last year. There was rain most of Friday, all of Saturday, and Sunday morning got the tail end of the Indiana storm.

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Easter trade in this city was about the same as last year. The demand for potted plants outside of Easter lilies not very good. The weather being warm, the imported stock came in in poor condition and was a drug on the market, many florists ordering more than they cared to accept for some unknown reason. These consignments are sold by the Express Co.'s for just what they will fetch. This kind of business works a hardship on the honorable florists who place orders and expect them.

The new firm, The Salt Lake-Huddart Floral Co., had a house of splendid Easter lilies which were in the pink of condition. Their Prosperity carnation house would be hard to beat, even by our eastern brothers. Business is beginning to be good for the spring trade. P. T. H.

Albion, Mich.—M. & S. L. Dysinger report Easter sales as excellent and everybody delighted. There was a good increase over last year, and prospects for a good spring trade are fine.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

Easter, 1903.

It is a pleasure when making an Easter Sunday visit to the different growing establishments to meet with pleasant faces and cheerful smiles, as this is a sure index that their lines have fallen in pleasant places, instead of those "Hingin' lugs an' faces lang," which we were accustomed to meet on similar occasions a few years ago.

This year there are substantial reasons for feeling good. Roses, carnations and lilies have been away above the usual in quality and while the cut of carnations does not equal that of last year, the difference in quality and price will bring them up to and possibly beyond the average of last year. Lilies have been of better quality and with less disease than in years past and the demand for them in pots and as cut blooms has far exceeded last season. Most of the growers were practically sold out on Saturday at prices ranging from 12 cents to 15 cents per bud and bloom wholesale, retailing at 20 cents.

In roses Beauties as usual took the lead. Of these there was a good supply and the quality could not be surpassed. The average prices being wholesale $1.50 to $6.00 per dozen; Brides, Maids and Meteors brought $7 to $8 per 100 wholesale, and retailed at $1 to $1.50 per dozen.

Carnations, while being a fair cut and of excellent quality, were not by any means adequate to the demand and were soon cleaned up at $4 to $6 per 100 wholesale, and retailed at 75 cents to $1 per dozen. Bulbous stock was plentiful and quality good, with the exception of tulips; this was all cleaned up at profitable figures. Of green, such as smilax, asparagus, adiantum, etc., the supply was sufficient to cover all demands.

The Dunkley Floral Co. report a good trade both in cut blooms and pot plants, and consider that business has made quite a stride since last year. Their lilies were of fine quality and sold readily at the recognized price.

The Van Bochove Bros. are quite satisfied with the volume of trade that fell their way. They had a house of lilies which were superb, the finest they have seen since the disease appeared. They were fortunate also in being in the flush of a good rose cut. Their Beauties were very fine. In sales they are considerably ahead of former years.

Mr. Fraser, of Mountain Home, reports a very satisfactory Easter trade, particularly in carnations, his cut being of a very high grade.

Mr. Sam Batson is thoroughly satisfied with the prices going, his only regret being that his place is not large enough so that by an increased cut he could make hay while the "sun of bright prosperity" is shining.

Reports from the north and east sections of the city are equally satisfactory.

Weather conditions were favorable to safe delivery, there being few if any complaints about stock being injured in transit. R.

Topeka, Kan.—James Hayes reports Easter trade as about 10 per cent larger than last year. Lilies, owing to the advance in price, went slow. The general sale of potted plants was good. Flowers, particularly carnations, sold well.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

This has been a very prosperous Easter. Saturday was a warm, beautiful day and brought out everyone able to buy a flower. Along the streets one was constantly seeing boys hurrying along with their Easter lilies to deliver, and the stores experienced a continual rush. Stock of all kinds sold out clean at good prices, roses retailing at from $2 to $3 per dozen, and carnations at from $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Easter lilies were not equal to the demand, and late Saturday afternoon sales were made at $5 per dozen. The Crimson Rambler achieved its first popularity here and proved a successful rival of the lily, because of its lasting value.

There was a considerable tendency to make purchases of plants of all kinds over cut flowers. A large number of fine azaleas, bottle brush, rhododendrons, and some Deutzia gracilis, hydrangeas, etc., were in evidence and sold well. The amount of business increase over last year will be 50 per cent in some instances, but this is due to the weather to some extent. Last year we had six inches of snow the day before Easter, rendering shopping a disagreeable task; while this year the sun was shining brightly and the trees in full bloom, making an irresistible combination, and people "just had to" buy flowers.

John H. Vesey.

Aurora, Ill.—J. M. Smely reports Easter trade as good and about 20 per cent larger than last year. Saturday's sales were 85 per cent plants. Customers thought carnation prices were too high, but carnations were most called for. In plants lilies led by long odds, azaleas next. In cheaper plants bulbous stock sold better than primroses, cinerarias and cyclamen, the three latter being rather poor. No great shortage of anything except violets, which were a failure this year with all of us, and those we had to buy were short-stemmed flowers with long-stemmed leaves (California) around them. We prefer leaves to be cut the same length as the flower stem.

Dubuque, Ia.—W. A. Harkett says the Easter trade in plants was about 25 per cent better than in former years, while cut flower sales were about the same as last year. There was a surplus of lilies, both plants and cut. Also of carnations, tulips and some other cut stock. Flowering plants took the lead and ornamental foliage plants were in least demand.

QUINCY, ILL.—Gentemann Bros. report a better Easter business than in any previous year. There was a great demand for potted plants such as lilies, azaleas, spireas, etc. There was also an unusual demand for cut flowers—lilies, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, valley, roses and carnations. Everything went at top prices.

PINE BLUFF, ARK.—A. A. Harper says the Easter trade was the best he ever had, with prices about the same as last year. There was a shortage of lilies and carnations.

"Most Caldwell Towers are painted GREEN, You'll know 'em by the color."

CLEAR CYPRESS ABSOLUTELY FREE OF SAP

Our whole thought and attention have been given to greenhouse building material. We have had years of experience in supplying material to critical practical growers.

We are specialists in Greenhouse Construction, just as the rose grower is a specialist in roses.

We can serve you much better than one lacking this experience.

GARLAND IRON GUTTERS.

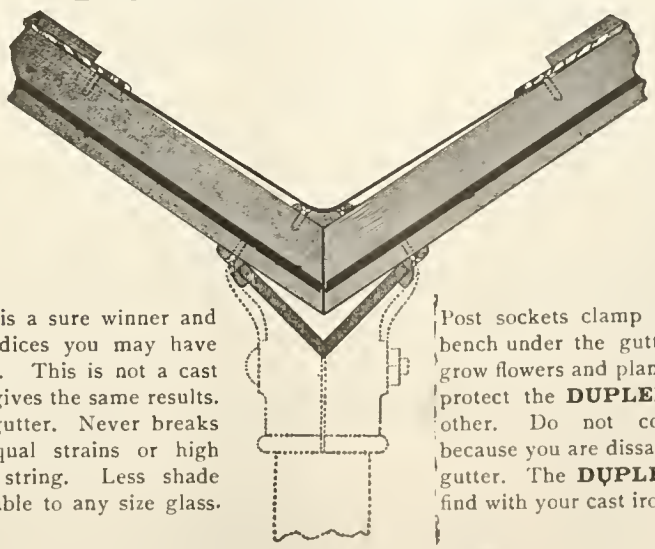
IS THE ONLY GUTTER.



To see it in a house is a sure winner and will set aside the prejudices you may have against cast iron gutters. This is not a cast iron gutter. None other gives the same results. No drip from glass or gutter. Never breaks by sagging posts, unequal strains or high winds. Straight as a string. Less shade than any other. Adjustable to any size glass.

Post sockets clamp on posts and gutter. A bench under the gutter is the best place to grow flowers and plants in the house. Patents protect the DUPLEX, one gutter under the other. Do not condemn the DUPLEX because you are dissatisfied with your cast iron gutter. The DUPLEX has not the faults you find with your cast iron gutter.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

NEW YORK STORES AT EASTER

We present this week a second installment of views of New York stores at Easter.

Bowe's place at 1294 Broadway was a handsome sight the Saturday before Easter as the photo indicates. Sunday everything was gone, including that $50 azalea in the window. Acacias, hydrangeas and lilies were especially abundant here.

The splendid store of J. H. Small & Sons on Broadway was a flower show in itself. At the rear of the store is a conservatory on the second floor, the steps leading to it being seen in the picture. The photograph is so clear that a good idea is given of the high quality and treatment in a decorative way of the plants in stock.

The Siebrecht conservatory on Fifth avenue is only partly shown in the picture and there was also a host of plants in the store as well. The amount of stock sold here was enormous.

The Warendorff shop in the Ansonia is one of the finest florist stores in the world. The grand ice box, the splendid features of the electric lighting and the artistic decorations are here only partially shown.

The New Jersey Cut Flower Co. at 37 West 28th street is the new departure of A. Warendorff and forms the last of the trio of combination flower stores where wholesale and retail branches flourish in harmony.

ROSES.

Seasonable Hints.

During this and the few succeeding weeks before planting time commences in earnest, the care of the young stock will be one of the principal duties as this is the most critical and trying stage in the life of the rose.

Plants which have withstood all the vicissitudes of bad management during the comparatively cool season of the past two months will now begin to show the effects of such treatment. Stock which has been in any way neglected in getting a shift at the proper time will require extra care now before the real warm weather commences. It is better to give such stock a shift of half an inch than to subject them in their weakened condition to the dangerous chances of a larger one. Young stock which has been carefully handled from the start can with all safety be given a shift of one inch, which ought to be sufficient to carry them along till planting time.

Beauties which are designed to be benched before June should now be in 4 inch pots. To keep this variety in the best condition it should never be allowed to approach being pot bound.

Brides, Bridesmaids, Golden Gates and Ivory should now receive their last potting, in fact all stock which is designed for benching before the old and well defined date, 4th of July, should by the time this reaches your readers be in process of receiving their last shift.

With the room acquired by Easter sales, and that which we will get after carnation planting there will be no excuse for crowding our young plants; give them plenty of breathing space, this may mean a little extra work, but it will save the lower leaves and give health and robustness to the plants.

A periodical handling of the young stock is also beneficial; it saves the roots from dipping into the material on which they are placed, which is often of such a nature and in such a state of sourness that it cannot add tone to their constitution, it also affords the opportunity to present the other side of the plant to the sun, giving it a chance to develop all eyes equally and to form a more symmetrical plant.

During hot weather extra care should be given to Beauties and Meteors as they are very liable to be attacked by red spider. If this pest once gets a foothold among young stock of these varieties it is very difficult to get rid of, the foliage being so dense and so close to the pot that it is hard to reach the under side of the leaves with the syringe and that is just the particular spot which must be reached, as that is their favorite stamping ground. Keep the syringe going every bright day as this is the only safe preventive.

By the exercise of a little extra care in ventilating, syringing and firing when necessary the stock can be successfully carried along in good condition till planting time, when after being in the bench for about ten days we will begin to see the advantage of planting well handled stock. RIBES.

ROSE BUGS.

Please tell me how to destroy rose bugs on outdoor flowering roses when the plants are in bloom. H. L.

This inquirer fails to give a description of the "bug" he expects to entertain when his roses are in bloom, and consequently this fact will somewhat lengthen my answer.

The various bugs which infest outdoor rose bushes before and at flowering time have different habits and different ways of making their living. Some are chewers and put in a good day's work to earn their living. These are easily destroyed by any of the arsenite preparations, which act as internal poisons by being eaten along with the ordinary food of the insect.

Another class of insects which are equally destructive and much more difficult to destroy on outdoor bushes are those which make their living by sucking the juices from the tissues of the leaves and buds, and can only be destroyed by poisons which kill by contact, viz., by irritating the skin or by closing the breathing pores.

To destroy the chewing insects any of the arsenite mixtures, such as Paris green, Bordeaux mixture, or London purple will effect a remedy.

The Ohio experiment station recommends the following combination: Paris green two ounces, carbonate of copper two ounces, dissolve in three pints of ammonia, add one-half pound of unslaked lime and one barrel of water, use a nozzle which makes a fine spray.

For the suckers, tobacco in its various forms is sure death if applied so that it comes in direct contact with their bodies. Steep five pounds of tobacco stems in three gallons of hot water for an hour, then strain and dilute with enough water to make seven gallons, use a fine spray, both sides of the leaves must be sprayed.

Pyrethrum or Dalmatian insect powder is also very efficacious, either used as a dry powder or in water (one ounce to two gallons of water). For use as a dry powder it may with advantage be diluted with six parts of flour, and be applied to the foliage with a powder blower. RIBES.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Shading.

The past week has given us bright, sunny days and frost nearly every morning, and some shading has had to be done. I don't believe in shading roses at any time, unless it be those you are carrying over for a summer crop. Partial shade is to them a great benefit, particularly if you have the long-span-to-the-south house, which many still believe is the house for roses. Carnations I do most decidedly believe in shading from now until the new crop is planted. Chrysanthemums should never have a particle of shade after they are once rooted in the 2-inch pots, unless it be that some of the dark varieties need shade when the flower begins to open.

There is a number of plants that are benefited by some shade. It keeps down the temperature, prevents the continual drying out of pots and benches, and with some plants prevents burning. Avoid shading soft wooded bedding plants like geraniums, coleus, cannas, etc., as long as you possibly can. Did you ever notice that plants plunged in a hotbed neither burn nor dry out so often beneath bright glass? Of course it's because they are plunged. But more or less shading has to be done, and it is not necessary or proper to cover the whole of the glass surface with whitewash or any other mixture.

As to the best material for appearance and for a nice, subdued light white lead and naphtha will be found, I think, the best. Some people in a hurry syringe it on. It is a wasteful plan and a very unsightly one. Put it on with a whitewash brush. You will save enough lead to pay for the labor. Supposing your glass is 16 inches wide; draw your brush down the middle and leave 2 or 3 inches of clear glass each side of the shaded strip. The sun's rays that will go through the small, unshaded space will be continually moving and hurt nothing, and it will be shade enough for a few weeks. This is more like a lattice shade, one inch of shade and one inch of clear space, and that is considered ideal.

Firing.

I would just like to mention here the great necessity of keeping the fires going for a long time yet, particularly in the plant houses. I don't want to trespass on other correspondents' ground, and should not, as I have a large enough field without, but how many rose growers at their first attempt have said to themselves, "Oh, it won't go below 45, or 40 at least, tonight. I will shut up early and keep the heat in, and we won't bother about a fire tonight," and then in the morning at daylight your pretty young rose leaves are edged with dew drops so lovely and they look so fresh and nice, even if it is a little cool. About four cool nights with these dew drops and with no fire and no ventilation and off come your leaves, and even the young shoots will rot and shrivel. It's a fungus, the name of which I don't know, but it's forty times worse than the worst case of mildew you could ever have.

While geraniums with plenty of ventilation day and night may get along very well without any more fire heat, you can not do this with coleus, cannas, acalyphas and many other of our summer bedding plants. They just stand still, and worse. A little heat in the pipes and a little ventilation is ideal. If not possible to fire, then give a little ventilation. One cool, damp night without fire will make the show pelargoniums drop their petals, which, falling on the leaves, rot them, and your beautiful show is gone.

Cyclamen.

The next two months is the time that your cyclamens are likely to be neglected. A serious neglect means a total failure. Now, we grew some really good cyclamen last year. The seed was not sown until January 7, so they were scarcely in good bloom by the holidays, but that was two months too late. Seed sown in October will give you plants in good bloom by December. I have seen cyclamen grown well plunged in a mild hotbed during summer, but they want lots of watchfulness, and unless it is your specialty they are apt to be "out of sight, out of mind." While the hotbed may give the largest plants, you can grow fine, compact plants full of flowers in 5 and 6-inch pots in the greenhouse.

Believing I could not improve on the method pursued last year, I will give it briefly. From the seed pan they were put into flats in 3 inches of soil. When they had made two or three leaves and the corm was the size of a big pea they were potted into 3-inch pots. At this time, early June, they were plunged in tobacco stems in a small house facing south. About early August they were shifted into 5-inch pots. A few were afterward shifted into 6-inch, but most of them were sold in the 5-inch. From the time they went into the 3-inch pots until they were sold they always had tobacco stems among the pots, as well as a fumigating once a week. The soil was one-half loam, one-fourth well-rotted manure and one-fourth real leaf mold, that is, maple and oak leaves two years old and thoroughly rotted. On bright mornings they were always syringed. No greenfly, thrips or rust ever troubled them.

Now, all that is very simple and what everybody knows, and yet all would have ended in failure had we given them either a permanent shade or no shade at all. We had a round pole the length of the sash bar and on it tacked cheesecloth. On bright days we unrolled the cheese-cloth about 10 a. m., and rolled it up again at 4 p. m. On dull and rainy days the pole and its envelope of cheese-cloth was left rolled up. Now that, I believe and feel sure, is the whole secret, and how many, many of our plants would rejoice in the same treatment under glass.

Bay Trees and Hydrangeas.

Last year we (I hope not you) had a severe frost about the 17th of May. But that does not prevent you from getting some things out of doors. Your sweet bay trees should all be stood out. As you want to sell these, there is no need of plunging the tubs just yet, but when the selling season is over it is a great help to them and saves watering if the tubs are plunged to the rims, and it prevents them blowing over if not staked, for they are mostly all top heavy. We had a man talking life insurance to us last July, and they all fell over.

Your tubs of hydrangeas, which should have been little above the freezing point all winter, will begin to grow rapidly if in a shed or pit, and should be given the outside, but those in the frost belt should have the means to protect them against what we may yet have to come.

Pansies.

It's a pity that people are not educated (or more of them) when to plant the pretty pansies. They will come along about the 5th of June and ask for them. Talk pansies now if you have them. We filled vases with them three weeks ago, and they are none the worse for a good many freezes.

Ferns.

You have all noticed how scarce the Boston fern is of late and the great demand for it. The wonderful N. Piersoni can not supplant it yet, because there are not enough to go around, and the price of Piersoni will not be popular just yet. When the latter beautiful fern is common all other nephrolepis will have to retire to the rear to be seated. As soon as you have a good, light bench with 5 or 6 inches of rich soil and some well rotted manure, and if leaf mold be added, so much the better, you should plant out plenty of the Boston fern, also some Anna Foster, for it is a pretty and easy growing fern. Nothing like having the plants early in the fall. You can lift a nephrolepis from the bench one day and sell it to your customer the next, but that's not fair. They should be lifted a month, at least, before they are sold. Most ferns do like shade, but not all, and the nephrolepis is one that will grow under unshaded glass throughout the summer if well supplied with water and will make a better plant than when shaded.

CARNATION NOTES—WEST.

Planting Out.

We have had some good planting weather during the past week, and some of our carnation men are right in the midst of planting out their young stock. There have been some cool nights and once or twice a few degrees of frost, but nothing to hurt, and there is not likely to come a killing frost now any more. If you are a believer in housing carnations early you should by all means be among the early planters, but if you do not house your carnations until after Aug. 20 you are still in good time. The next two weeks will be very favorable for this kind of work, and the nights are cool and the dews are heavy, so that the young plants will take hold readily. Be sure that your ground is in good shape when you have it plowed; if it is too wet you had better wait until it dries off enough, even if you don't get your plants in until the latter part of May. You will gain by it, especially if the soil is of a heavy nature.

Having plowed and pulverized the soil properly, you are ready to set in the young plants, and the sooner you get them in after the soil is plowed the better for the plants. Give the young plants a thorough watering a few hours before you begin planting, so they will not suffer if they do not get a rain for a few days. The sooner you get the young plants into the soil after they are dumped out of the pots or dug from the bench the better for the plants. On some places they have a boy drop the plants along the line at the proper distance, and a man or two following him up, planting. This is all right on a cloudy day, but when the sun in shining hot, as it often does now, I do not like it unless the planters keep right up close to the dropper. We have our plants placed in flats about 12x16 inches, and each man takes a flat of plants, sliding it along as he plants. We usually have two men to a row, working from opposite ends towards the center, and when they meet they return to the ends and move the line and begin over again.

Of course you use a line in planting, as that is the only way you can get your rows straight, and see that both men plant on the same side of the line. Use a trowel to plant with. There are sure to be some lumps that need breaking up, or perhaps where some one stepped, and you can't dig through with your fingers. If the sun dries a crust on top before you get through planting you can dig up some moist earth to set the plant in. This may not be quite so rapid as some ways, but in this case speed is not all that is desired. A thousand plants well planted are better than two thousand plants thrown into the soil any old way. Set the plants just the same depth as they were inside, or if they are from pots there should be about a quarter of an inch of loose earth covering the ball to prevent evaporation.

Be sure that you write the labels carefully. I believe there are more varieties mixed while planting in the field than at any other time. Everybody is in a hurry and there are usually some helping who really do not know any better. There should be a good man at each end with instructions to look after the others. Of course you run your labels in the field just like you do on your benches, and they should be of good size, at least a foot long. There is nothing more aggravating than to have a lot of labels lost, and small labels in the field are apt to get lost. Towards evening have one of your men take a hand cultivator and go over what was planted during the day and loosen up the soil between the rows. You are bound to tramp it down pretty well when planting, especially if it is fresh plowed. We plant our rows fifteen inches apart and the plants eight to ten inches in the rows.

CARNATION NOTES—EAST.

Planting in the Field.

Whatever method you employ in the arrangements for planting stock in the field, remember that it is an operation worth doing well and also merits your personal attention. It is not always the one who can set the most plants in a given time that can be called the best workman. A man may be both very rapid and an expert at potting and shifting bedding plants, an accomplishment acquired through years of almost constant practice, while the planting of carnations in the field consumes but a short time each year, thus affording less chance for one to become what might be called a rapid and at the same time a thorough planter.

A passing reference to Mr. Scott's article in last week's issue on "Union Gardeners," which you all no doubt have read, clearly puts before you that which I wish to convey, namely that there is a great difference in men employed in our trade, consequently choose judiciously when starting to plant carnations in the field.

It is not my purpose to discourage rapid work but I do insist on thorough work even at the expense of less rapidity. I have witnessed instances of so called quick or expert (?) work in this line and cannot forget the result seen when visiting the same field a month later.

It is time and money thrown away, after having gotten together a fine lot of stock, to allow carelessness of any kind to enter into the work of planting out, while it is good policy to take extra care in planting stock which perhaps through some accident is not quite up to standard, for in many cases under field culture small defects are outgrown. To mark out the whole field and put men or boys laden with plants at work dropping them like potatoes savors too much of the farmer carnation grower who perhaps looks upon them as a catch crop and is satisfied to receive a cent per bloom for his product, thinking the amount realized is all velvet.

In my notes of March 26 reference was made to the bed system. When planting, we prepare one bed at a time, getting the soil into the best mechanical condition possible, leaving the surface smooth. A line is stretched for each row, then marked out with a hand cultivator opening a furrow about three inches in depth. Plants are LAID, not dropped, in the furrow from six to eight inches apart; the planter follows and guided by the size of the ball, sets the plants in the moist earth at the proper depth, draws a sufficient quantity of soil around the ball to cover it, presses the whole firmly, levels the soil about the plant, leaving the soil loose on the surface, seeing to it that the plant is not set any deeper than when taken from the flat or pot.

When completed the plants stand not less than twelve or more than eighteen inches between rows and from six to eight in the row according to variety. It will be seen that future cultivation must needs be done by hand cultivator and common hoes, these two implements being all that are needed; men and not horses or oxen supply the power and intelligence. Each man planting will need three to mark furrows, cut out and deliver plants. Two or more such gangs together with your personal supervision and work ought to make satisfactory progress consistent with thorough work, that is if the number of gangs employed correspond to the number of plants to be grown. Make a special effort to keep the planter supplied with but few plants laid ahead, as much injury is done by the drying of roots exposed very long to the action of wind and sun.

A still, cloudy day is preferable, but we cannot always choose the time. However, as the risk is greater on a bright, windy day, it has proven an advantage on such days to leave a slight depression around each plant, watering with a can, having sprinkler removed, in these depressions only, applying about what would fill a 3-inch pot to each plant. As soon as the water disappears, level off with loose soil. This covering in and leveling off with loose soil acts as a mulch in any case, whether watering is done or not. No more furrows should be made than can be planted immediately, the object being to have moist soil in which to set the balls, thus making good contact with soil of the field and ball.

I would advise strongly against topping young stock just previous, during or directly after planting. There is always a loss of balance between roots and top when a plant is cut back or transplanted and to plant out those having had little or no time to restore this balance or to bring the two operations very close together will result in a two fold check. A thorough watering the day before planting will allow the soil to get into just about the right condition, that is, not pasty, or so that it crumbles easily.

When cutting plants from flats do not squeeze the ball into a hard, round ball with an idea of keeping it intact; if the soil is in the proper state the balls can be cut square and left so no further disturbance of the roots will be necessary. Strict attention to every detail, however small, and which perhaps may seem unimportant in itself, will, taken as a whole, prove a good investment of time, returning a handsome rate of interest.

There are many conditions present with each grower which will compel him to be his own judge as how to proceed in his own particular case. Locality, climate, aspect of land, nature of soil, distance of field from houses, competency of help and various other circumstances we all have to meet and can without straying from the general plan of proper cultivation.

NELSON CARNATION.

Will Mr. Baur please tell me through the Review whether Nelson carnation does better planted indoors than in the field. Plants are in 3½-inch pots and somewhat rusty. Would like to know his method of treatment for it.

Subscriber.

I think you would be wise to plant your Mrs. Nelson in the field for several reasons. In the first place, we do not recommend the indoor culture except for varieties that are difficult to transplant from the field to the house. In fact it was this as much as anything that caused the indoor culture to be tried in the first place. Varieties that had a tendency toward dying off after housing or of becoming covered with rust from the excessive syringing for a few days after planting were found to be more satisfactory when they could be left undisturbed in the fall. These same things are also being largely overcome these days by extra early planting when the plants are yet of medium size and well matured. So that now about the only advantage there is in indoor culture is the longer stems and superior quality of blooms during the early winter. Mrs. Lawson is greatly benefited by indoor culture, we think. Mrs. Nelson transplants as easily as most varieties, and as it throws stems of good length early there is no call for the indoor culture. They will grow out of the rust outside, and if you handle them carefully next fall after you house them you will have no trouble. Plant it about August 10 to 20, or even earlier if your plants are of good size earlier.

A. F. J. Baur.

CARNATION NORWAY.

I note in Review of April 9th that W. P. R. made inquiry as to value of carnation Norway and I would herein like to state my success with this variety.

From five hundred plants planted in bench October 1st, I cut during November, December and January about five hundred blooms. In February they produced one thousand flowers and in March fifteen hundred blooms were taken from the above five hundred plants. I am now cutting about the same as in first three months.

SOIL FOR VEGETABLES.

Please give me directions for making up a soil that will be best for raising vegetables, such as cucumbers, tomatoes, etc., in the greenhouse. A. V. D.

The usual compost heap that is put up for roses, chrysanthemums and so on, namely about 4 parts of fibry loam or turf to 1 part of cow manure, will grow any kind of vegetables under glass during the winter. The heap may be made up any time during the summer and cut down when needed late in the fall. In the case of quick growing crops such as lettuce, beans, etc., the fertility of the soil during the winter is kept up by the addition of a light dressing of rotted manure after each crop. Where the crop is not changed all winter, as would be the case with cucumbers or tomatoes, liquid fertilizer made from horse or cow manure may be used once a week when the vines are in bearing.

Soil is not of such paramount importance in growing vegetables under glass, the only thing being to see that it is rich enough in plant food so that the plants may make a quick growth and not get stunted.

Some little discretion of course is needed and I may add, experience. Thus, the soil can hardly be made too rich for growing cauliflower, while in growing tomatoes only a moderate amount of fertilizer should be added to the soil until the fruit has set on the first bunch. A quick soft growth in the case of tomatoes would mean a poor crop of fruit. With common sense and proper temperature one can raise any crop of vegetables under glass from corn to egg plants. C. H. T.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The cut flower market is much quieter than last week. Easter weddings are over and social activity is being transferred to outdoor gatherings where flowers cultivated under glass are less used. The outdoor blossoms are to be had in variety. Add to this warmer weather and there is little wonder that prices have fallen. Despite all these facts immense quantities of flowers are sold daily at pretty fair figures, especially when something really nice is wanted for a festive occasion.

Beauties are fine, plentiful and extra good value for the money. Kaiserin is getting into form. Other roses are all good, especially for the season. Carnations are down in price, but they are moving pretty well. The cool nights have kept violets better than was expected. A good many of fine quality are still coming in. A few hot days and nights would wind them up. Valley and sweet peas will miss the weddings, which have kept them going so well until now. Daffodils, white and yellow daisies, mignonette and asparagus are all of good quality and in fair demand. A great many lilies have been used lately, Easter lilies chiefly for the weddings, and calla lilies chiefly, I suppose, for sadder ceremonies.

Plants.

The chief business in plants now is in young stuff for next summer's planting. Among roses there is a good demand for all varieties of well-grown stock. The private gardeners, who buy heavily, are critical. A poorly grown plant they will pass by with scorn. There is some nicely grown stock about the city. All of it will bring satisfactory prices with the possible exception of Brides and Maids, which are apt to sell cheap. Perles are hard to get at any price. The demand for 5 and 6-inch hardy roses for outdoor planting is in full swing. This city is proud of several specialists in this line, who annually produce quantities of really fine stuff at moderate cost.

While on this subject it is not out of place to say that the coming of the National Rose Society to this city next spring is confidently expected to bring out a great display of pot roses in bloom. Several private and commercial growers, whose names are a guarantee of high quality, have said they would exhibit. Dr. Huey's illustrated talk on many different varieties of the rose will be a very important feature of this meeting.

Notes.

Joseph Heacock has buckled on his armor once more, daily marshalling his forces in the good fight. (N. B.—The Review hopes Mr. Heacock will not object to this note; fully half a dozen gentlemen inspired it.)

The representatives of the bulb growers and exporters of Holland are leaving our shores homeward bound. Most of them have booked a lot of orders for plants and bulbs. It is said that late frosts have seriously damaged the Dutch hyacinths.

George R. Golden, of Reed & Keller's, was in the city lately.

John Burton has nearly completed his two houses on the new (Queen street) place. Each house is 135 feet long, which, being added to present houses, 150 feet long, make two houses each 285x26 feet.

George E. Campbell, of Flourtown, has been sending in some nice Brides and Maids to Leo Niessen, the crop at Easter having been especially heavy. It is understood that Mr. Campbell will abandon carnations and devote his entire place to roses next season.

A. L. McNaughton, of Norfolk, Va., was a visitor lately.

Indications point to a heavy trade in soft wooded plants, beginning next week and gradually increasing in volume until Decoration Day.

The display of outdoor bulbous flowers is gorgeous this season. The cool weather has colored the flowers beautifully.

J. Harry Bartram, of Lansdowne, is shipping some good Kaiserins to S. S. Pennock. Mr. Bartram succeeded in bringing a heavy crop of this rose nicely hardened at Easter.

Robert Jamison is now assisting his brother William with their place at Chelton avenue and Musgrove street, Germantown.

The Flower Market has handled a great many calla lilies lately.

Gardens of hardy perennials, each variety planted in a bed by itself, have been very popular this season. Many of these gardens are laid out in geometrical designs and planted to grow a succession of flowers from early spring until late fall.

William Robertson, of Quakertown, had a well-grown hydrangea on exhibition in Henry F. Michell's store this week. The plant could hardly have been grown from Michell's seed, though stranger things have happened, but it must have been grown from a Michell cutting.

Walter Whetstone will reopen the pipe question before the Florists' Club next Tuesday evening. Whetstone promises some practical demonstrations, which should make the meeting very full of interest. A large attendance of members is expected despite the busy season.

Mr. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., accompanied by his wife, will sail for Europe on his annual purchasing trip on May 9. Phil.

Market Conditions.

The condition here has been quite South African for the seven days previous to date of this writing, and I "regret to state" that the growers get Boer-ed unmercifully, because, although much material was sold at our schedule prices, large quantities went upon the street at cut figures. Everything seemed overplentiful during part of the week, even to violets, many of which were particularly good for the time of year. Wednesday was a surprise on the carnation question, bringing in more blooms than all that had been in since Easter, and the supply has kept up fairly well since.

The biggest surprise during the week was the assignment of J. M. Cohen, of Chapman Place. He was regarded as quite sound. No particulars are as yet known, but fears are entertained that the liabilities are quite heavy and widely scattered.

C. P. Grimmer is utilizing the rather slack condition of the times by putting in an elegant new mahogany and glass front to his store, which is going to give him added window facilities as well as general improvement.

Elegant new teams are coming out among the retailers and growers now and then, and you have not seen the latest unless you have caught a glimpse of that of E. N. Peiree & Sons.

Much talk is being made about a certain amount of retailing that has been done by stall holders at the Columbus Avenue Co-Operative Market. This matter will regulate itself shortly, because it has been done only by those who need the wholesale trade of the city most; smaller growers not remaining in town long enough to catch retail business. Those few large growers will very soon be brought to terms, I think, because the city does not really overflow with retail business more than five or six days in the year.

Our old friend George W. Marshall, formerly of Woodlawn, has removed from South Sudbury to Montrose, becoming a neighbor to N. F. McCarthy. He will once more engage in the flower growing industry at his new home.

It is learned that the death of Michael McGee, a well known florist of Chelsea, occurred upon Saturday last. He contracted a severe cold at a ball game on Patriots' day, which developed into such a severe case of pneumonia that he could not recover from its effects. He was a strictly upright man, much respected by those who knew him, and will be missed in his circle of acquaintances. J. S. Manter.

NEW YORK.

Last week was about as full of unseasonable weather and discouraging experiences as could be desired by the man who takes a gloomy view of things and has not the courage to hope and wait till the clouds roll by. The actual volume of business for the week was decidedly encouraging. Prices of cut flowers naturally slumped in value from the opening cost, as indicated in our last report, and before the week was over the very finest Beauties sent to the city could be had in quantities at as low a price as $10 per hundred. The same retrogression was evident as to Brides and Maids, and, in fact, in almost every line a considerable decrease in values was noticeable. As the week closed the temperature became more springlike until on Saturday the retail windows, the singing of the robins, the gorgeous colorings of the tulip beds in all the parks and the universal opening of the leaves demonstrated the actual arrival of the springtime. Everything new betokens the existence of the long-delayed season, and the exodus of "the four hundred" to Europe has begun. Steamers are filled with flowers, to speed the departures of the "Carnegies" and the "Morgans," and the weddings and the dinners increase in numbers and decorative beauty as the May time appears. All the florists' windows are filled with spring bloom of every kind, and forsythia and Japan quince and dogwood and magnolia are all in bloom.

The great event of the week was the opening of the new Palace of Finance on Wall street, the decorations for which were elaborate and beautiful. Every room and every stairway from six stories below the street to ten above were ablaze with blooming plants and baskets of roses and evergreen screens, the best the market could afford, and supplied carte blanche for the occasion by the fortunate decorators, Dunne & Co. of West Thirtieth street. The aggregate amount of wealth represented at the opening ceremonies at the Exchange amounted to over twenty billions of dollars. I never expect to see as much "gold" in one room again until I get to the country where the streets are made of gold. It takes a fellow of a very cheerful disposition to sit amidst all this splendor with only thirty cents in his pocket and not feel envious. The most interesting feature of the opening was the prayer of the Bishop, in which he forgot to supplicate for a constant addition to the number of "lambs" for shearing purposes, but possibly this part of the prayer was unnecessary, as the lamb crop has always been ample in the past and the shoals of "suckers" seem to run larger every season.

All the big retail stores have been doing a lot of decorating since Easter. April 29th, McConnell has the Riker-Riker wedding, at which the bride will carry a gardenia shower bouquet. On May 6 he has the Fearons-Skillin wedding at the Sherman Square Hotel, utilizing the immense main dining-room for the purpose. The canopy will be of asparagus and white lilac. An immense arch will be built, covered with asparagus and white roses, and an artificial aisle constructed with decorative posts covered artistically with the same variety of decoration. The bride's bouquet will be of lily of the valley and white orchids. He has also the Anhalt-Hene wedding at Delmonico's and a large reception at the Masonic Temple, and the farewell dinner and departure of the Carnegies draw also heavily upon his supplies and the best efforts of his artists. Several of these functions yielded in the neighborhood of $500.

Hanft Bros. had a very unique display at the dinner of the New York Bankers' Association in honor of Secretary Gage at the New York Athletic Club. A model of the United States Treasury was a feature. The entire floral decoration was of Bridesmaids and the room was banked with palms on every side. The flowers on the tables were arranged to represent the dollar mark. The whole affair was considered very creditable to this house.

The Rosary will leave its present quarters May 1 for its new store on Thirty-fourth street, between Madison and Fifth avennes, where an elaborate place is being fitted up with an evident view to permanency. Mr. Troy is sparing no expense to make this worthy of the fine family trade which he commands among "the four hundred," and will have on the roof a grand conservatory which will give him long-needed facilities. The "opening" will doubtless be an elaborate affair.

Mr. Joyner, manager of the "Rosemary Roseries," was in Baltimore last week attending the funeral of his brother, who was accidentally killed. This firm has leased their present quarters on Fifth avenue for another year.

Bradshaw & Hartman, on Twenty-eighth street, are handling a good many developed fern balls at present, and disposing of them at the very reasonable rate of $50 a hundred. The undeveloped fern ball business this year has not met the expectations of the wholesalers, and, through the enormous sales made by the department stores everywhere of this once favorite novelty it has become as common, and almost as unappreciated, as a Kansas sunflower. An indication of its deterioration may be gathered from the fact that the balls were selling in nearly all the large drygoods stores as low as 20 cents each soon after they were placed upon the market.

On the 13th of May the Horticultural Society of New York will hold its annual meeting at the New York Botanical Garden. At the same time an exhibition will be given in the Museum Building, and prizes for cut flowers and plants awarded, amongst them the $50 prize for the best horticultural novelty.

On Saturday of this week stockholders of the Cut Flower Exchange will hold their regular meeting at their offices in the Coogan Building.

Dr. Britton is back from his exploring trip to Cuba with some trophies in the way of choice native plants, to be added to the Botanical Garden.

Charles H. Atkins of Madison has severed his connection with the Twombly Estate there and has joined his brother, Mr. Fred Atkins, of the firm of Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., taking charge of the landscape department of this progressive house. The importations of this firm this year are the largest in their history and include everything of importance in the nursery line, with specimens that have never been surpassed in fineness and beauty. Their trained Buxus and Topiary plants are exceptionally interesting and include every design from animals to men of war. They are now manufacturing their own tubs and wooden vases, and during the busy season have nearly a hundred employees.

Elliott's auction rooms are centers of great interest nowadays, on Tuesdays and Fridays, this firm enjoying up to date this year almost a monopoly in their line—Cleary & Co. not yet having begun their regular sales.

If Fred W. Kelsey succeeds in acquiring the object of his present ambition he will soon be a park commissioner for the Oranges. His interest in parks has extended over many years and has won the indorsement of the best citizens where he resides, so that there is little doubt of his success.

The Outing Souvenir commemorating the New York Club's celebration on July 1 is about completed, and nearly all the prominent members of the club are donating liberally towards the fund for prizes. President Troy has given $25, which will be divided amongst the seven ladies making the highest scores in their bowling match. Mr. Dunne has given a $10 rustic arm chair, which will go to the married man over forty-five years who can run fifty yards the fastest. Ford Bros. are giving a handsome prize to the fellow who can jump the farthest, and Alex. McConnell will supply the five men who win the tug-of-war contest with the "sinews of war," which the winners will be apt to need. Beaulieu has given $5 worth of his best pansy seed to the fellow who can pitch quoits most accurately. Gibbons has given a prize for the "all-fours race." The "egg-race" prize is a fancy work basket, from Mr. Kreshover. The prize in the "potato race for ladies only" will be given by the Florists' Exchange. The winner of the race for girls under sixteen will be rewarded with a bunch of ribbons from Lion & Wertheimer. Walter Sheridan gives the prize for the girls' race under eleven, and John V. Phillips the prize for the boys' race under eleven. Treasurer Weatheread, the girls' race under eight, and Secretary Young, the boys' race under eight. Vaughan's seed store will present the prizes to the winners in the baseball game, Benedicts vs. Bachelors, and the fat men's race will be cared for by The Florists' Review. Another prize is a copy of the American Carnation, offered by Mr. C. W. Ward. These annual outings tend to harmony and are very restful and beneficial. The boat ride, music and the dinner, added to all the games that have been here indicated, will make this a very pleasant day in the club's history.

The interest in the great convention at Milwaukee is growing daily, and the number who will attend from New York will undoubtedly be large. In fact, it seems as though everybody is laying plans to enjoy this great yearly festival of the S. A. F. O. H., and the special train that carries the eastern contingent will have to have more cars than the one that took the boys to and "put them off at Buffalo."

Miss M. A. Vail, librarian of the New York Botanical Gardens, sailed last week for Europe to collect books and specimens and to try and arrange exchange systems between the gardens of Paris and New York.

A unique decoration was given at Sherry's last week by the Wall street bulls and bears inside a floral globe which was made to represent the earth. The floor was carpeted with ferns, a great oval table occupied the center of the earth, and an immense bank of blooming plants the center of the table. The floral display within was novel and beautiful, interspersed with an abundance of electric lamps and floral telephones, while live lambs and a live bull and live bear were chained outside.

A wedding of interest was that of the daughter of W. S. Allen, the wholesale florist.

The greenhouses at Woodside, owned by A. S. Burns, have been leased by Suzuki & Iida.

A. Herrmann sails for Europe April 30 by the steamship Grosser Kurfuerst on an extended trip to buy novelties for the fall trade. J. Austin Shaw.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

The supply and demand in cut flowers is about equal. The quality of the stock that is received is especially fine, particularly the good grades of Maid and Bride roses, and the quantity of these was sufficient to meet the heavy demands of the past week.

A surplus of the poorer grades of carnations was very noticeable. The better grades, such as fancy white, red and pink, were scarce and readily sold at good prices.

Beauties are plentiful and are offered at low prices. Lilies are somewhat of a glut and can be bought in large lots at your own price. Sweet peas, mignonette, pansies and swainsonas are plentiful enough and are selling at reasonable prices.

Various Items.

Last week we experienced very cool weather, the thermometer registering below the freezing point every night.

Local gardeners are reporting heavy losses, early fruits are all damaged. M. C. Dunlevy, one of our largest fruit growers in this section, reports that cherries and strawberries are badly injured.

Randolph & McClements had the decorations at the bride's home for the Thaw-Yarmouth wedding. Quantities of white lilacs, Bridesmaids, yellow iris (Spanish) and yellow daisies were used. The decorations were beautiful, expensive and lavish. Breitenstein & Flemm had the decoration for the wedding breakfast at the Union Club. Valley, gardenias and moss roses were used. A. N. Smith furnished the decoration for the Americus Club's banquet.

The Rose & Carnation Co., Bakerstown, Pa., are shipping quantities of very choice Maids, Brides and Beauties to the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co.

Theodore F. Beckert is cutting quite heavily of sweet peas, and the quality is superb.

A statement was filed in our local courts in the case of Julia D. Hoffmeyer against the Mansfield Coal Co., for $25,000 damages to her property and greenhouses. The coal company had been mining coal beneath the farm which the plaintiff owns. A great part of the farm is sinking and other damage has been done.

I am in receipt of a letter announcing the death of Mrs. J. E. Black, of Grove City, Pa. The interment took place Sunday, April 26.

A trolley car demolished a wagon belonging to John Foss, of Etna. John has made a claim and we all hope he will be repaid for his loss. Hoo-Hoo.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Conditions have changed but little from last week. Trade is holding up well and the supply has not increased to any extent. Prices seem a trifle easier on roses in spots, and with many $6.00 is the top figure, though others hold the best select at $7.00 and $8.00. Carnations are still well cleaned up, but very few reach into the fancy class. The great bulk of the good stock commands $3.00. Some batches of very inferior flowers are jobbed off at less than $2.00, but the last named figure is the bottom for anything presentable.

Valley is scarce, and forced tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are practically past for the season. Some outdoor grown tulips are arriving. A few scattering violets are seen, but they are too few to be quotable. Smilax is very scarce, and might almost be said to be unobtainable.

Tuesday the sun was bright and the temperature high. Should such weather conditions continue, the supply of the staples would probably be considerably increased in a short time.

The demand has continued steady and market conditions are very satisfactory on the whole.

Various Items.

The hyacinths are now in bloom in the parks and the tulips will soon be in their full glory.

A fine collection of gloxinias is now in full bloom in the conservatory at Lincoln Park.

Head Gardener Stromback of Lincoln Park has recovered from another attack of pneumonia. This was his sixth battle with this disease.

Recent visitors: S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia; W. H. Drake, Kenosha, Wis.; C. W. Keller, Woodmere, Mich.

The bowlers who visited Joliet last Saturday evening can not say enough in praise of the hospitality shown them by Mr. James Hartshorne and the other Joliet people. A report of the games appears elsewhere in this issue.

A. L. Randall is now established on the second floor of the building at 19 and 21 Randolph street, where he has an immense floor space. A huge new ice box will supplement the ones formerly used.

Mr. Lloyd Vaughan started Monday on his annual spring trip in the interests of E. H. Hunt.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Trade is still holding out finely and everybody reports doing a first-class business. Prices are holding up remarkably well and there is not nearly enough good stock to fill the demands.

Flowers of all kinds save Harrisii lilies are scarce. In roses, Brides especially are short. Maids and Gates are a trifle better, but still far short of the demand. Liberties are increasing in number, but still there are not enough to go around. American Beauties are coming in in large quantities, but there is a good demand for them, and the supply is none too large.

Carnations are scarcer than usual.

Harrisii lilies are very plentiful and the price is now down to $8 and $10 per hundred, but notwithstanding the large supply they sell out very well and are pretty good property.

There has been quite a call for lily of the valley lately, and the supply is very limited. Many orders had to be turned down. Other bulbous stock is practically out of the market. Violets also are a thing of the past. Sweet peas are scarce and sell well. Daisies, too, go quickly.

Various Items.

H. M. Altick, of Dayton, O., who was elected justice of the peace at the last election, had quite an experience with burglars last week. Coming home in the evening from the city, he was surprised to find three men in his house. He was unarmed, but managed to frighten the thieves away, but not until they had fired upon him a few times, several of the bullets passing through his clothing, but he was not injured.

On June 1 the Ohio Cut Flower Co. will remove from its present quarters to the northwest corner of Third and Main streets.

Charles Murphy is rapidly getting things into shape to erect a plant at Murphyville. He will build two houses, 21x100, and a propagating house. Carnations will be grown exclusively.

J. Evans and his brother were in the city during the past week. We did not get to see much of them, as they were busily engaged fitting the city's new exhibition greenhouse at Eden park with their challenge ventilators.

I regret to report the death of Mrs. Kelly, wife of R. A. Kelly, the well-known retail florist of this city, which occurred Sunday. Mrs. Kelly has been ailing for some time and her death was expected. The sympathy of the craft is extended to Mr. Kelly and his two daughters.

Mr. Ford, of New York, was a visitor.

C. J. Ohmer.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The cut flower business was anything but good the past week and nearly everybody was complaining. The weather, too, was very disagreeable—cold and rain nearly every day. About all the business done was funeral work among the downtown florists and weddings by the West End florists. Business should be good this week, owing to the dedication of the World's Fair, with such distinguished visitors as President Roosevelt, ex-President Cleveland, and prominent men from all over the country. We hear that quite a number of orders have already been placed for decorations of plants and cut flowers for the reception that will be tendered them. The city is already looking gay, all the downtown business houses having their fronts decorated. The great concourse of people that will be attracted by the dedication should surely be of great benefit to our trade as well as others.

The consignments the past week were very heavy and stock of all kinds is very plentiful. Carnations, which up to a week ago had held up very well, are feeling the effects of the overstocked market. The quality is very good in all varieties, but the quantity compelled the wholesalers to lower the price on them to $15 per 1,000. A few extra fine fancies are still held at $4 per 100.

All three wholesalers are now well supplied with extra fine Beauties, with thousands in the lower grades, for which the demand was not so good. A great many of them were left over. Other roses are selling slowly and the market is very much overstocked with all grades. Signs are again displayed downtown, which read "Roses and Carnations, 25 cents per dozen," and good stock at that. The wholesalers claim that they have to dispose of the stock at cheap prices or dump it.

Sweet peas are of fine quality and are good sellers, especially the light shades. The price on them is still up and will remain so until they become more plentiful, which won't be long.

Lilies are most plentiful and callas are going begging at $6 per 100, but Harrisiis are holding at $10 with the demand only fair. Roman and Dutch hyacinths and paper whites are over and out of the market, and so are violets. Valley is still good in this market with fair demand.

Some extra fine adiantum is in the market from an Eastern grower, which is handled by Ellis. Smilax is very scarce and the demand for it is big, with none to be had at any of the houses the past week. So roses, carnations, sweet peas and lilies are about the makeup of the florists' window.

Notes.

On Friday last Mayor Wells sent in his slate of appointments for the heads of the different city departments, but failed to appoint the park commissioners to the great disappointment of several florists about town who are out for Pape's place as superintendent of the parks. The mayor has intimated right along that Commissioner Ridgely would stay in office, and in that case the probability is that Freddie Pape will also remain over, as both Ridgely and Pape are republicans.

Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, was defeated for mayor of his city last week by only a few votes. Better luck next time, Fred.

Trade in plants was not very good the past week. The disagreeable weather was against it, but a few fine days and the prospects are good that this week will again fill up their stands and keep them busy.

The seed houses along Third and Fourth streets are all very busy at the present time and report a big increase over last year. Mail orders especially are very heavy.

The Reissen Floral Co., on Broadway, has been very busy the last few weeks with decorations and funeral work. They have a number of receptions for hotels booked for this week, which will keep them busy all the week.

August Schuerman, of the Schuerman Floral Co., had nearly all the contracts for decorating the big store fronts downtown.

At the first meeting of the new city council and house of delegates the past week a great many American Beauties were used and the display of cut flowers was very attractive.

Frank M. Ellis is receiving daily some extra fine Mme. Chatenay roses, which sell well.

Visitors the past week were S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, and M. Bauman, of Richter & Baumann, and Wm. Trillow, of Chicago. J. J. B.

Franklin, Pa.—W. T. Bell reports: "Easter business shows a decided increase over last year, and stock sold was all of our own growing, and in good condition. Lilies were the best we ever had. The demand in flowering plants was for lilies, azaleas, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, cinerarias and a few geraniums; and sparingly for rhodendrons and roses, with no call for lilacs. In flowers, for carnations, roses, lilies, lily of the valley, tulips, daffodils, callas, mignonette and assorted lots. The demand varies somewhat from year to year. Last season we had too many hyacinths, and this not quite enough. Nothing seems to suit as well for a cheap plant as a short hyacinth in a 4-inch pot. The demand, no doubt, varies also with the locality, but succeeding years convince us that the florist who has a good supply of well-flowered plants of longiflorum lilies, azaleas, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and cinerarias; with good medium-sized palms and ferns; and in flowers, carnations, roses and lilies, may look forward to the coming of Easter with equanimity. The inevitable Mrs. Pocketbook may call him up to say: 'Mr. Flowers, you told me the lilies I ordered (each with eight flowers on) were twenty-five cents apiece; and here you have charged them at two dollars on the bill?' but he should keep his temper and make the best explanation of the robbery that he can, and then go to answer the other telephone."

North Adams, Mass.—A. H. Darling says Easter trade was very good and nearly everything was cleaned up at fair prices. Florists generally held together on prices. One cut prices on lilies 5 cents per flower, and on roses $1 per dozen. There were not enough carnations for all orders. Carnations sold for 75 cents per dozen; roses, $3; lilies, $3; violets, $2 per 100; azaleas, $1.50 to $3; tulips and daffodils, 60 cents per dozen. Geo. H. Phelps, the Blackinton florist, as usual had fancy Flora Hill and Lawson carnations, which brought good prices.

Seed Trade News.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Germain Seed and Plant Co. reports trade this spring as far ahead of last year's business, both wholesale and retail, with no trouble to obtain the advance prices ruling on scarce items.

The advanced price for onions during the past two weeks has increased the demand for onion seed, and this has helped out some seedsmen who were long on this item.

Chicago—The Leonard Seed Co.'s insurance has been satisfactorily adjusted and business is going on as usual at the new location—79 and 81 East Kinzie street.

The backward season has retarded plantings for onion sets around Chicago, and this will have a tendency to shorten the acreage.

Chicago—Albert McCullough, Cincinnati, and Mr. Robinson, representing Jerome B. Rice & Co., were visitors last Saturday.

Portland, Ore.—The Portland Seed Co. has purchased the stock of B. Lamberson's Sons and the latter are no longer in business.

As the result of the cold weather counter trade has been below the average up to date.

The weather has been cool (frost two mornings in the past week), but with more sunlight and favorable conditions for cut flowers. Trade keeps fairly active and supplies are on the increase, decidedly. A decline in prices, naturally, is to be looked for. Carnations have kept up in price wonderfully. Outdoor stuff promises to be short; in many locations lilac buds were destroyed.

EASTON, PA.—Arthur L. Raub & Co. report an excellent Easter trade. Cut flowers were scarce and brought fancy prices. Bulbous stock sold well at good prices. Lilies brought as high as 20 cents a flower. Azaleas sold at $1 to $3.

Twenty was the highest quotation for Beauties a week ago, and few reached that figure. Towards the close of the week the very finest could be had at $8 to $10. The quantity and quality of stock of all kinds is excellent, and the lower prices are the natural result of the advancing season. Outdoor lilacs, Japan quince, cherry and plum are in the market. Violets are "on their last legs." Beauties are far in excess of demand. The spring has been chilly and the unseasonable weather protracted, but summer is near.

KANSAS CITY.

Business has kept up with the supply of stock in cut flowers since Easter. Everybody is doing a nice early spring business, and there have been some very good orders for funerals lately. Everybody is getting his share of this kind of work.

The weather has been too cool to do much outdoor planting, and the greenhouse men are kicking because they say it will all come with a rush and everybody will want his work done first.

The department stores are again selling roses and carnations on Saturdays. In fact, they are selling everything in our line—ferns, plants and all kinds of bulbs. It was reported that one firm had a shipment of 5,000 fern balls to be put on sale soon. L. M. S.

DES MOINES, IA.

Easter trade was far in advance of former years with prices about as last year. Lilies led in demand with roses and carnations following in order named. Plants were not much called for, many hyacinths in pots being offered with poor sales. All the stores (with the exception of one firm that had laid in a tremendous stock) sold out.

Mr. Jarritt, for many years with J. F. Marshall, has gone to North Carolina where he will make his home.

Mr. W. Dittmer has accepted a situation with the Des Moines Water Works Co. They will build a greenhouse 20x50 and will beautify their grounds of about two acres. We are glad to see corporations thus improving their surroundings and the boys all welcome Mr. Dittmer to our city. J. T. D. F.

Fremont, Neb.—C. H. Green says: "Had a most satisfactory Easter all the way through. Good weather gave us an ample supply of cut flowers without shipping in any; money value about 35 per cent greater than last year. They did not seem to care for plants except Harrisii and callas (outside of church decorations, of course), but everything in the way of cut flowers looked good to them. Carnations one-third higher than last year, otherwise prices the same as then. Cleaned up everything but filled all orders. Most profitable Easter we have seen."

Lincoln, Neb.—Chapin Bros. report Easter trade as great and all they could attend to. Lilies had the call in plants, with azaleas, hydrangeas, spireas, pans of daffs and hyacinths running in a bunch. Palms and Boston ferns sold well, with plenty to go around. Carnations led in cut flowers, with a short supply all the week, selling at 75 cents to $1 a dozen. Roses were in good supply, as well as daffs, violets, valley and tulips. Taken as a whole trade will probably run 30 per cent larger than a year ago. Weather was warm and pleasant, though quite windy. The other florists were all busy and presume their trade was as satisfactory to them as ours was to us.

Elmira, N. Y.—H. N. Hoffman says the supply of plants and flowers for Easter was just about equal to the demand, except home grown violets, which were scarce. Prices were slightly better and the total sales show an increase of perhaps ten per cent. Lilies, azaleas and Rambler roses sold out clean.

Rochester, N. Y.—The greenhouses of John Dobbertin were badly damaged by fire April 20.

WATER LILIES.

Nelumbiums, Victorias, Etc.

We are Headquarters for Water Lilies and Aquatic Plants of all kinds.

Intending planters will gain a long start and early blooms by procuring dormant tubers of the tender Nymphaeas now, and starting same indoors, thus securing strong plants for planting at proper season, and also save the expense of heavy express charges. We shall be pleased to furnish estimates and offer practical suggestions to those intending planting either large or small ponds.

SOW NOW seeds of Victorias, Nelumbiums, and Nymphaeas.

JOHN BROD, - - Niles Center, Ill.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Business since Easter has been very good and prices on all cut flowers have kept up to almost the same as during Easter week. Funeral work has been plentiful enough to keep the florists in general busy. There has also been quite a number of weddings.

Brides and Maids are coming in very fine and are bringing from 8 to 12½ cents. Carnations are bringing from $3 to $6 per hundred, and not enough to go around at that. Quite a great number of lilies are left from Easter and are moving very readily at from 8 to 10 cents. American Beauties, long, run from $4 to $6 per dozen; medium, $3; short, $1 to $1.50. Budding plants of all descriptions move very slowly on account of the backward season; we are still having frosty mornings. Good rose bushes are selling very well, with plenty of good stock to go around.

A great many of the growers are very busy at present planting out their carnations. The season at present is very favorable for planting.

The following gentlemen were in the city this week: M. Rice, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; Paul Berkowitz, of the firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; Hermann Baartman, of Holland, and F. Michell, of Michell & Co., Philadelphia. F. H. Kramer.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

A Hail Storm.

On Sunday, April 19, a very severe hail storm visited this section and considerable damage was done to greenhouses. The hailstones were as large as walnuts and a great deal of glass was broken. Nanz & Neuner were the heavy losers. The damage done to their greenhouses will foot up to $1,500. C. W. Reimers, at Crescent Hill, was also damaged to a great extent, loss from broken glass and plants being about $500. Julius Buser, out on the workhouse road, lost a considerable amount of glass. Across the river, at New Albany, the firm of John G. Bettman & Sons lost nearly all their glass, the damage amounting to $1,000. A. Rasmusson suffered very heavily. The glass in his palmhouse was nearly all broken. Trinler, across the street, was also a heavy loser. Molck, of Jeffersonville, was a heavy loser, having had lots of glass broken.

Miss Violet Rudy, daughter of T. B. Rudy, is up and about again after a spell of sickness.

We are having nothing but rain and cloudy weather. Business since Easter has been somewhat quiet.

Hy. Lichtefeld.

ERIE, PA

Trade in and about Erie was very good during Easter week; not any better than previous years, but fully as good.

John V. Laver has removed from his old and crowded store, 705 State, to 725 State street. He reports having done a tremendous business.

The S. Alfred Barr Co.'s wholesale trade was unsurpassed; their shipping alone amounted to several carloads.

Schluraff Floral Co.'s store presented a very attractive appearance and as usual they received a goodly portion of the trade. V.

FINE HEALTHY STOCK, $10.00 per 100.

EMIL GLAUBER, Mont Clair, Colo.

ST. PAUL.

The spring has been cold and backward and the leaves are just appearing on the trees now. Spring trade in our line has scarcely commenced, consequently those who do not handle seeds, bulbs and other side lines have experienced a little lull in sales since Easter.

There is a fair supply of good stock, though carnations are scarce. Prices have declined somewhat, though good roses easily sell at $1.50 and $2 per dozen at retail. Carnations are retailing at $1 to $1.50 per dozen for fancy blooms. Funeral flowers have been in active demand and shipping trade has been very fine.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the N. W. Manufacturers' Association has decided to give a chrysanthemum exhibition November 10th to 13th, the place to be decided later. Prizes aggregating $500 or more will be distributed. A meeting of all florists in the state who are interested in the show is called for Monday evening, May 4th, at the Chamber of Commerce, to arrange for the distribution of the prizes. A full attendance is requested. All who wish to make an exhibit should apply at once to Mrs. A. P. Moss, 313 Laurel avenue, for entry blanks.

The Minneapolis florists all report Easter sales far ahead of previous records. Donaldson & Co. handled several thousand blooming plants and had an extra fine display of lilies. Carl Johnson, of the Powers Merc. Co., reports big sales, especially in blooming plants.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. had an extra fine stock of lilies, azaleas, etc., which were all sold early in the week. Mr. Monson has his new houses completed and filled with spring bedding stock. They will be planted to carnations early and should grow fine stock.

X. Y. Z.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Easter trade exceeded all expectations, with a general clean-up of all good stock. The weather was perfect and for four days, including Easter Sunday, the sun shone as bright as in June (something rare for Oregon at this season of the year), and instead of using row boats and private yachts the public were able to go shopping in their automobiles and carriages. The balmy, springlike days in March brought on a good supply of flowers, and all home-grown stock was of the highest grade. Violets were scarce and saw their finish Easter Sunday. All bulbous stock was finely done, especially Easter lilies and hyacinths. In roses Testout, Carnot and La France were on in splendid crop and retailed at from $3 to $5 per dozen. Very few novelties or expensive arrangements were noticed. Buyers had the opportunity to get the best at prices slightly in advance of those asked during the winter months.

H. J. M.

Paterson, N. J.—Edward Seeery has moved into his new quarters at 184 Main street. It is very handsomely fitted up.

Shawnee, Okla.—J. K. Postma, the florist, while sinking a well, struck a stratum of a fine quality of red lead, and uses it for putty. The product comes out in hard chunks, but when soaked in oil becomes pliant and adhesive.

MONTREAL.

Easter trade this year, although satisfactory, was not a record breaking one. Quite a number of flowers and plants were left over, judging from the trade in general. The weather was bright and mild, making delivery pleasant and easy.

In the plant supply lilies, as last year, led far ahead. Crimson Ramblers also were good favorites. Pots of valley and spireas came next, followed by hydrangeas and hyacinths. By the way, a lot of lilacs, just immense, but too limited in quantity, found ready buyers. Daffodils, in good demand before, were not looked at this year.

In cut flowers it is needless to say that roses were first and last. Carnations also went well, and like the roses, were good and in abundance. Valley, some late paper whites, and other bulbous stock went well enough. Mignonette and swainsonas were the only green available.

Mr. Joseph Bennett had his retail place just packed with stock. His lot of longiflorums was the best in the city and came on just in due time. Some A1 Ramblers and hydrangeas were soon disposed of, as were also his dainty pans of valley.

Messrs. P. McKenna & Son had some lilacs that were just immense. It is a pity they didn't have four times as many. They report a complete cleaning out.

Mr. S. S. Bain had a large stock filling his two stores. His hydrangeas, lilacs and viburnums were very good.

At Messrs. Hall & Robinson's a mixed stock worthy of the good reputation of the young firm was divided among the retailers. By the way, I am told that Mr. W. Hall is tired of single life. When will the wedding bells rejoice, Willie?

Fritz Bahr and Anton Then accompanied the Chicago party and it is needless to say things "tooted" right along. It is understood that Mr. Bahr has opened a glassware store since his return home.

Clearbrook, Wash.—Geo. Gibbs now has two acres in Holland bulbs and all are doing well. He finds he can grow from 500,000 to 1,000,000 tulips and from 550,000 to 850,000 narcissi on an acre. He sowed some crocus seed three years ago and the resulting bulbs bloomed this spring. All Holland bulbs seed heavily in this climate.

RICHMOND, IND.

Richmond Florists' Club.

The members of the Richmond Florists' Club met in regular monthly session at the ventilator works of John A. Evans, and notwithstanding that spring business is now well on there was a large number present.

After routine business the subject of "Carnations" was taken up for discussion, this subject having been assigned at a previous meeting, and all the growers present gave their experience and observation of the different varieties they had grown this season, resulting in a very profitable and instructive discussion.

After the discussion John marshalled his forces and a very substantial lunch was forthcoming, and as he never does anything by halves you can imagine that we partook of an elegant spread, with cigars to burn all during the meeting.

The new B. K. & B. greenhouses are now well under way and will no doubt be completed in ample time for early planting inside. In fact, Richmond has good prospects of becoming the Floral City of Indiana, as New Castle is the Rose City. There is a movement on foot to absorb another greenhouse establishment with a capital stock of $20,000, the greater part of which is now subscribed. The members of the club are very much interested in this project, and some of them have spoken very kindly of it at no less a gathering than the representative business men's club (the Commercial Club), and commended it very highly, all of which is very gratifying to those having the matter in charge.

The Richmond Florists' Club now stands adjourned till the third Monday in October, to meet at the greenhouses of Chessman & Schepman.

H. C. Chessman, Secretary.

"Thripscide"

Greenhouse Fumigating Powder

Is the newest and best article on the market to-day for the complete destruction of all insects that infest Greenhouses or Conservatories, being a special boon to Rose and Beauty growers and prepared particularly for the destruction of Greenfly and Thrips. There is nothing injurious in it to plant life, even the most delicate fern. It is especially recommended for Beauties, Roses, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, Lilies, Smilax, Asparagus, Palms, Ferns, etc., and we claim that insects will be entirely eradicated when the houses are thoroughly fumigated with the powder. It is put up as follows:

1 lb. Tin Can	$ .25
5 lb. Tin Can	1 00
25 lb. Sealed Box	4 50
100 lb. Sealed Box	16.50

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

MAY SUGGESTIONS.

One can scarcely plan a decoration for this month without thinking of May poles and May baskets, and as for their artistic possibilities, no better subjects could be invented.

The May pole is a good starter for a number of plans, from a table decoration to a scheme sufficient for the interior of a large assembly room. For the former there is a suggestion in the sketch numbered 1. Fill the space available on a table with a plaque of daisies, valley, peas, pansies or other bright spring flowers, to simulate a field of these plants growing. In the center erect a pole surmounted by a taper or electric globe. From the top of the pole start garlands of green ribbon, each of which will terminate at a place card. To the ends attach dainty baskets filled with the same kind of flowers as are used in the plaque. These baskets may be used as favors. If the function is one at which the guests are seated at the table, care should be taken to make the garlands very light and airy, and they will not obstruct the view. If for a reception table, the garlands may be heavier.

The above plan, with the exception of the plaque, may be enlarged to form a wedding canopy across the corner or side of a room. In this case the garlands may be made shorter in proportion, and the pole may reach or nearly reach the ceiling. The garlands should be hung loosely from the top of the pole to convenient points on the side walls.

For the whole room decoration, a great pole in the center may be banked and bound far up with Harrisii or candidum lily stalks, and its garlands carried as above from the top of the pole to the side walls. From the points on the walls where the draperies are fastened hang with ribbons to match good-sized baskets liberally filled with spring flowers and trailing vines. Thus the whole interior of the room will be transformed into a bower. For May occasions the delicate spring tints of green, pink or violet are preferred.

Illustration No. 2 is an oval raffia basket in green and brown, filled with ferns only, and set on a doily of ferns. The latter is purposely oval in form to conform to the shape of the basket. We often use wood ferns under a lace doily to color it, instead of a piece of silk. It will be observed that the handle of the basket is adjusted especially for the fern arrangement. For display purposes and temporary use one can change the whole character of the basket by removing or changing the handle. For tall or straight-stemmed flowers the high handle adjustment of which this same basket is capable, would be much better.

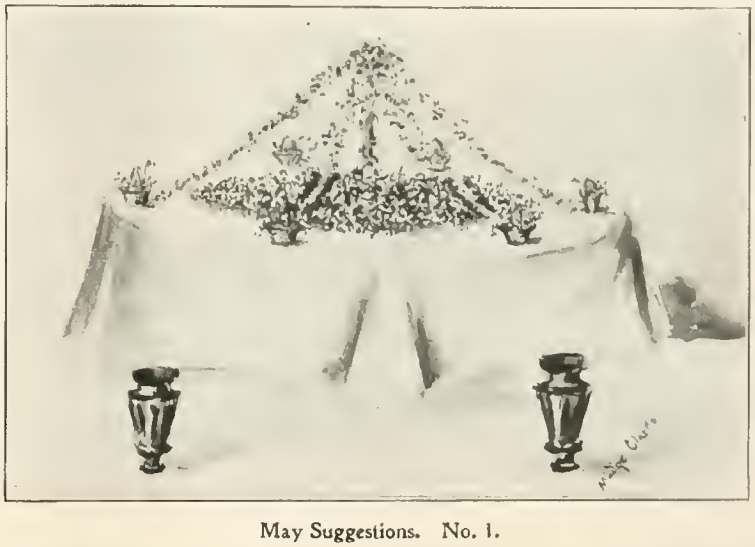
No. 3 is another basket centerpiece composed of a cluster of small moss baskets of pansies and daisies, suspended from a chandelier over a mirror placed in the center of a reception table. Among the baskets hang sprays of smilax. The lowest basket just reaches the table on the right of the mirror. To balance the effect of the whole a spray of smilax and a squib of loose pansies are seen on the left edge of the mirror. In order to bring this cluster within the proper compass to photograph the baskets had to be drawn closer together than they were originally.

The accompanying designs are best adapted to round or square tables. Other sketches for small refreshment tables and long banquet tables will be presented later in the series.

Apropos of the centerpiece question, the subject of the amount of stock used is in order. It is a law of the Median and Persian order with many florists to use flowers by the bushel and thousand and to present descriptions of their most extensive decorations rather than their most artistic. If we could have photos of a section of a banquet table showing a detail here and there, we might gain more than by receiving a photo of the whole. It is wholly unnecessary, however, to run to the other extreme of scanty amounts.

It is true that nature uses great masses of material, but she relieves it here and there by openings, and connects the whole landscape by mere traces and faint lines. She abhors a vacuum in art as well as in chemistry, but she never packs boxes of soap.

GERTRUDE BLAIR.



May Suggestions. No. 1.

ROSES.

Seasonable Hints.

To prevent our young stock from getting burned by defects in the glass, advantage should be taken of every hour when the sun is brightest to locate these spots and paint them over with oil. It may take a few days to find them all, but it will pay, as they can do considerable damage in a very short time and a young plant which has been badly scorched takes a long time to recover from it. Even in the benches of old established Beauties these spots if neglected spoil quantities of fine, long stemmed buds and these being high up and partly out of sight, are rarely detected until they are cut.

Looking over some of the trade journals of a decade ago, I find a few notes that may interest some of the present day growers as showing how different are our methods of culture from that time. The trade journals of these days as at present devoted a column to rose notes. Some of the advice given in these notes will seem strange to your readers. For instance, it is gravely asserted that to syringe the foliage when the sun is shining will cause them to blister, so this operation must be performed before sun-up. Experience and common sense have shown us how fallacious this rule was. Among other fallacies I find it recommended that young stock should be set outdoors in June and ripened by withdrawing the supply of water until they shed their leaves. Whether this method was ever followed to any extent I cannot say, as I never saw it practiced.

The idea of planting roses in five inches of soil with any chance of success was scouted, solid benches with 10 to 12 inches of good soil being the rule. These usually were carried over year after year, sometimes for as many as five seasons without renewal. Of course it was a difficult job to force such stock into bloom during the dark weather, but with the advent of spring they produced enormous crops of high grade blooms.

During the winter months the product was scarce and of a poor quality, and I can well remember the time when, instead of the grower seeking a market for his cut for even this small product, the wholesaler and retailer had to do the hunting and in most cases if he wished to procure the cut had to make a personal call at the greenhouses.

The class of roses grown at that time did not call for the same scientific culture as those of the finer grades of the present day, but I still think had we adopted our present day modes of cul ture when growing Jacques, Papa Gontiers, Safranos and Bon Silenes, we would have had better results.

Amongst a host of other advice, a mixture of hard coal ashes in the compost is recommended. It is just possible that in twenty-five years from now our present methods of culture may be considered equally primitive and crude.

RIBES.

COMPRESSED AIR VS. SYRINGING.

Being a student in the art of rose growing, especially of Beauties, Meteors, and others of the hybrid tea and H. P. types, I have come to the conclusion that the large amount of syringing that is indulged in by the majority of growers is very often detrimental to their proper growth, and especially so during the dark days, as the florists generally after syringing the plants are anxious to get them dry before night, using various methods to dry them, even to shaking the moisture off the plants.

I have often thought there should be a method of keeping down red spider without wetting the foliage, and a short time ago the thought struck me that by using compressed air to aerate, instead of syringing, all the advantages of syringing could be accomplished without its disadvantages, viz.; having wet foliage and very often more water on the beds than necessary, also being able to syringe only on bright days.

Now, with the compressed air the aerating could be done at any time, bright or dark days, morning or afternoon, and with the unlimited amount of pressure that can be obtained by using compressed air red spider would soon be a pest of the past. As regards black spot, any good grower of Beauties and other roses of this type will agree with me that the foliage being wet at night is the condition most favorable to its spreading; consequently by aerating the plants black spot would soon come under our control with very little trouble. Mildew also spreads rapidly by excess of moisture and it could be handled much easier than by the present system.

As to other benefits to be derived by aerating, the houses could be filled with fresh air every morning, and this no doubt would be beneficial to the plants, especially on days not favorable to ventilation. Mealy bug and thrips could be cleaned off plants by its use, and the rose beds could be swept clean of all dead and yellow leaves. The houses would last longer, as there would be no excess of moisture. It would be more comfortable for the men, as they would not get wet in aerating as they do in syringing. These are only a few of its possibilities.

My idea of putting this system into practice is to place a valve on water system, shut off water, and connect pipe system with air pump, the pump to be run by steam or other power, the air to be taken from outside, and part of air pipe to run through cylinder filled with steam to heat air to temperature desired, and the aerating to be done with hose (as in syringing) with suitable nozzle attached to hose. (Perhaps some of my fellow florists can improve on this.)

Another point in its favor is that air costs nothing, whereas the water bill for syringing is quite an item.

As regards other possibilities, a chamber could be filled with tobacco smoke if fumigation be necessary. (But the aerating will blow off aphis.) Fumes could be sent into houses and fumigation made easy by simply turning on faucets. Sulphur fumes could also be sent into houses by the same process. Possibly air could be charged with chemicals and a new source of feeding plants be obtained. Of course this would mean work for the experiment stations. But I am satisfied that the use of compressed air would open a new era in plant and cut flower growing.

I would like to conduct experiments along this line myself, but being an employe have neither means nor facilities for so doing, so I take this means of making it known to my brother florists, trusting that some enterprising florist will give it a fair trial.

HARRY MCNAUGHTON.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE.

A. O. D. asks: "Give me some information regarding the propagation of the above." This subject has been very well written up before now and by experts at the business.

One way of propagating this beautiful plant is to take the mature but sound leaves, leaf stalk and all, and put them in sand at a temperature of 60 or 65 in the month of October, November or December. At the end of the leaf stalk a bunch of roots will form and several young shoots will start. These will make fine plants. The first time I saw them propagated this way, instead of sand, coal ashes was used and it seemed to do just as well.

Another way is to take the young growths from old plants as we do any cuttings. These young growths usually can be found on the plants in April, and these young shoots root quickly and surely and make fine plants.

WILLIAM SCOTT.

CARNATION NOTES—EAST.

Preparation for Indoor Culture.

If the plants you intend for trial of indoor culture have been kept in pots and shifted as became necessary they are probably now in 3 or 3½-inch pots. In any event they should have a shift about a week before standing outside, using new soil that was laid up last fall and so enriched with manure that it will be somewhat richer than field soil. Also add a slight sprinkling of air slaked lime. I would not advise using any bone meal at this time nor any so-called complete chemical manure or predigested concoction.

All our plants being in flats and having previously been established in pots, it will be an easy matter to cut them out, as when planting in the field, and pot into 4-inch, using soil as above, setting them into a slightly shaded house a couple of days when the shade will be removed. In a week's time the roots will be active in the new soil when the plants will be stood in frames outside.

On the whole, I believe the plan of cutting from flats and potting at planting time, which with us is about May 5 to 10, is the better method to follow. Less watering is needed while in flats, the roots have more freedom, producing a larger plant, besides there is no risk of their becoming pot-bound or the soil be as apt to sour.

It is not necessary to have or construct regular cold frames. Eight or 10-inch boards you may have or can procure cheaply that will answer every purpose, the object being to enclose the pots to prevent rapid drying out, especially of the outside rows, also to be able during long continued rains to cover with sash. Select a level spot where sun and air have full play, set the boards on edge, butting the ends, driving a 4-inch board in the ground at each joint and at ends of frame, nailing ends to these. Of course there will be two rows of boards at such distance apart as will suit your sash.

The 4-inch boards, or posts, as they may be called, should project a foot above the top edge of front boards and about fifteen inches above back ones when driven. Intermediate posts may be required according to length of boards, also to stiffen the whole. At the top nail strips from post to post, forming a support for sash, the back support being higher, as provided when driving posts gives a pitch to the sash when used. Two or three inches of coarse gravel, cinders, or ashes on the bottom will provide drainage. I would advise whitewashing the inside of frame, also to sprinkle a good quantity of air-slacked lime over the cinders or other drainage material before filling.

Have the frame within reach of the hose, as artificial watering will, as a rule, be required. As the plants are to remain outside but a month or six weeks, they can be stood practically pot to pot, but it will be well to go through the whole batch about three weeks after putting out, standing them over, placing the plants originally in the center to stand on the outer edge, at the same time loosening the surface soil in the pots and spreading if plants are in the least crowded. Cutting back as occasion requires will demand the same attention as when grown in the field.

While on the subject there comes to mind the matter of having at hand soil for filling benches to receive this potted stock. Soil prepared last fall by laying up sod and manure is to be preferred. It is none too soon to have enough turned over to fill the benches you intend for trial of indoor culture. Will endeavor to enlarge on the question of soil preparation in this connection next week.

SNAILS EATING CARNATIONS.

Please tell me the best way to destroy snails that get on my carnations at night and eat the heart out of the flowers. H. L.

I know of no better way of getting rid of snails than to give them a tight squeeze between your heel and the ground. If you can put some poison where they will eat it you can kill them that way, but it is not always so easy. They like the young, tender growth of many plants and by sowing some seed of these and dusting them lightly with Paris green or some other poison after the young seedlings have come up you can get rid of a great many. They are very fond of young begonias and asters and carnations, and in fact they will go for most any young, tender plant. When you replant your houses this summer you should whitewash all the benches thoroughly and scatter lime all over the ground and under the benches. If you do this thoroughly you will rid your place of them. A. F. J. BAUR.

RAISED SOLID BEDS.

Will Mr. Baur kindly explain how he would use cement in the construction of raised solid benches for growing tea roses or Beauties and give details of construction. How should the heating pipes be distributed relative to the beds, steam being used for heating?

If benches are 18 inches above level of walks how could the under side of the leaves be best sprayed? Will Beauties grow well in a solid bench on north side of gutter which gives considerable shade most of the year?

Can cinders from boiler be mixed with cement and make good, durable concrete? The article in issue of March 26 instigates these questions and more detail in construction is desired.

A. L. W.

This lot of questions really ought to have been assigned to a rose grower, but since most of the questions are concerning construction of solid beds I will undertake the answering of them and will take them in rotation.

You can use either cinders or gravel or sand in constructing the sides of your beds. You will have to make a sort of mold to hold the mortar in shape until it sets. Take two boards 18 inches wide and set them on edge, leaving a space between as wide as you want your walls to be thick, fastening them to stakes driven in the ground or some other way if you like. Do the molding right where the wall is to stay. Shovel in the mortar and leave it until the mortar is hard enough to stand alone, when you can take the boards away and start the next section, and so on until you reach the other end. I would leave a hole about every foot or so, large enough to hold a three-inch tile, as you would perhaps want it for roses. Fill in with cinders up to the bottom of these holes, lay in your tiles, and then fill between them with cinders again, level with the top of the tiles. You may be able to improve on the above described method of procedure, but it will answer admirably.

You can put part of your heating pipes in the walk and part of them overhead, just as you may choose, but I would prefer to have most of them below in the walks. Your judgment will tell you just how to arrange them.

There is no better way to spray than to hold your finger over the end of the nozzle, turning the spray up or down or sideways or in fact doing whatever you see is required. With a spraying nozzle you can produce only one kind of a spray, while sometimes you will want a fine spray, then again a heavy rain, and still again a stream with extra force, etc., and this can best be done with the finger.

Neither Beauties nor any other kind of rose should be grown on a bench that is shaded much; they will not do well. Roses must have sunlight.

Yes, you can use the cinders from your boilers to make your walls, and I believe that about four parts of cinders to one part of cement is the proportion usually used. Of course the more cement you use the better will your wall be, but you can find out from some stone mason or some cement sidewalk maker what proportion is best.

CROMWELL NOTES.

The month of April has brought a good many changes in the place. With the finish of the lilies there comes the starting of the chrysanthemums and about 100,000 are to be benched. The work of preparing the houses for mums is under way and the majority will be benched within a few weeks. The majority of last year's varieties will be grown and less changes than usual in the number. Col. Appleton will be planted lightly, however, while Bonnaffon, Chadwick, Maud Dean, Kate Broomhead and the White and Yellow Eaton will be leaders.

Now that the lilies have gone it may not be out of place to make a few comments on the Harrisiis we have grown. The percentage of culls was large, and from some experiments which we have made we feel convinced that the cause of this loss is the cutting of the bloom by the Bermuda growers. I read, but have forgotten the exact figures, how many blooms were shipped to this country at Easter by the growers in Bermuda. It is certainly not justice for them to put on the market bulbs which have been weakened in this manner, and the only remedy for the poor quality of the Harrisii is to stop cutting the bloom. Those who sell but do not grow might show their friendship for the growers here by refusing to buy these imported blooms. In return they would throughout the year receive a better lily, for with no market for the bloom this unbusiness like outrage would cease.

As usual the spring of the year brings a demand for stock of all kinds which cannot be met. Carnations from pots and grafted roses being called for daily and the supply long since exhausted. The yearly output of such stock is large, but the demand for good stock seems to be without limit. About the finest stock we have put on the market has been Yellow Eaton and the demand for it has been good.

Several rose houses have been replanted already—a house of Meteor, one of Brides and one of American Beauties. This last house has been rebenched and the house has been greatly improved. The benches, formerly five feet in width, have been made over into three foot benches, with eighteen-inch walks and the benches have been lowered and put on a level. This gives more light to the plants, as there are more outside rows, and it should be a grand house, for the stock used in benching is the finest we have ever planted.

In a week or two the house which was devoted to Liberty will be planted to Lawson from pots. This is a new departure and is in a measure an experiment. With an empty house it will be worth trying, but to throw out a house in full crop to plant it from pots, I should consider very unwise.

The death of Mrs. H. E. Charter, of Meriden, was sad news, for in her we lose an old friend and a good customer. Who will be the leading Meriden florist now is a question, but there is an opportunity for some one.

We have had two severe frosts since the 1st of May, and the damage will be heavy to the first crop in this section, although very little of our stuff suffered.

Mr. A. N. Pierson, accompanied by Mrs. Pierson, left on May 2 for a six weeks' trip to Colorado and California. Not business, but pleasure.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Aquatics.

I have been asked by correspondents of late some questions about hardy water lilies (nymphæas). If I had one-half an acre of ground and clay to puddle some basins, I should dearly like to cultivate some myself. There may not be a great profit in their cultivation as cut blooms, but how beautiful they are, and a garden of any extent is not complete without any aquatic features in the landscape. We all know how true this is in large parks and grounds, and if the pleasure ground or ornamental garden is but an acre, the lily pond, if only a few square yards in extent, will be the most visited spot of all the garden during the summer months. I once had the pleasure of visiting Henry A. Dreer's water garden one morning in June and will not soon forget the pleasure it gave. There the aquatic king, William Tricker, presides over his pets, and what Mr. Tricker does not know about nymphæas, lotus and other aquatic plants would not bait a mouse trap.

Many are deterred from having a small water garden, thinking it is much trouble and considerable expense. My experience, and it was considerable during the Pan-American, where we had many hundreds of plants covering several acres in area, that neither in preparing the ponds or soil is there much of either. Where the subsoil is clay and the bottom and sides can be puddled, there would be little trouble. Smaller tanks could be made of masonry and lined with cement, but the latter would be expensive.

There is often found some low spot or depression in a garden, and that is the place for the lily pond. Excavate two feet deep if you strike a blue clay; then put on the bottom a foot of heavy loam with one-third dairy manure. If the loam is almost a clay, none the worse, and if there is a foot or 15 inches of it, all the better, and whether there is 1 foot 18 inches or 2 feet of water over the soil is of no consequence, but a foot will do. Don't plant closer than 3 or 4 feet. The rich soil is the essential. You should keep the water clear of that green, slimy growth that often appears in stagnant water, and of all water weeds. The more toads and frogs and little fishes you have in the water the better, but be sure to exclude that muddy, bony fish called carp, for they are vegetarians and will root out and destroy the roots. I have known carp to eat up a lot of nelumbium roots in a few months. Also keep out ducks; they are bad. Geese are worse and swans are "worstest."

Under Mr. Tricker's advice we planted hardy nymphæas from July to end of September, and they wintered, grew and bloomed grandly the following year. Young plants put in the ponds now or any time this month would of course give you splendid blooms from July on. These nymphæas that cover the surface of the ponds are called hardy, and so they are under proper conditions, but if the water is shallow and it freezes solid and frost reaches the plants they will perish. If there are a few inches of water between the ice and the surface of bed, all is well. As the water was run off to a few inches during my late experience with the lily ponds, we had to cover them with a foot of evergreen boughs, but it answered the purpose. A little ingenuity will always devise some plan to keep the soil from freezing.

The list of hardy nymphæas is long and you can have white, yellow and shades of pink in many varieties.

COMPRESSED AIR.

The article in another column on the use of compressed air instead of water for syringing roses may contain a very useful suggestion and the plan is at least worthy of trial by those having facilities.

In conversation some years ago with one of the ablest rose growers in the country he remarked that the next great advance in the growing of roses under glass would be through the discovery of some means of keeping red spider in check other than syringing, and in noting the objections to syringing he mentioned one matter not touched upon by Mr. McNaughton, and this was the damage done to the blooms, especially Beauties, by the moisture lodging in the cup of the partly opened flower and this producing that parboiled, faded edge to the petals under the action of the sun and moisture. As spring advances and the sun becomes stronger the market always fills up with these poor grade flowers, and there is little doubt that the damage is the result of moisture in the flower, followed by bright sunshine.

We have heard well posted and thoughtful rose growers express the conviction that it was the cold, rather than the moisture that destroyed the young red spider and that tepid water was not nearly so effective as that direct from the hydrant. If this is so the required condition could be met with the compressed air and the objectionable moisture almost entirely eliminated. Or when moisture was considered desirable the required amount could be easily mixed with the air.

The idea is so novel that it will probably be received with many reservations, but the plan is certainly worthy of trial in an experimental way.

IT IS SAID:

That the demand for carnation cuttings this season breaks all records.

That the carnation men have had the best of the rose men so far as the actual profits of the season are concerned.

That the roses have done so poorly so far that with even the good rose months of May and June to come there will be less profit than in former years.

That there will be a meeting of the A. C. S. committee on premiums at Detroit in May for the purpose of fixing up the schedule for next February. Let us hope they will cut out all fancy vases from competitive classes unless it be where prizes are awarded for best arrangement, etc.

That there was a meeting of the Pæony Society held at Brooklyn during the convention of the A. C. S. We would not have missed it for anything, had we known. Was such a meeting held?

That Adonis is not the only one to make its debut slowly.

That at the next convention of the nurserymen an effort will be made to strengthen the Pæony Society.

That there will be more "doing" at Milwaukee next August than ever before. Save your pennies.

That Mr. Richard Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, is to be married in May to a very estimable young lady of that burg.

That the sanction of the above transaction was responsible for "Dick's" absence from the little dinner given re-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The cut flower market is very quiet now. Immense quantities of flowers are used at prices that must not be looked at too closely; there are many that are not disposed of to advantage. Sweet peas and valley continue pretty good, especially the peas. Edward Reid makes a specialty of white; Eugene Bernheimer has lavender, which proves the right thing; a few fancies are to be seen. S. S. Pennock has the violet market pretty much to himself, and when that is over he will have an attractive specialty in Cattleya Mossiæ, now to be had in good condition. "Lie-locks" are plentiful as coals in New Castle. It is said, though, that the street men prefer carnations in job lots to these perishable spring flowers. The carnation market is weaker than a week ago. Not only have prices fallen, but some really good stock is hard to move at times. Daisies are plentiful. W. J. Baker handles a grade that is of fine quality—large flowers borne on good stems. Easter lilies are still plentiful. It is puzzling to guess where they all come from after the sweep of a month ago.

Germantown.

This suburban part of Philadelphia has been the scene of rapid progress in floriculture lately. For many years nearly a half-dozen florists did a general growing and retail business, disposing of their surplus in the city proper and drawing on the wholesale dealers and growers for their special orders. Two of these florists have large stores on the main street, Germantown avenue, besides their extensive range of greenhouses. One of these is William Berger. A photograph of his store taken at Easter appears elsewhere in these columns. The other is Albert Woltemate. The business has grown to an extent that while each can accommodate a brother florist in need of stuff, neither has much difficulty in disposing of his own product and a great deal more besides.

William J. Young, Jr., has a well run place, prettily located in the heart of the residence district, which serves as an object lesson to his customers. He also does a large business, drawing heavily on the wholesalers in spite of the quantity of good plants and flowers he produces. These places and those of several smaller florists, notably Mrs. Baumann, Mrs. Cliffe and the florist department of T. N. Yates & Co., lie west of Germantown road. Until lately the eastern side has virtually been represented by the Meehans—Thomas Meehan & Sons doing a little in the florist line until lately, and Charles E. Meehan having a good sized place near the nursery firm, on which he does a little retailing with his wholesale business. Now the east side is becoming a veritable flower garden. F. & H. Mergenthaler have added to their rose growing plant, established only a few years ago, until they have seventeen fine houses full of fine stock.

The latest addition to this section is R. Jamison, who left his position as foreman at another place this spring in order to go in business with his brother, as mentioned a short time ago. He will build three houses, Dietsch pattern, each 150x14 feet 8 inches. These in addition to the three houses now on the place will give a good supply of roses, carnations, etc., for the local demand. The Messrs. Mergenthaler are doing a wholesale business. Everything is in readiness for an immediate start. Sixteen by 18-inch glass is to be used. Twelve hundred Beauties will be grown for a full crop, to be followed by pot plants. Among the newer roses Sunrise and Ivory will be tried.

Notes.

The Flower Market had a great order for 5,000 roses and 1,000 carnations on Monday last. The order was from the department store of N. Luellenburg & Co., who wished to celebrate their thirty-fourth anniversary. The roses used were chiefly Beauties, Brides, Maids and Meteors. The carnations were Hill, Lawson, Crane, Joost, Scott and others. The flowers were distributed among the patrons of the store at certain hours in the morning and afternoon.

Thomas Weiss, a retired florist and resident of Germantown, died last week, aged seventy-eight years. His sons, Eugene and Harry Weiss, are well known in business circles. They have the sympathy of their many friends.

A bright commission man says the average grower does not realize how hard it is to sell flowers. He takes little interest in where his flowers go, how they suit, or any other detail of selling. His own cares are quite enough. He simply wants a little statement at the end of each week with a check attached—the bigger the better.

The Florists' Club meeting last Tuesday evening was devoted to a bowling discussion on the ways and means of sending a good team to Milwaukee that would do the Quaker City proud, and not to Walter Whetstone's paper on pipe, as erroneously stated in these columns last week. Mr. Whetstone's talk will be given at the June meeting instead. It should prove of great interest.

Walter P. Stokes, of the firm of Johnson & Stokes, and president of the Seedsmen's League, was elected a member of the Florists' Club last month.

Eugene Bernheimer is handling a pleasing scarlet carnation seedling. It must be a good bloomer, as he received 2,500 in one shipment this week from a grower who gives his novelty but limited space as yet.

M. Rice & Co. have experienced a heavy and an early demand for Decoration Day goods, especially for metal wreaths and cycas leaves. Their stock has received some very encouraging commendations from customers lately. The experiment of a ribbon department has proved a success and will be pushed.

PHIL.

BOSTON.

Everything has been working on full time. Goods have been coming in very plentifully and moving out in very good shape, except that many have to be sold at low prices. I can only maintain that there is never such a thing as a market price, because it always differs with different customers of a large grower, but the price list in another column gives my best trial for the time. Goods sold to the street I make no effort to schedule. A feature of the case is the practical disappearance of bulb goods, as there are only a few tulips and jonquils left. Those that were not sold have gone to pieces and the outdoor ones are now in full glory.

No business in New England has increased faster of late years than that of the florist, and there are signs in the air of much heavier transactions in the near future, and the removal and enlargement of the Co-operative Market is bringing them to a focus. Among them is the rental of the whole floor above that market to Mr. W. H. Elliott, who, I understand, intends subletting a large part of this space, as even his immense cuts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire goods cannot require more than a small portion of it.

J. J. McCormack, ever irrepressible, has given up his floral efforts at Houghton & Dutton's, and established a wholesale and retail depot at 54 Pemberton square, and retail counters at Butler's Branch, on Winter street and at Woolworth's Five Cent store, on Washington street. He also at times runs a counter at Joslyn's, Malden's huge general store. Watch him and learn how to hustle.

Heavier operations than usual on Boston Commons are now in order. About all of it has been well ploughed, harrowed, manured in the good old way our grandfathers would have done it, and is to be seeded down much as they would have done it, with crops of oats, rye, and other cereals. This course is taken with a view of extending the life and usefulness of the trees upon the commons which have been showing signs of degeneracy.

An informal meeting of some of the creditors of J. M. Cohen has been held and organization effected by the selection of chairman W. H. Elliott, and secretary J. S. Manter. The only formal proceeding was the appointment of Messrs. Elliott, Allen, Peirce, and William Anderson, a committee to wait upon Mr. Cohen and his attorney with the information that unless a substantial cash dividend is immediately provided, bankruptcy proceedings will be taken right away. Liabilities are estimated at from $4,000 to $5,000.

J. S. MANTER.

NEW YORK.

A trip through the wholesale district down town where the seedsmen congregate is all one requires to demonstrate the fact that this is an exceptionally profitable season with them. The stores are crowded daily, the staff of assistants has been added to everywhere, and day and night are occupied in "catching up" to the overwhelming avalanche of orders that has crowned the season's fruition. Specification is uncalled for. Every house in the seed and bulb line has shared in the general prosperity.

Prizes continue to arrive liberally for the New York Florists' Club outing. Since our last report Louis Rossow, manager of Thos. Young's Fifth avenue store, gives a beautiful $10 doll for the girls' race, under fourteen; Cincas & Boddington, two prizes for the winners of the three-legged race; Lager & Hurrell, for the 22-yard foot race, open to all; Julius Roehrs, a $5 prize for the quarter mile walking match; W. J. Elliott, the bicycle race, one-half mile, for boys under twelve; John Birnie, a volume of Burns' poems for the best bowler of the "Press"—Job excluded; and Patrick O'Mara, a handsome momento to the lady of any age over sweet sixteen who can trip the light fantastic fastest for 50 yards. An attendance of about 400 is now expected.

The Florists' Club holds its regular meeting at the new rooms in the Grand Opera House building next Monday evening. There will be exhibits, outing news and a general discussion as to convention matters that should insure a good attendance.

Mr. Cleary and Mr. Dimmock are now at 136 Liberty street, New York, and the auction business is now in the efficient hands of Mr. Wm. J. Elliott, no other house occupying this important field.

Mr. Frith, of Bermuda, an employe of the English government and a Harrisii lily grower on the side, is in the city disposing of his stock of 300,000 bulbs.

H. H. Berger & Co. report the French bulb market still unsettled, no orders having been placed for paper whites and Romans except conditional ones at market prices.

The statement that Suzuki & Iida had leased the greenhouses of Alex. Burns is said to be incorrect. The firm of Kokuda & Co., of Secaucus, N. J., is understood to have taken them.

Mr. Suzuki sailed a week ago on the Kaiserin Augusta for Europe.

Hitchings & Co. are installing their heating system in the greenhouses of Florist Roeder, at City Island, a charming suburb of New York, where the yachts that keep Lipton from "lifting the cup" anchor, and where Mr. Roeder enjoys a monopoly of the trade. Just across the bridge the grand new Fordham park is being developed.

The death of the head gardener of the Albert Vanderbilt estate, at Oakland Farm, Newport, Mr. Allen, is feelingly referred to in dispatches from the society city, and the beautiful country seat of the Vanderbilts, at Portsmouth, was placed at the disposal of Mr. Allen's family and friends for the funeral services. ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

We have been visited by all kinds of weather the past week. The very warm day on Wednesday gave way to cold and disagreeable days the remainder of the week, with the mercury down to freezing point, doing great damage to the young stock. The great crowd of people in our city on last Thursday, attracted by the dedication of the World's Fair, got a frosty reception so far as the weather was concerned.

The past week was a great one, and the large number of distinguished visitors were presented with many beautiful floral offerings. The decorations for receptions at the hotels made business good for those who were fortunate enough to get the orders. We hear that the Michel Plant and Bulb Co. furnished the flowers and plants for the receptions at the World's Fair grounds, the Reissen Floral Co. at the hotels, and the Ellison Floral Co. at the St. Louis club. The home of D. R. Francis, where President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland were housed during their stay, was tastefully decorated with plants and 500 American Beauties each day.

The market is still overstocked with all kinds of flowers, and with business at a standstill it is hard for the wholesalers to dispose of their stock at anything like a fair price.

American Beauties have been selling well; that is, the best, and there are plenty of them in the market for all demands. Other roses have to suffer and are selling very cheap; as only the best sell at present the seconds are left over. The quality of the stock is good—better than for some time back.

Carnations are even more plentiful than roses and are selling as low as $1.0 per 1,000, and $1.50 and $2 in 100 lots, with plenty of them sleeping on the counters and floors of the wholesalers for want of demand. Shipping trade for these has also fallen off greatly, showing that other places are as dull as it is here. In quality the carnations were never better than at the present time.

The price of Harrisii is down to $6 per 100, same as callas. Both are a glut, with very little doing in their line. Sweet peas are about the only flowers that have a demand, and they are nearly always sold out clean by noon at a fair price. These are not as yet plentiful. All bulbous stock is over, but some fairly good valley is still in the market at the usual price. Some good smilax came in the past week, but not nearly enough for the demand. Other greens are selling well, with a slight advance in price on common ferns.

Notes.

Geo. M. Kellogg, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., was a visitor the past week. He attended the dedication ceremonies.

R. J. Mohr has returned from Chicago and Joliet. At the latter place he was with the Chicago Carnation Co. Mr. Mohr expects to be employed at the World's Fair grounds this summer.

Mr. Trillow is still with us and says dedication week was no good in his line. A number of the Belleville craft were also visitors the past week attending the dedication ceremonies.

Mr. Robert Aull was on Friday last appointed park commissioner by Mayor Wells to succeed Franklin L. Ridgely, who has held the place for the past eight years. Mr. Aull was formerly secretary of the St. Louis Fair Association, is a democrat and an able man for the position. He will make one of the best park commissioners St. Louis has had. The number of local florists who are out for the position of superintendent can now bring in their applications and Mr. Aull will select the one best fitted to fill the position to succeed Fred W. Pape, who has held the position since the death of his father nearly four years ago.

The nursery adjoining the World's Fair grounds and conducted by the Park View Realty Co. is in fine shape under the careful guidance of Mr. Wm. Bouche.

Mr. Fred Kessler, landscape architect for the World's Fair, has gone east to buy nursery stock to be planted on the grounds.

The May meeting of the Florists' Club will be held next Thursday, May 14, at 2 o'clock, in the Odd Fellows' building. At this meeting a miscellaneous cut flower show will be held, and all the members are requested to bring anything they can spare. As stock is so plentiful, there should be a big display of seasonable flowers on exhibition. Mr. Fillmore will read his essay on "Soft and Hard Coal Heating," which no doubt will be interesting to many of the members. President Dunford also has some interesting matters to bring before the meeting, therefore he would like all the members to be present. The committee on summer outings will be appointed at this meeting, including that of the S. A. F. at Milwaukee next August.

Bowling.

The City Bowling League will soon end its season and then the florists will again get together and bowl each Monday night to select a team to represent our city in the national tournament at Milwaukee this summer. The league bowlers this season were C. A. Kuehn, Carl Beyer, E. W. Guy and J. J. Beneke. From there and the rest of the florist bowlers a good team should be selected to make those Philadelphia and New York bowlers, and our friends, the Chicagos, hustle to win. J. J. B.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Demand is not so steady and prices are easier. It is the annual moving season and there is always a period of dullness for a week or more following May 1. There is plenty of stock of all kinds for everybody, but no gluts in any line.

Though the best select roses reach $7 and $8 they must be very choice to get into that class and the number in it is small. Excellent stock can be had for $6 and the great bulk of the cut goes at $4 and $5, and clean up sales are made at somewhat below $3. Carnation prices are materially shaded from last week, and white seems to be especially abundant. The blooms must be extra good to reach $4 and not many get above $3. Fine Prosperity reach $6, but there are not many sold at that price. However, very few carnations of any variety sell at less than $1.50, and conditions are certainly very satisfactory for the season.

Notes.

Ed. Winterson recently accepted a liberal contribution from a bookmaker because of his 25 to 1 abilities.

Mr. H. A. Stallwood, well known to the trade in this city, died at the West Side Hospital Monday, May 4, as the result of an operation. The funeral was held Wednesday; interment at Graceland.

Soon after the last issue appeared the weather turned much cooler and has continued chilly with the exception of two days only. Quality of stock averages very good under these conditions.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Trade is all that could be desired and every one is having his share of it. The wholesale houses are doing a fine business and are very nearly cleared out every evening. Monday was a great day for American Beauties. The newly elected city officials were installed into their respective offices and the city building was a mass of flowers. Besides this the regular run of business was first-class. Good stock brought top market prices, and there was none too much of it at that.

The weather, though for the most part clear, is quite cool. There was a killing frost last night, which destroyed a great many tomato plants that had just been planted. Some early potatoes which had sprouted were also badly damaged. Lilacs are trying to bloom now, but the heavy frosts were very hard on them and the blooms are very poor.

Roses are fairly plentiful at present, but the best of them are quickly sold out; only the poorer grades move slowly. Liberties are not as plentiful as they were. Long-stemmed ones are scarce. A good many La France are to be had and they go fairly well. Some Cusin are seen now and then, but there is not much call for them. Franz Deegen is in fine form and sells quickly. American Beauties are very good property, especially long-stemmed ones. Very short ones are somewhat of a drag, and there is a great number of them coming in.

Carnations are still scarce, but there are signs of an increase. There is a good demand for them, especially fancy ones, and they bring top market prices at all times. A great many more carnations could be used at present.

Harrisii lilies are a drug on the market, selling as low as $5 per 100, and slow at that. Callas are not so plentiful and sell better. Outdoor valley is coming in. Indoor valley is scarce. Sweet peas are not any too plentiful and they sell well. Charlie Jones had a large decoration during the past week, using all sweet peas, and he had his troubles getting enough.

Smilax is scarce and asparagus of all kinds is also becoming scarce. There is plenty of good adiantum, which finds a ready market.

Notes.

Henry Schwarz is working up quite a trade in Norwood, O. He reports his Easter trade as very satisfactory.

J. P. Ernsterhoff, of Newport, Ky., was visited by fire last week, which totally destroyed his residence.

Huntsman & Co. have moved into new quarters at 609 Walnut street.

Frank Snyder, formerly with J. A. Peterson, has leased a tract of ground from Wm. Murphy, of Murphysville, and will erect a range of houses shortly.

Saturday, May 9, will be the regular meeting night of the Florists' Society.

Last Friday night there was a gathering of Murphys at the residence of George Murphy, more than thirty of the family being present. Dancing was indulged in until a late hour, and a fine time was had by all.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The warm weather is here to stay, I suppose, and with it comes an over-supply of carnations, roses and lilies. Two weeks ago carnations were selling at $3 per hundred wholesale; they have dropped in price to $1.50 per hundred for the same kind of stock. A few fancy flowers are quoted at about $3 per hundred, but they can be bought at almost any price; and as for poor stock, it is useless to give any quotations on it. Bridesmaid roses are a glut and will be for a couple of weeks to come. Kaiserins and Brides bring from $2 to $4 per hundred and American Beauties sell at from 50 cents to $2 per dozen. Easter lilies are very plentiful and the growers sell them at $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen.

Coreopsis, mignonette, sweet peas, gaillardias, stocks, bachelor buttons and marigolds are beginning to make their appearance in quantity and outside roses furnish plenty of stock for the street venders, of which, by the way, we have a very large supply in San Francisco. Everything at the present time is at its lowest ebb regarding price and in a few weeks things will stiffen somewhat.

Trade is fair for the season. Many large and elaborate funeral designs are being made today for the funeral of Irving M. Scott, which takes place tomorrow. F. Pelicano, Podesta & Baldocchi, Sievers & Boland and Thos. H. Stevenson, have the bulk of the orders. It will be one of the largest funerals ever held in San Francisco. Mr. Scott for many years was president of the Union Iron Works.

Notes

Mr. David Neely, well known to all the old San Franciscans as a pioneer nurseryman and florist, but at present a resident of West Berkeley, has been sued by Miss Mary Lanigan for $25,000 for breach of promise. Mr. Neely is over 70 years of age and the fair plaintiff is aged 22. She was employed in the capacity of housemaid during Mr. Neely's wife's sickness and immediately after her death the suit was brought.

We are expecting something very fine in the line of exhibits from the forthcoming flower show of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, to be held in the Palace Hotel. The tables have been eagerly sought for and everything promises well for the exhibition. Will give further particulars of anything meritorious in my next letter.

Mr. A. Duhem, one of the pioneer florists, situated many years ago on Sutter street, has identified himself with the Napa Nursery Co., at Napa, Cal.

J. Seulberger, of Oakland, is about ready to move into his new store, on Fourteenth street, opposite the McDonough theater. He is going to keep his Seventh street establishment, but will leave it in charge of his son.

Sievers & Boland have had several fine decorations in the Palace Hotel, during the past week. They furnished a great quantity of American Beauty roses to embellish the rooms of Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, who has been stopping in San Francisco for the past week.

John Carlson, located for many years on the corner of Haight and Fillmore streets, will move shortly from his present location, as the property has been sold. He has been very successful and is talking of retiring from business.

Seed Trade News.

MR. John T. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill., visited Chicago Tuesday.

SOME time back there was a noise in sweet corn. The posted ones are waiting for the echo.

SO FAR indications point to May's making good April's shortage in counter trade.

JUDGING from recent reports it would seem that the seedsmen who cater to the packet trade might get pointers at the government's seed establishment.

FIELD corn is in good demand. Prices have stiffened and it is evident that the supply of dependable stock is scarce.

CHICAGO. The Leonard Seed Co. finds its new location advantageous. It places them more in the swim, as it were, Goodwin, Harries & Co. and Barnard & Co. being on the same street and within two blocks, while Vaughan's is just across the river.

SEEDING for onion sets is being pushed at Chicago. The growers who work sandy soil have the advantage at present and are about through. Those working heavier ground hope to finish up by the end of the week.

THE recent sharp frosts throughout the middle west had no material effect on trade. The backward spring prevented early sprouting and in most of the gardening sections the plantings were not far enough advanced to be seriously hurt.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Snow fell on April 29 and ice formed to the thickness of three-fourths of an inch, and this change in the weather has made quite a difference in the garden seed trade. Nevertheless the Griswold Seed Co. reports an exceedingly good trade this spring, both wholesale and mail order business being almost double that of last year. Sales of Siberian corn and German millet have been remarkably large. The firm's new building was ready none too soon. It gave them double the room they had before, and but for the increased space they would have been unable to handle their business this season.

DAVENPORT, IOWA.—Otto Klingbeil reports Easter trade as very good. There was a shortage of lilies, but other plants, such as rhododendrons, azaleas (indica and mollis), deutzias, spireas, callas, pelargoniums, and even large geraniums, and all kinds of bulbous stock in pans, found ready sale at good prices. cut flowers were plentiful and sold better than usual at Easter and at very good prices. Had it not been for the shortage of lilies the total business would have been over 25 per cent larger than last year.

DAYTON, O.—H. H. Ritter reports Easter trade as being all the florists could wish for. Lilies and bulb stuff were plentiful and sold well. Orders averaged larger and prices were 20 per cent higher than last year. The Dayton florists are happy. Weather fine.

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—H. Glenn Fleming reports Easter trade as the best he ever had. People were crazy for cut flowers and any kind went. He sold out clean and could have sold double the amount. Plants went well, azaleas and lilies leading.

The market opened this week in a depressed condition, with stock abundant, quality excellent and demand at a low ebb. Customers were few and independent, and the iceboxes filled to overflowing. Even cattleyas dropped to 35 and under. Violets, the best that are coming, were down to 25 cents a hundred, and in quantity, thousands could be had at $10.00. Still there was enough and to spare. Never before have violets remained with us so late in the season. The weather is again warm, and it seems as though spring had now come to stay.

The graduation

days of school and college will soon be here. Have you the RIGHT RIBBONS to tie on the flowers which the fair student will carry? Right in quality? Right in color? The qualities we manufacture are suitable for flowers, and our special colors are woven to match flowers. And yet—the prices are less than elsewhere, for YOU SAVE ALL BETWEEN PROFITS by buying direct from the mill.

SEEDS.

New crop smilax seed will be ready for delivery in July. A short supply is probable on account of injury to the flowers by the late frosts in the few localities where smilax can be successfully grown for seed. By booking now for future delivery, we feel confident you can secure better figures than it will be possible to give later in the season. Write for prices, stating quantity you can use.

WASHINGTON.

Business for the past week has been very satisfactory to all. Flowers of every description are coming in very plentifully, which means a downfall of prices, although prices have kept up better for this season of the year than for several years past. All roses, such as Maids, Brides, La France, and other tea roses, are bringing from $6 to $8 per 100. Beauties bring from $2 to $5 per dozen. Carnations are holding up well from 2 to 3 cents.

There will be quite a number of changes among the flower stores to take effect the first of June. The Washington Floral Co. has been notified to vacate on account of the Trust Co.'s wanting the space. In the meantime Mr. Baur has closed a deal for his other Fourteenth street store, to take effect on June 1, which practically throws him out, and he is now on the lookout for a new opening.

N. Studer, of Twelfth street, has been notified to vacate his store, on the site of which a large office building will be erected.

The Rosery, on F street, an incorporated concern, has a sign in front, "Store and Fixtures for Sale."

The following are the scores of the Florists' Bowling Club:

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

On account of continued poor health which has prevented him giving the requisite attention to his contracting business, Henry W. Gibbons, the greenhouse builder of New York City, has been compelled to give up this branch of his business and remove to a warmer climate. Mail should be addressed to him at Miami, Florida, for the present. He will continue to give our readers the benefit of his large experience, and will also continue to furnish plans and advice as heretofore.

THE CONQUEROR RIBBON PLANT

Neither good ribbons nor reputations are raised upon bushes, but must be made.

The perfection of our organization makes possible the production and distribution of ribbons especially woven and blended for florists' use.

The practice of purchasing dry goods ribbons for floral purposes is, thanks to us, undergoing a radical change. We produce beautiful lustrous goods especially woven and blended for the embellishment of flowers.

Endorsed by America's representative florists.

LOOMIS, CAL.

The California Carnation Co. has 50,000 carnations in the field, all doing nicely. They commenced to plant out the last week in February. The Loomis Floral Co. has planted out 25,000, and the Knoll Nursery has commenced to plant out. The latter concern has a great many Shasta daisies growing for the production of seed. Mr. Pendleton will erect 5,000 square feet of glass soon. The stock of carnation plants is in the field. This makes four establishments in Loomis in the wholesale carnation cutting business. California alone uses close to 4,000,000 rooted carnation cuttings a year, and the states west of Colorado use about 10,000,000. This, no doubt, will be news to many. And the trade in California and the far west is certainly in its infancy. M.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

The Central Michigan Nursery Co. did a large business at Easter and are well pleased with the expansion in their trade since moving into their new store on Main street. Among their Easter plants were some Crimson Rambler roses eight feet high, of fine shape and in full bloom that brought fancy prices. They were forced in their own greenhouses. The firm is now building 12,000 feet of new glass.

Fred Marker is preparing to add more glass to his establishment.

John Calder's business is improving steadily and he anticipates a prosperous season this year. C.

PITTSBURG.

This market has been very active for the past ten days. A general cleaning up occurred almost every day.

Roses, Maids, Brides and Beauties are arriving in large quantites and find a fair market. At times large lots of this stock is sold at very low prices, quality considered.

The general price on extra Maids and Brides is $6 to $8 per 100. Some very good specials brought as high as $12 per 100.

Carnations are quite plentiful and a slump in prices is soon expected. Good and fancy varieties are still scarce and sell readily at $3 to $4 per 100. Smilax is not as scarce as it was. Sweet peas, mignonette, white Marguerites and yellow daisies are quite plentiful.

The weather has been quite cold. A good crop of icicles can be gathered every morning. May 1 the mercury registered 26 degrees.

Notes.

The Pittsburg Rose and Carnation Co., at Bakerstown, have finished planting out their carnations.

C. W. Espy, of Brookville, Pa., is receiving estimates on a range of carnation houses.

OTTAWA, ONT.

The Easter trade at Ottawa appears to have given satisfaction to both buyers and sellers, generally speaking. It is described as the best for some years past. The demand for plants suitable for house decorations was especially in excess of that of last year, as was also the amount of stock called for by the churches in their Easter decorations. The trade in cut flowers is described as very good, roses perhaps leading in popular demand and American Beauties being quoted as the favorite. In plants the Easter lily led, as usual, but azaleas and spireas made close seconds. Altogether the outlook for the season promises well.

A. C. T.

SAVANNAH, GA.

Easter trade in our city was very satisfactory. Flowering plants and cut flowers sold out, and could have sold more lilies had the supply been equal to the demand, which was greater than that for any other plant. In cut flowers we did not expect much, as the outside roses, etc., were in full bloom, but, as above stated, everything sold, and at our regular winter prices; that is, $1 to $1.50 per dozen for roses, 75 cents to $1 for carnations, lilies in pots at 20 to 25 cents for each bud. In church decorations the poor florist gave the palms, and the rest the members did, so nothing was left for us.

G.

ANTS.

I have noticed in the Review reference to the destruction of ants. Permit me to say that one-third to one-fourth of Fowler's solution arsenic added to two-thirds or three-fourths of common sugar syrup and scattered in drops where they may find it, will do all that is desired, and is devoid of danger, nuisance and expense.

TORONTO.

During the past week we have had weather with a vengeance, and lots of it. We had it from 80 degrees in the shade to 10 degrees of frost in twenty-four hours. This did not improve the appearance of out-door stock that was coming in bloom, and we believe very materially damaged the early peonies.

The horse show made quite a stir with us and most of the stores decorated accordingly, and some very fine displays were put up. It being a social function of a very high order the call was for the very choicest stock, and made quite a move in this line. The latter end of the week there was quite a rush of design work, which cleaned up the stock of white stuff, and on the whole there was very little stuff left on the dealers' hands during the week.

The notable function of the week was the first decoration put up in the new King Edward Hotel, which has been known as the "Million Dollar Hotel," but which has now run up to nearly two and a quarter millions, and it is estimated that one-quarter of a million more will be spent before it is completed. The decoration was put up by S. Tidy & Son and was done in pink, a large quantity of Maids and asparagus fern being used in the decoration of the table. The occasion was the farewell banquet tendered to the manager who has had charge for the last year or so.

The funeral of our late Lieutenant Governor, Sir Oliver Mowatt, took place on Wednesday, and the floral tributes were large and numerous. Among the noticeable designs was a standing anchor made by J. S. Simmons: it was a beautiful piece of work and finished off with some heather, to give it a good Scotch effect. Another piece was a Scroll of Fame, made by S. Tidy & Son. The largest piece was a broken column 5 feet 10 inches, made by Mr. A. Jennings; it was made principally of pink and white roses and Harrisii lilies, and was a credit to the designer. A large crescent wreath on an easel made by Mr. H. G. Dillemuth of Dunlop's was well worthy of special mention. Miller & Sons, we understand, had the lion's share in the number of pieces. They received a great number of out-of-town orders. D. J.

Greenhouse Fumigating Powder

Is the newest and best article on the market to-day for the complete destruction of all insects that infest Greenhouses or Conservatories, being a special boon to Rose and Beauty growers and prepared particularly for the destruction of Greenfly and Thrips. There is nothing injurious in it to plant life, even the most delicate fern. It is especially recommended for Beauties, Roses, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, Lilies, Smilax, Asparagus, Palms, Ferns, etc., and we claim that insects will be entirely eradicated when the houses are thoroughly fumigated with the powder. It is put up as follows:

If you want the best paying crop that you can plant for summer plant.....

There is nothing that you can plant that will increase in value so rapidly as this fern. The demand has been so great, and our advance sales so large, that we have not offered it recently, having only just completed filling advance orders. We have a nice lot of young stock coming on, and can fill all orders received from this date promptly on receipt. Even at the present high price it has been impossible to keep up with the demand, and there is sure to be a tremendous demand for it another season when it can be offered at lower prices. Now is the time to invest in it and get the benefit of the tremendous demand and good prices which are sure to prevail another season. The Boston Fern, although it has been cultivated many years, is still scarce. As Nephrolepis Piersoni will sell better and be in greater demand even than the Boston Fern, we predict a scarcity of Nephrolepis Piersoni for several years to come and at big prices. Owing to the great and continued demand, we do not expect to be more than able to meet the demand this spring, so that customers can rest assured that there will be no change in price this season.

We offer strong young plants, 2¼-in. pots, at $9.00 per doz.; 50 plants at 60c each; 100 plants at 50c each; 500 plants at 45c each; 1000 plants at 40c each.

Extra large plants, 6-in. pots, $27.00 per doz; 50 plants at $1.80 each; 100 plants at $1.50 each. These large plants will make fine stock for growing on into large specimens for fall trade, and they are also very nice for immediate sales.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Spring Plant Business.

The bedding out time is fast approaching, when some of us have to hustle very lively from the 20th of May to the 10th of June. This bedding plant business is not simply filling flower beds. It is filling vases, veranda boxes, and of late years we are asked to fill hundreds of 12 and 15-inch pots, which are used in various ways. On each side of the steps leading to the front door is a favorite place for them and they are all right there if not overdone. Most of our citizens, even if they have a small lawn surrounding their residences, are reluctant to cut up the sod for making a flower bed, and I don't blame them. A group of shrubs is better taste than a bed of geraniums in the small "front yard," but the veranda box, or these large pots on the steps, don't cut up the lawn and they add color to the garden; and although our leading landscape gardeners are opposed to any high colors being introduced, or even variegated or colored foliage, such as the variegated dogwood, Prunus Pissardii or golden elder, the average eye of taste delights in a brilliant bit of color and will have it in spite of the very refined teachings of the modern landscape artist.

If shaded from the hottest noon hour sun, or if on the north or east exposure, the tuberous rooted begonias make splendid pots for this purpose and have a much tastier effect than geraniums. If fully exposed to the sun some of the dwarf cannas can be used and look well. Some people like a large jar of Caladium esculentum. They look cool and refreshing, but when you use either the cannas or the caladium let there be nothing else in the jar, for they will starve out anything that is with them. The zonal geranium is of course the great standby for these jars, and deservedly so. It's the gayest, healthiest, best tempered, good natured flower that cheers alike the garden of the millionaire and that of the humblest toiler. "Familiarity breeds contempt" we say about bipeds, and so it is with this universal favorite, but no plant gives us so much color and brightness. A mass of one color is always more effective than a mixture, and it most times does better. The semi-double varieties are much the best for this purpose. Two well known varieties—"Nutt" for dark scarlet and "Mrs. Perkins," bright pink—can't be beat. A good white is always in demand. Varieties used in these jars should be of the best constitution. Their roots are crowded, so is their foliage, and some of the coarse growers like old "Prokop Daubeck," which is not desirable for a flower bed, is just the thing for jars and vases. A very free flowering geranium, when its roots are so confined, will flower itself to death and give up the ghost in midsummer, while a hardy, coarse growing variety has its vigor so reduced that it survives the cramped up conditions.

Veranda boxes are usually planted with a mixture, and if they are not so full of color, but the vines hang down and do well, all will be forgiven. Be careful not to use too many callas or caladiums in these boxes. They will make so much root that anything near them will suffer. Study the aspect in which to place these boxes. The morning sun up to 11 a. m. will hurt nothing. It is the burning afternoon, perhaps with roots dry, that scorches the plants. It's no use reasoning with our customers about filling these pots, boxes and vases. There is not one in a hundred but that will insist on their looking attractive and "full" when they are sent home on the first of June, and they are expected to keep right on growing and improving until frost ends their days. If gardeners had the care of them and thinned out plants here and there to the benefit of the others, and watered and sprayed judiciously, how different would be the results. But that is very seldom the case and John Thomas, the coachman, lets drive the hose at them as if they were a fire. The soil for these pots, vases and boxes should be rich—as good stuff as you can get—and here is where I believe that in addition to a third being good animal manure, a 5-inch pot of bone dust could be added to every bushel of soil.

Vases.

There has been quite a change of late in filling cemetery vases, and there is where ninety per cent of all the vase filling is done. In many cemeteries there is nothing else they can do. Our own beautiful Forest Lawn allows no sod to be cut up for flower beds, and although this is not in the interest of the florist, it is most essentially right and insures a beautiful cemetery. People have grown tired of mixed vases that too often do but indifferently and necessitate so called vines around the edge, which blow about and soon become attenuated and shabby. Now the majority of vases in our cemeteries are filled with one species or variety of plant. The Vernon type of begonias—and there are many beautiful varieties—are splendid for the purpose. If a little shaded, the tuberous rooted begonias make some of our handsomest vases, and for sunny positions there is of course nothing equal to the geraniums.

Now about filling these different things, it is laborious work, and a 24 inch iron vase filled is no trifle to handle, but we have found through many years of experience and considerable of that kind of work that it is much better in every way to bring all these receptacles home to your greenhouse to fill. You have the soil; you have the plants to choose from; you will do the work quicker and more satisfactorily. It takes labor to cart home the boxes and pots and the vases to the cemetery and so it does to cart out plants and soil. If filled at home there is no waste; it is better all around. But don't put these vases or boxes under glass. They get a forced start and suffer when exposed. Keep them out of doors if you keep them at all.

We have found that to fill and deliver at once is about the most satisfactory plan of all. It is not half so pleasant a business as cutting $2 Prosperity carnations or $9 American Beauty roses, but we can't have pie all the time.

COPPER ON GERANIUM FOLIAGE.

"S. D. O." says that a few weeks ago he was recommended to use a copper solution for a fungus on his geraniums, which he did. He doesn't say whether it stopped the spread of the fungus, but I hope it did. And now he wants to know how to remove the stain which the copper has left on the leaves. I don't think it can be removed, but it doesn't do any harm. Geraniums are growing so fast now that in two weeks very little of the copper will be seen, and when planted out you will lose sight of it entirely. If you have killed the fungus, be well satisfied and don't mind the blue stain of the copper.

ROSES.

Seasonable Hints.

As the planting season approaches we should see that everything is in order so that no time may be wasted between throwing out the old and replanting the new. Every day lost at that time means a shortening of the growing season, and the growing period given to roses as at present practiced is short enough, usually dating from some time in June up till October, when the young bushes are supposed to be able to bear a crop. This is a very short time in which to develop a good-sized, thrifty bush. When the bustle of carnation planting is over rose planting should be started at once.

Rose growers year after year are realizing the fact that houses which are planted in May or early in June produce the heaviest crops and that the cut is superior in quality to those planted later. Where a strict system of record keeping is in force this statement is emphasized.

Along with the actual work of removing the old soil and refilling with new, there is the disagreeable and tardy work of repairing the benches. I say disagreeable because the ordinary help do not relish such work, and tardy because when we begin repairing there is usually a good deal more to be done than appears necessary at first sight; in fact, it often takes longer to repair an old bench than to build a new one.

Having lumber and nails ready and all necessary tools in good order, barrows, etc., in good condition, will, if attended to before operations begin, make the work more pleasant and satisfactory. The old time fashion of expecting the ordinary help to do this class of work is happily disappearing. The ordinary work during the rest of the season entirely unfitted them for the heavy part of this class of labor and, indeed, without calling on them for extra time it was impossible for them, under such conditions, to attend properly to their ordinary duties, and extra time during hot weather, and especially under glass, is peculiarly enervating, and no doubt has driven many a bright and capable man out of the "genteel craft."

Progressive employers nowadays are fully alive to the fact that it is more profitable to engage sufficient extra help, if it can be had, to accomplish the hardest part of the work as expeditiously as possible, and that the help can tire themselves sufficiently in a ten-hour day.

As the planting season is almost here, I will next week describe the most up to date methods of performing this work, and will follow with the proper care of the young stock. Ribes.

VIOLETS IN COLD FRAMES.

I am asked for directions for the culture of violets in cold frames in a locality in which the thermometer goes as low as twenty degrees below zero, also what sized plants to use, when to plant, etc. I would by all means advise one in such a locality to grow his violets in a house, if possible, for the reason that if so grown one may work among them whenever he desires, regardless of the weather, and can at all times control the temperature. But if it is a case of growing them in frames or not at all, I should proceed to plant them out in the frames at once, the same as I have previously directed for the house, taking care to only set clean, strong, healthy, young, well rooted plants.

Especial care should be taken to see that they are not affected with aphis of any kind, and even if none are visible it is a wise precaution to rig up a large box and fumigate the plants with hydrocyanic acid gas before knocking out of the pots or flats, providing always that you have a competent, careful person to attend to this, who thoroughly understands its deadly nature.

It is well to select a sheltered place for the frames where you will not feel the strong winds, yet you want to avoid hollows where water would settle and freeze about them, or get into the frames. For this reason, also, it is best to always have the ground fully as high if not a few inches higher than that outside the frames.

The violets should have some shade as soon as planted, and will need this most of the summer. This should be two or three feet above the frames to allow free circulation of air, also to leave room for working among them, etc. This shading can be made either of lath or, what is handier in some respects, cheesecloth. Remove this early in the fall and let the plants be well hardened so as to be capable of enduring the changes before them. In case the frames are not heated a supply of shutters or mats will be needed. R. E. S.

FANCY-LEAVED CALADIUMS.

I would like to see an article in the Review on how to start and grow fancy-leaved caladiums, as regards soil, temperature, light, amount of water, whether shade or full light, and size of pots, say for 9-inch bulbs. Should bulbs be entirely covered with earth?

Subscriber.

These are very easy plants to grow. It is a corm, not a bulb. If very large pots are desired you can put three roots into a 12-inch azalea pot. Start them in 4-inch pots and shift later into 6 or 8-inch, or put the three pots into a 12-inch. Let the top of the corm be even with the surface of the soil and when shifting later let it be a little lower. You can hardly give them too high a temperature. They are strictly tropical. When the leaves have once started they want lots of water, and when fully developed, if the water passes freely through the soil, you can hardly overwater. The soil should be one-half good, turfy loam, chopped, not sifted, one-fourth leaf mold, and one-fourth rotted manure. The shading part of the business is the most trouble. If in a dark situation, or under a permanent shade, they will not color to perfection and the leaves will be spindling and weak, and to let the strong rays of the sun pour down on them in July under clear glass would be exhausting. Let them have the fullest light up to 10 a. m. and again after 4 p. m., but during the five or six bright hours a little shade on sunny days, and with plenty of water, plenty of heat, and some good soil, you will have no trouble in growing fancy-leaved caladiums.

CHRYSANTHEMUM TROUBLES.

Kindly let me know through your paper how to get rid of the miniature butterflies. They have infested one of our houses where we are growing chrysanthemums. A. O. D.

About the only way to keep down the butterflies is to catch all you can when you see them flying around in the house. This will not clean them out, but the more that are killed the fewer eggs there will be deposited on the foliage. The eggs can be found deposited in small circular masses and these may be crushed between the thumb and finger. They will be found on the under sides of the leaves and must be closely looked for.

One can often catch a brood of the larvæ just after it has hatched out by turning over a leaf that is beginning to be skeletonized, which shows that the youngsters are just beginning to feed. After the brood has scattered it is hard work to find them all. When the caterpillars are exceptionally numerous Paris green may be used to poison them, but it must be sprayed on very weak, for I have seen it injure the young growths in a greenhouse.

There is a small butterfly that is often a great nuisance in mignonette houses, and it is often kept out by tacking mosquito netting on the ventilators, but this is hardly practicable in growing chrysanthemums, as the doors should be left open night and day during the summer months. BRIAN BORU.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

By invitation of the American Institute of the City of New York, the Chrysanthemum Society of America will hold its annual exhibition November 10 to 12, 1903, in the Armory of the Old Guard, corner of Broadway and Forty-ninth street. The schedule of premiums will be issued in the near future. Besides a large list of liberal prizes, in the regular classes, there will be many special prizes offering great inducements to exhibitors. A number of local horticultural societies will offer prizes to be competed for by their own members. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society offers the following prizes to be competed for by members of that society: For twenty-five blooms in twenty-five varieties, $25 and $15; for twelve blooms in twelve varieties, $15 and $10; also $25 for the best vase of any one variety, open to all.

The E. G. Hill Company offers $15 and $10 for the best ten blooms of any seedling, not in commerce, or foreign variety not disseminated in the United States prior to January 1, 1903.

There will be many other special classes, which will be announced later.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION.

"The American Carnation—How to Grow It," by C. W. Ward, has been issued and a copy has reached us from the publishers, the A. T. De la Mare Printing and Publishing Co., New York.

We had expected a good deal in a book on this subject from the pen of Mr. Ward, and are not disappointed. It is a most valuable contribution to the literature of the carnation, and indeed to that of commercial floriculture in general. The book contains 290 large pages and paper and printing are both first-class in every respect.

An excellent portrait of the author appears as a frontispiece, and in the first chapter the "Origin and early history of the carnation" is thoroughly covered, bringing into a small compass a complete record of all that is known regarding the early development of the carnation. Chapter II is devoted to a record of "The Carnation in America," and contains many very interesting facts. Other chapters are devoted to "General greenhouse culture," "Soils," "Manures and fertilizers," "Propagating and shipping young stock," "Treatment of young carnation stock preparatory to planting out," "Field culture," "Lifting and planting," "Treatment after benching," "Picking, packing and shipping the flowers," "Insects and preventives," "Diseases and injuries," "Packing and shipping field grown plants," "Houses for carnations," "Bench construction," "Sub-irrigation," "Greenhouse heating," "Carnations for summer blooming and pot culture," "Raising carnations from seed," "Various classifications of the carnation," "The ideal carnation," "The future of the carnation," "A calendar of operations for the year," "The American Carnation Society." And there are chapters on carnation culture in their respective localities by Messrs. Fred Dorner, Peter Fisher, E. G. Hill, Henry Weber, Richard Witterstaetter, W. R. Shelmire and John H. Dunlop. Each of these last is accompanied by a portrait and sketch of the life of the writer, and there are also portraits and biographical sketches of Charles Zeller and John Dailledouze.

The book is illustrated by many fine half tone engravings from photographs and there are four colored plates.

In the chapter on soils the subject of soil sterilization is exhaustively treated, and in another the sub-irrigation question is treated at considerable length. As Mr. Ward has carried on many experiments and spent considerable money in demonstrating the commercial possibilities of this method of watering his conclusions will be of great interest to all growers of the carnation.

We are pleased to add so valuable a book to our library and expect to frequently refer to it. Mr. Ward is certainly entitled to the hearty thanks of all carnation growers, and the publishers are also to be commended for having carried out their part of the work in such an admirable manner.

UNION GARDENERS.

Referring to the recent article under above heading, is it any wonder that help should get into a disgruntled state of mind under some of the conditions imposed upon them and that union organizers are receiving the glad hand of welcome from them?

The craft calls for men of superior intelligence, of a studious and thinking nature, and who must also have retentive memories to be able to fill positions of responsibility in a satisfactory manner.

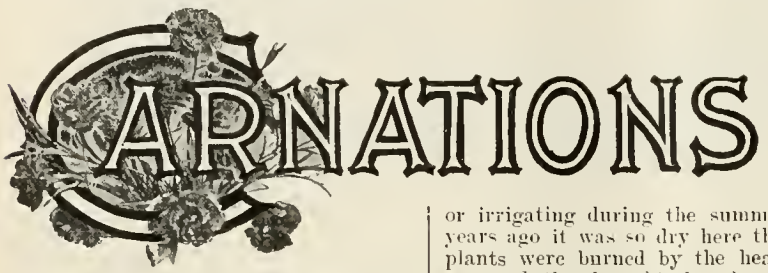
One must have an education that would fit him for many of the higher walks of life, be constantly studying the secrets of plant life and how to combat the various diseases and pests which are ever ready to attack his stock.

In some commercial places the growers' duties commence at 4:30 or 5 o'clock in the morning and continue with short intervals for meals till 6 p. m. In some establishments it is looked upon as a favor if work is discontinued even then. Coupled with this is the absolutely necessary Sunday labor, but in many places there is a good deal more called for than is necessary, such as selling, making up designs, etc., and all for what? Not so much coin of the realm as his next door neighbor, who is perhaps not so well equipped mentally or physically, brings home on Saturday night, or perchance at noon, who has worked forty-eight to fifty-four hours against his seventy-two to seventy-four hours, and who has the certainty of spending an uninterrupted Sunday in the bosom of his family, because he belongs to his union.

Now are the owners of greenhouses under any handicap, as compared with other enterprises, that they should call on their help for such services, and can they lay the blame on the shoulders of the employe if he tries to escape them?

This article is not designed to favor unionism among florists, as at present practiced in other industries, as, if affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as it likely would be, the conditions imposed could scarcely be carried out with advantage to the profession at large. However, I trust the movement will have the effect of ameliorating some of the conditions under which the help have labored so long.

I regret that a certain class of employes can see nothing but degradation in this movement. That the florist business can be run and made to pay handsomely by confining the labor to ten hours a day, starting at 7 o'clock in the morning and with no unnecessary Sunday labor, is beyond the possibility of a doubt. J. J. C.



CARNATION NOTES—WEST.

By this time you may have all your carnations in the field if the weather has been favorable. In our section we are having a dry spell just now, which has compelled some to stop planting until we get a rain and the soil is moistened up again. Those plants which were moved to the field up to a day or two ago are not suffering, as it was possible to dig up plenty of moist soil to set the roots in. This is where your side hill plant comes in nicely, as you can plow up moist soil and go right ahead planting.

Regular cultivating should begin as soon as the plants are in the ground. Nearly every place has a hand cultivator of one kind or another, or at least it should have. It will save you much time and money in a season, as it will take only an hour or two to go through a patch that would take all day to go over with a hoe. Of course you can't dispense with the hoe altogether, as you will need to loosen the soil and cut out weeds close to the plants and between them in the row, which you cannot do with the cultivator.

How often you should cultivate depends on your soil and the weather, but there is no danger of going over them too often. We make it a point to cultivate as soon after each rain as we can work the soil, and if we do not have a rain for a week after having cultivated, we go over them again anyway. During midsummer we sometimes cultivate two or three times between rains, and it certainly does the plants good.

Have you never noticed how the sun will dry a crust over soil that seemed quite dry even when you cultivated before? This crust must be kept broken up, and if you do keep it broken up you will not find any necessity for watering or irrigating during the summer. Two years ago it was so dry here that many plants were burned by the heat of the sun and the drought, but by continual cultivating we kept our carnations growing nicely. The plants were not so large as other years, but they were well matured and stocky and when they got into the moist soil in houses they took right hold and grew wonderfully. By December you would not have known that there had been a scarcity of rain the summer before, so don't be afraid to cultivate. A. F. J. Baur.

CARNATION NOTES—EAST.

Soil for Indoor Culture.

In preparing soil for this method of culture, particular care should be taken that the best quality only be employed, for it must be taken into account that this soil is to complete the growth of the plants after their short stay outside in pots, also must do duty during blooming season. Also, in view of the fact that a plant making growth alone for future demands to be made on it, the requirements are different than when both growth and bloom are wanted. So then, it is obvious that the soil must needs be somewhat differently composed and handled.

The term "best quality" as applied to soil, must not be taken to mean that it should be extremely rich, but rather that its mechanical and plant food giving qualities be so adjusted that sturdy growth will be produced. Turf from good land piled up with alternate layers of cow manure (six parts soil to one of manure) or good top soil upon which were grown crimson clover or other nitrogen gathering crops, the same being plowed in, allowed to decompose and using a like amount of manure when throwing into piles, will give good results provided it is laid up the summer previous to its being used, allowed to lie all winter and turned over at least twice before putting on the benches.

Cow manure is to be preferred on account of its slow action and consequent lasting powers. Frequent turning breaks up the manure and soil into fine particles, thus securing the proper mechanical condition.

Soil prepared in this manner contains all the elements necessary for the plants to BEGIN life under glass. Suppose the plants are set June 15; in a month apply a top dressing of hard wood ashes that you know to be unleached, allowing a 3-inch pot full to a row of six plants. About August 15 repeat the operation, using the same quantity of ashes.

Wood ashes are very beneficial, supplying potash in a form which is at once available, also containing lime in good percentage, the soil is kept sweet and the surface free from the green growth resulting from frequent watering. Phosphoric acid is also present in wood ashes, and with what is naturally contained in soil and cow manure it is in sufficient supply to meet all requirements during the growing period. Nitrogen will be in good evidence if the soil is prepared in the manner given above.

I would not advise the use of bone meal in any way until the point is reached where it is decided that no further stopping be done, the plants being allowed to run into bloom. At that time apply at the rate given for wood ashes at intervals of two weeks until such an amount is used as will equal the quantity usually mixed with soil prepared to receive field grown plants. The bone should be lightly worked into the soil, being careful not to disturb any roots.

There is a vast difference in bone meal, some brands being almost worthless. As it is not in my province to advertise any particular kind I will only state that the brand we use is not the lowest in price, but the guaranteed analysis is given as follows:

Nitrogen, 4.12 per cent.
Ammonia, 5 per cent.
Phosphoric acid, 20 per cent.
Bone phosphate, 45 per cent.

Good results have always attended its use and as to its not being available for the plants when applied as advised, to which question may arise, I will state that not only do the plants show its immediate effect, but the soil on being taken from the bench a year later and used in an experimental way to grow various other plants, failed to furnish proper nourishment, and this, too, after still later applications of liquid manure, top dressings of sheep dung and bone mixed with soil.

My reasons for not using bone until late are, first, it is not necessary, and is not only a waste, but may result in the plants being overfed. Second, valuable elements are lost when wood ashes and bone meal are used nearly together. Third, it is carrying out the idea of "proper rotation of the chemical bill of fare" referred to in notes of March 12. Recollect, this article is devoted wholly to indoor culture, or rather a compromise between field and under glass continually. Geo. S. Osborn.

BENCHING FROM POTS.

I am short of field room and would like to plant my carnations directly from the pots to the benches. Here in Colorado we have nothing like a warm night. The plants are all healthy and the houses have good side ventilation.

A. A. W.

The question of indoor culture has been threshed out pretty thoroughly in the REVIEW lately and you must judge for yourself whether you should adopt that mode of culture. You know your climate, and it may be possible that indoor culture will be just the thing out in your locality. If I were short of field room I would not hesitate to plant most varieties on the benches from the pots. I would try to proceed about as follows: Pot into 4-inch pots about March 15 and as soon as the weather will permit plunge the pots outside where they can be watered as much as need be. About June 1, or earlier if you have the benches ready, plant into the benches where they are to stay. Give all the ventilation you can, but do not shade the glass at all. Keep the soil loosened up and give plenty of water after they start into growth. I do not know what varieties you grow, so I cannot tell you which would do best under this treatment. Mrs. Lawson would enjoy it, but I would not expect good results from White Cloud.

A. F. J. BAUR.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The amount of cut flowers sent to the market during the past week has been enormous. There is a lull, too, in dinner and matrimonial functions and the abundance of outdoor bloom has had a bad effect upon the demand for regular shipments. The very finest American Beauties have been selling at $10 a hundred. Brides and Maids seldom command over $4 to $5 for the very best in the market. Carnations, too, are abundant and prices about as low as they have touched for the year. Violets are "out of the running," though a few are still to be had.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was well attended, some thirty-five new members being present. The expected exhibit of spring flowers did not materialize, but Mr. Ward's new book on the carnation was on exhibition and easily scored 100 points. Resolutions on the death of Mr. Donohue were presented by Chas. Weathered. Mr. Wallace read the resolutions on the death of J. W. Withers, a tribute to his character and ability and an eloquent expression of the sincere sorrow and sympathy of his fellow members. The transportation committee was "shy," only one of its members being present, so information as to the route which the club will take on its trip to Milwaukee is not yet available. All wish to visit Chicago on the trip, but many spoke kindly of Detroit, appreciating the hospitable invitation to stop at that city. Mr. Traendly, of the outing committee, reported rapid progress, especially in the matter of prizes and advertisements for the programme. The ladies are especially remembered in the prize competitions. Since my last report J. G. & A. Esler have donated twenty-five feet of their best rubber hose for the sack race, A. A. Macdonald a $5 silk umbrella for the ladies' race, and W. H. Siebrecht a $5 medal for the handsomest lady in the boat, unmarried, himself to be the judge! It will be a great outing and no member has license to stay away. The house committee was honored with a further note of confidence and funds, so that the inner man will continue to be refreshed at the monthly meetings. Badges were ordered prepared for the club members who go to Milwaukee. Jos. A. Millang, the "Beauty King," was elected a member. Theo. Lang was appointed captain of the New York Florists' Bowling Club, so a team at the convention is now assured.

News Notes.

The spring moving fever has about reached a climax, and the majority are now settled in their new places. Siebrecht & Son have been fortunate in securing a corner on Fifth avenue at Thirty-eighth street, very near the spot where they have held sway for almost thirty years. Some idea of values on this great thoroughfare may be gathered from the fact that this firm has engaged to pay a rental of $3,000 a month for twenty-one years to secure the property. A new six-story building will be erected and much of it sub-let for offices. The new store of the Rosary is completed and Mr. Troy has furnished it elaborately. The handsome conservatory on the roof was erected by Thomas W. Weathered's Sons.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society of New York began May 13 in the Museum building at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, when an illustrated address was given by Mr. Farquhar, of Boston, on the "Flowers, Fields and Woods of Japan." The exhibition in the large hall of the Museum building is a very fine one and among the prizes which will be awarded is a special one of $50 for the best novelty.

Alfred Dimmock sails for Europe on June 11 and Julius Roehrs and his wife will accompany him.

Ernst Asmus has recovered from a severe illness of several weeks' duration and will soon be in condition for his annual hunting trip.

The auction sales continue at Elliott's, with large audiences, and excellent prices prevail.

John A. Scollay, of Brooklyn, has enlarged and refitted his office at 74 Myrtle avenue and reports a great spring season. He is adding greenhouse building to his repertoire and is very busy at present on large contracts at Glen Cove and Newport.

A. H. D. Poynter, of Brooklyn, one of the veteran florists of the City of Churches, has retired from business after an experience of over thirty years and has well earned the rest and competency that crown his declining years.

Frank Millang and wife left on Monday for a three weeks' pleasure trip to the Pacific coast.

The Madison, Summit and Chatham wagon express still continues its morning trips and gives the usual satisfaction.

The report that Joseph Fleischman was one of the jurors in the Maffia murder case was not correct.

Chas. Millang is becoming quite a plantsman. His conservatories are full of fine kentias and he has done a nice trade in bay trees.

The cut flower market is heavily supplied with purple lilac and pansies. There is no foundation for the report of dissatisfaction with the new location.

Riedel & Co. have painted and papered their store until it "lifts up its head" with any of them.

Mackintosh is settled in his new store at 1144 Broadway. It is a beauty, double the size of the old, and handsomely fitted up. One of his first orders was a $200 basket of orchids and American Beauties, sent to the Chicago financier, John W. Gates, on his departure for Europe on the Oceanic a few days ago.

Hicks & Crawbuck report their Brooklyn business so rapid in its growth that Mr. Hicks has been obliged to join Mr. Crawbuck at headquarters, leaving the New York branch in the hands of Geo. H. Blake, the manager. The shipping trade of this house to out-of-town florists has far exceeded its expectations.

Jos. J. Levy, with A. Guttman, the wholesale florist, departs for Gravesend next week to take up another line of business for the summer.

Alfred Langjahr, of Brooklyn, has fully recovered from his illness and reports an excellent trade, with new horse and wagon accompaniments.

A new firm in the growing of plants for the New York market has been established at Winfield, L. I., by Messrs. Mackay & Marr, whose experience in this line of work has been developed under the able superintendence of John Scott, the Keap street florist, Brooklyn.

H. F. Henry, of the firm of Henry & Lee, has just returned from his annual trip to Bermuda.

Miss Anna, daughter of Julius Roehrs, of Rutherford, will be married on May 25.

C. H. Joosten is now occupying his new store and office at 201 West street.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The past few days have seen largely increased supplies in all lines and demand has fallen off, although Monday brought many orders from out of town. Tuesday was by far the worst day the trade has seen this season, unwieldy receipts and only spasmodic demand. The large buyers ruled the market and clean-up sales were at low figures.

There are large supplies of long Beauties of very fair quality, although the color is somewhat injured as the result of the bright sun, which is also making the stock more or less open. Quality is also somewhat off on the roses, but there are enough of the best grade for all orders for small lots and on big sales the price has had to be so low this week that little has been expected as to sorting the stock. The top price has been 5 to 6 cents, with practically no bottom.

There are at last more carnations than the market can use to advantage and there are reports of sales of day-old stock at 10 cents a bunch, but the better goods have brought $1 to $3 per hundred, according to quality and the needs of the customer. It is noted that white go slow.

Miscellaneous stock includes a big assortment and heavy supplies. There are large quantities of very good sweet peas and peonies of white, pink and red are in full supply. Callas and Harrisii are standing around. Lilac is not salable, and outdoor tulips, except a few Parrots, are slow. However, this condition is not expected to prevail for long and Decoration Day is close at hand.

Notes.

The announcement is made of the dissolution of the firm of McKellar & Winterson, C. W. McKellar retiring. The business will be carried on as before by Mr. Winterson as the E. F. Winterson Company. Mr. McKellar is considering a connection outside the trade. His address for the present will be 405 E. Ontario street.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has reports that the cape jasmine crop promises to be heavy and of good quality.

Carl Thomas, of Randall's, is recuperating at his old home at West Springfield, Pa.

Bassett & Washburn report a total clean-out on all rose and carnation plants. They say the demand is heavier than ever before.

J. A. Budlong will grow a 300-foot house of chrysanthemums this season.

Visitors.

P. T. Huddart, Salt Lake City; E. Onwerkerk, Boskoop, Holland; W. Taat, of M. Van Waveren, Hillegom, Holland; L. Glaser, Dubuque, Ia.; M. Reukauf, Philadelphia; R. Witterstaetter and his bride, Cincinnati.

Bowling.

Last Saturday evening the team from the Chicago Carnation Co. came in from Joliet to be beaten three straight games by the McKellar & Winterson team, whom they had previously defeated at Joliet. The following is the score:

DETROIT.

Plan Carnation Meeting.

The meeting of the board of directors of the American Carnation Society in our city on May 6 was a very small one in point of attendance, for only Mr. Scott and Mr. Vesey put in an appearance. But it was an earnest business session that sat from 2 p. m. until 6 and considered important matters. There being such a small attendance, the president took pleasure in inviting President Beard and Messrs. Sullivan and Breitmeyer, of the local club, to take part in the business of the day, and they did much in the way of suggestions, etc. It was thought that the premium list, as adopted, could not fail to bring out a fine show of blooms at the March meeting. The preliminary lists will soon be sent out.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the local club occurring on that evening, Messrs. Scott and Vesey were able to be present and a most enjoyable time was had, such a one as can only be had with Great Scott present. Judge Vesey threw off his dignity and made one of our members say "I should like to be tried before him if I had to be tried before anyone." And right here I might say that he is a bowler and the Detroit team cannot do better than to secure him on their side at Milwaukee for his judicial mind and aim. The members of the Detroit club are to be congratulated on the enjoyment of such a pleasant occasion and we wish our visitors might come more often.

RAG.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

There has been a long spell of bright, clear weather and it has made roses very plentiful. Some of the Main street stores are perfect rose shows, and the old familiar signs, "Roses 5 cents each," have been trotted out and displayed in many windows. Strange to say, carnations are as scarce as roses are plentiful. Why, we don't know, but so it is. Perhaps many houses have been thrown out after Easter. You can buy 1,000 good tea roses at a lower price than you can buy 1,000 carnations, and obtain them much easier.

Visit to Detroit.

Last Wednesday we found ourselves in the beautiful city of Detroit. The morning was delightful and a little telephoning soon brought us in contact with Geo. H. Rackham and Judge Vesey, of Ft. Wayne. President Rackham had written to every member of the Carnation Society's executive board, and although not expecting many to be present, he received some hints and suggestions from all which were given serious consideration. Messrs. Rackham, Vesey, P. Breitmeyer, Beard, William Scott, and some other members of the local club, spent an afternoon in arranging a programme and schedule of prizes for the annual exhibition of the Carnation Society, to be held in Detroit the first week of March. Mr. Rackham will doubtless publish the list as arranged, and I feel sure that more and better work was done in those few hours than could have been done by two months of correspondence. The florists of Detroit are very enthusiastic over the carnation meeting, and from Detroit's position on the map it's likely to be a good one in all respects. They will also be strongly represented at the convention of the Society of American Florists in Milwaukee. Somehow it's in the air. You can feel that Milwaukee is going to see a great gathering, and so it ought to be.

We had little time to visit among the craft, but we rode out to the Beard Bros.' place, which I had never seen. Their place is much more extensive than I had pictured it, and carnations, which they do well, are their specialty. They also have several houses of well grown geraniums and other bedding plants. They are strictly wholesale, happy people. Now, when we have a dry summer, these gentlemen are strictly "in it," but when a wet season occurs, as last year, it is very much otherwise. You have only to dig down three or four feet into the fat, rich, black soil and you have a well of water that a fire engine could not pump dry.

There are not many stores in the country doing a finer business than the one presided over by Philip Breitmeyer, whom everybody knows, and there are not many handsomer stores than that of Mr. Sullivan, on Woodward avenue, in the very heart of the business section. But the thing that surprised and pleased me most on that visit was the Florists' Club meeting in the evening, and I was told that it was only an average attendance. There were thirty-two able-bodied, good-looking men present. This I consider wonderful. Are there not cities five times as large that do not do as well? I believe so. And it made me much ashamed of our efforts in that line. It was a very pleasant evening and Judge Vesey caused much merriment with his Hoosier anecdotes.

Botanic Gardens.

We journeyed out to the Botanic Gardens a week or two ago in the company of Chas. H. Keitsch, and when we had corralled Prof. Cowell we undertook the pleasant task of dividing the sum of $1,000 given by the H. A. Meldrum Co. for its chrysanthemum show next November. No doubt Mr. Keitsch will send you and the other journals the list of premiums, and I shall only say that few classes and substantial premiums was the request of the firm that is supplying the sinews of war. The grand range of glass at South Park is now very interesting and receives many visitors, but if it were in the neighborhood of the "300," or anywhere in the Delaware Park district, it would be visited by a hundred to one who sees it now. The palms and cycads have grown immensely. The large-growing ferns have wonderfully developed, and many of the economic plants interest largely. South Park is a beautiful and interesting spot and the view northward from the high ridge is fine. It is a shame that parks are built and fine ranges of glass erected and then a most niggardly sum allowed for maintenance, not one-half enough to even keep them free of weeds. It does not say much for our boasted twentieth century civilization that we need such an army of policemen to control our people's behavior and can afford only a few dozen gardeners in all the city to keep the parks looking neat and attractive. We have a long way to travel yet before we are out of the woods, and barbarism is close behind us.

MEMPHIS, TENN.

Death of Jacob S. Williamson.

Jacob S. Williamson, at one time a leading florist and rose grower in this section, died May 10, after a long illness. Mr. Williamson was a florist by reason of his natural love of horticulture. Possessed of ample means, a graduate of Princeton and the Albany Law School, a practicing attorney with an acute analytical mind, he year by year drifted into his favorite occupation of growing roses, personally superintending the growing and sale of flowers. At one time he had the monopoly here of all first-class decorations and banquet work, in which he was an adept. Courteous to all, kindly disposed to all the members of his adopted profession, the craft in this city loses one of its brightest members. C. H. H.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business is quiet. Until commencements there is little likelihood of much improvement. Flowers are so very plentiful that it seems probable we shall have some difficulty in getting enough early in June, at least that is the opinion of some of the experts who so carefully feel the pulse of the market.

Roses are not selling particularly well. The average prices are falling off, very few indeed bringing the top quotations. Carnations are very fine and plentiful. The price on this flower has declined tremendously as compared with one month ago. Not very much valley is coming in, but what little there is coming is more than enough to meet all demands. Daffodils and violets are over. The first peonies have made their appearance, medium-sized flowers of the colored varieties being the scouts of the great army that is to follow. Double petunias are in in force, giving good value for design work. Lavender sweet peas command the top price. They are less plentiful than the Blanche Ferry type, or even the white, though the latter are also much prized at times.

Hightstown.

Hightstown, in New Jersey, is best known floriculturally for its violet growers. There are half a dozen or more of them, and among them they produced millions of fragrant singles and doubles last season. There has been great rejoicing in Hightstown this year, because the violet blooming season, which threatened to end prematurely during the warm weather in March, was actually prolonged until Friday, May 8, when the last shipment reached Samuel S. Pennock, who handles nearly all the stock. The season of emptying and cleaning the violet houses is now on and will be pushed rapidly forward to get everything in readiness for early replanting.

Notes.

Leo Niessen has already received several shipments of peonies.

R. G. Palmer is rebuilding his place. Three of the houses are ready for the glass.

Prof. Stewardson Brown lectured before the Germantown Horticultural Society, at Association Hall, last Monday evening.

Edward Reid has had some very good shipping orders this week. One, especially, called for hundreds and thousands of six or eight different kinds of flowers. His stock of carnations and sweet peas is particularly fine.

Harry Marchant, who has been successively and successfully salesman for Edwin Lonsdale, Chas. W. Cox and Chas. A. Knapp, is embarking on the sea of greenhouse enterprise on his own account. He is building houses near Joy Hill Cemetery, with the idea, it is understood, of growing cut flowers for the wholesale market in winter and pot flowers for cemetery work in spring.

William J. Baker is still receiving as fine Roosevelt carnations as in the winter.

H. Bayersdorfer & Company [illegible] a bit with their new [illegible] It is colored to match foliage and has proved very popular with the [illegible] It is their own idea and seems a move in the right direction.

Eugene Bernheimer has been making a specialty of lily Jacques and lavender sweet peas. He is also receiving double petunias and Easter lilies, which are scarce now.

Alexander Patterson, a nephew of Robert and George Craig, was lately elected a member of the Florists' Club.

Thomas Foulds of Gwynedd, is bringing in double petunias. PHIL.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Trade has not as yet recovered, being still dull in all its branches, with the exception of funeral work and a few wedding orders. There is still an excessive supply of cut flowers at the wholesale houses, which will continue while the present dullness of business prevails.

Roses are overstocked and there is no indication of a decrease. It seems as though the supply grows larger every day. The growers will not stand the low prices long and will soon pull out and plant young stock. A few choice ones bring a fair price, but the remainder has to be sold very cheap by the thousands. This applies to the smaller roses only. Good, long American Beauties are selling fairly well at $2 and $3 per dozen. The short stock has very little call for store trade and only the fakirs are handling them and at very cheap prices. There is a big lot of fine Brides and Bridesmaids in the market that bring $4 and $5 in 100 lots.

Carnations are also very plentiful and sold the past week as low as $1.50 per 1,000. Lawson, Flora Hill and Day break are among the best that come in. White and the extra fancy varieties are the only kind for which there is any call. Two dollars per 100 is about the best price for them.

Harrisii and calla lilies are still overstocked and plenty of them are going to waste; $5 and $6 per 100 is all they will bring at the present time. Outdoor valley is now in and the price is low. Sweet peas are becoming more abundant and the lighter shades are selling well at 50 and 75 cents per 100. The above, with plenty of outdoor stock, make up the daily supply at the wholesale houses.

In the plant line, sales have not been so large as expected, but the very cool weather we have had has a great deal to do with the slow demand. At the Union Market a great many plants are offered at very low prices. Very little bedding has as yet been done, but with warmer weather, which has been promised, the bedding season will begin in earnest. Planting at the different parks throughout the city will also be in full swing this week.

Notes.

It has been reported that Tony Wilson has sold his place at Kinmswick, Mo., to a Mr. Dauerheim, of St. Louis, a dealer in wall paper. He will build four new houses for carnations and roses and will grow for this market. It is also understood that Mr. Wilson will run the place for him.

Chas. Connon has closed up his place at Seventh and Locust streets, which he opened shortly after the [illegible] Ellison & Fessler [illegible]

Otto Koenig and Fred Memmen are doing a rushing business in cemetery work, their places being right opposite the two largest cemeteries.

Robert Tesson reports that [illegible] lease on his Grand avenue store and will sell the fixtures and retire from the retail business for good. Mr. Tesson expects to begin building his new place in East St. Louis on his return from Europe. He expects to take the trip by the end of the present month, and return in time to meet all his friends at Milwaukee next August. J. J. B.

BALTIMORE.

We are having here the ideal spring, which the poets apostrophize as the sum of loveliness. The days are warm, but not too warm, the ardent rays of the sun tempered by cool and bracing airs; the skies blue as sapphire, veiled at times by clouds of fleecy lace, harbingers rather of continued fair weather than of rain, which begins to be needed, the surface being dry, though the under strata and the water courses are full of moisture. The nights of the past week were cool, for three nights descending to 42 degrees, and perhaps even lower in exposed situations. These conditions make our climate, as a rule, enjoyable and salubrious; but some mildew is in evidence, and most rose growers are keeping up their fires.

Carnations are planted out, as a rule, but they have not grown much as yet.

The Market.

Trade the early part of last week was stirring; after the middle it was rather dull. Cut flowers are coming in in great quantities. Roses are not to be boasted of generally so far as quality is concerned, though some good ones are received. Beauties are in excess of requirements and prices, even of good ones, steadily decline. Weber & Sons are sending in quantity from the mountain tops fine Harrisii lilies of marked size and extraordinary texture. Carnations are abundant, though prices are fairly maintained by the persistent demand. There have been one or two public affairs and several funerals which consumed considerable quantities of flowers and business was impartially divided.

The demand is quick now for bedding plants and the markets are bright with varying colors of the popular favorites.

The local nurserymen did an exceptionally large business this spring. So great is the demand on them that more of them refuse longer to plant out the trees and shrubbery they sell. Several declare that hereafter they will only sell stock from their nurseries, the demand on their time, in lifting, marking, shipping and delivering, coupled with the scarcity of labor drilled to the work of planting, putting it beyond their capacity to do this satisfactorily. On every side new places are being laid out and planted, and the fever for country life and rural residences is ever on the increase.

Various Items.

The sellers of plants and flowers in the Lexington market are agitating for the erection of a building to accommodate them and their wares. By some municipal authority the hours have been restricted during which they may [illegible] cupy their spaces in the market and they look upon this as a hardship.

Considerable building will be done this season. Thos. Stevenson & Bro. will put up two new houses.

Erdman & Bro. have built a new house. This firm has just finished planting a house in white Cochet roses for summer blooming.

Philip B. Welch, finding his quarters at Waverly too constricted, has bought near Emory Grove a farm of some sixty-three acres. Doubtless we will soon have to record the erection there of a block of houses.

Robert L. Graham is putting in a Kroeschell hot water boiler at his place. So far as we know, this is the only boiler of this make in the vicinity of Baltimore.

James Simpson, a well-known florist, and a thoroughly good fellow, is seriously ill in one of our hospitals from blood poisoning. B.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is quieting down somewhat, yet there is a great deal being done; but as prices have dropped considerably it does not run into money so quickly. The weather is much warmer and this accounts, in part, for the decrease in trade. Funeral work has been the mainstay and there has been a great deal of it to do. H. D. Edwards, of Newport, Ky., was right in it with this kind of trade. He had some large funeral orders, and there was no difficulty in securing flowers for them.

The supply of roses has increased wonderfully. Brides and Bridesmaids are almost a glut, and the price is falling. The supply of good stock is not very plentiful, but there are quantities of mediums and short-stemmed stock. Of long Liberties there are not enough to go around, but short-stemmed ones are coming in in large numbers. Golden Gates of all grades are scarce, and as is always the case, there is a big demand for them and all are sold out quickly. American Beauties are just about equal to the demand. The supply is not large and they sell very well and at good prices for this season.

Carnations are showing the effect of the warmer weather by an increase in supply. White ones are still scarce. There are plenty of pink for all orders. Murphys White, which was the only reliable white in this market this winter, is throwing some A 1 blooms at present. Dick Witterstaetter says that it has done first-rate for him this season, and that where a commercial, free-blooming variety is wanted, also one that is easy to grow, it would be hard to find its equal.

Harrisii lilies are still in over-supply, with very little demand. Callas also are slow sale at present. Outdoor lily of the valley, in the absence of indoor stock, sells very well; the last bringing from $1 to $1.50 per 100.

Jos. R. Goldman, of Middletown, O., is about again, after several weeks' severe illness. He intends spending the summer in California, leaving here some time in June.

Various Items.

The Ohio Cut Flower Co. is now installed in its new quarters, at northwest corner of Third and Main streets.

Last Thursday evening Richard Witterstaetter was married to Miss Louise Dinkelaker. Congratulations are in order and I join with Dick's many friends in wishing him and his bride many years of happiness.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Society was held Saturday evening. But few members found it convenient to attend. There was a quorum present, however, and as nominations for board of governors were in order, the following ten members were nominated: R. Witterstaetter, W. Schuman, C. J. Ohmer, Geo. Murphy, W. Loeber, Max Rudolph, Geo. Corbett, Ben. George, Chas. Jones and Louis Kyrk. The annual meeting occurs next month, when five of the above will be chosen as officers for the ensuing year. Considerable time was taken up in talking up the club's annual outing. Several places were suggested to hold same, but the general opinion seemed to be that a trip to the Soldiers' Home, at Dayton, O., would be the best and bring out the largest crowd. The matter was finally held over until the next meeting, when it will be discussed further and a suitable place decided upon.

H. M. Altick, of Dayton, O., and Gustave Obermeyer, of Parkersburg, W. Va., were callers. C. J. Ohmer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

With a few weddings and with funeral work there is enough to keep all hands busy, but prices are down and to stay. Fine stock can be had in roses at 6 to 8 cents, seconds at your own price. Sweet peas from outdoors are making their appearance and sell at $1 per 100. Carnations are holding up well at 2 to 3 cents.

Geo. Shaffer is doing quite a nice business at his new branch store, which is proving a success.

Mayberry & Hoover, of Fourteenth street, claim this as their banner season.

The good amount of business with florists during the past season will, no doubt, send a good number to the coming convention at Milwaukee. The bowling team is working hard to that end. Below will be found the score.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Everything has been very quiet in the line of business for the past week. Flowers are extremely plentiful and prices are so low that it is hardly worth while for me to give quotations on them. Carnations have arrived at the lowest ebb possible regarding prices, and roses are only a trifle better. In a couple of weeks, however, the glut will be over.

Notes.

Instead of the regular monthly meeting of the California State Floral Society, a reception was held at Central Hall, 223 Sutter street, on Friday, May 8, from 2 to 5 o'clock.

John Chappalone, a nurseryman and resident of Menlo Park, lies in the City Hospital with a fractured skull, and it is feared he will not recover. He was thrown from an electric car in an effort to recover his hat, which had blown off.

Wm. Cook, for several years in the employ of Chas. Abraham, and a well known gardener, died on May 3. He was a native of England and aged thirty-seven years. He leaves a wife but no family.

John Carbone, the well known florist of West Berkeley, Cal., is about to erect another carnation house. Mr. Carbone is one of our most successful growers and his stock always brings top prices.

The Spring Exhibition.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society has just held its most successful flower show, succesful both as to quantity and quality of exhibits and in attendance and interest shown by the general public. It was, however, a little too early in the season for outdoor roses and as a consequence this class of stock was shown only in limited quantities. In greenhouse roses Ferrari Bros. had by far the finest exhibit, their Beauties, Kaiserins and Testouts being especially noticeable. John H. Sievers captured first prize for largest and best collection of carnations, and F. Ludemann for outdoor roses. Schwerin Bros. exhibited a fine lot of seedling carnations. F. Aebi, of Berkeley, was awarded the first prize for a specimen rose. The California Nursery Co., of Niles, made a very large exhibit of shrubbery, plants and hardy flowers. John H. Sievers had the finest display of house palms and H. Plath received first prize for his exhibit of ferns in pots and baskets. A. Hilbert, the well known Geary street florist, was awarded first prize for the most artistic floral design. It consisted of a very large basket of iris, valley and ferns. Messrs. George Walters, Sidney Clack and W. H. Waddington were the judges and their awards seemed to meet with the approval of all concerned. G.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Plant Registration.

The Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O., have submitted for registration, Climbing Tea Rose "Pillar of Gold." This rose was found growing in the open field among fifty plants of climbing Bridesmaid and is supposed to be a sport from that variety. It combines with the climbing habit of Climbing Bridesmaid the foliage of Duchess de Brabant and the Flower of Mlle. Franciska Kruger. Buds pointed, first showing pink, when half expanded coppery yellow and pink, when fully expanded golden yellow flushed crimson and pink. Flowers double and full to the center, blooming on both single stems and in clusters of 3 to 8 blooms, in crops throughout the season. A vigorous, rampant grower, making canes from 10 to 15 feet in one season. Has stood 20 degrees of frost without damage.

Announcement.

CHICAGO, May 9th, 1903.

We herewith announce the dissolution of partnership conducted by us under the firm name of McKellar & Winterson, Chas. W. McKellar having sold out his entire interest in the above firm to Edgar F. Winterson, who assumes all the liabilities against the firm of McKellar & Winterson, and will continue the business formerly conducted by this firm as its successor. All accounts owing the firm McKellar & Winterson should be made payable to Edgar F. Winterson.

Appreciating the liberal patronage that has been extended us during the existence of our firm and trusting that a continuance of same will be shared by its successor.

Yours respectfully,

CHAS. W. McKELLAR.
E. F. WINTERSON.

CHAS. W. McKELLAR'S present address, 405 East Ontario Street, Chicago.

A Rare Business Opportunity.

Old and Well-Established Florist Business for Sale.

50,000 ft. of glass (in two places, 35,000 ft. in one, 15,000 ft. in the other; the latter on leased ground, long lease), well stocked and in good condition; also retail store in business portion of city with a well established profitable business.

Would prefer to sell the store and smaller plant and keep the larger and grow anything that would be needed to supply store.

This is an opportunity for a good storeman and a grower to mutually acquire, on favorable terms, a desirable plant and a store with a large and first-class trade.

This proposition will bear careful investigation. Best of reasons for selling.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

Since Easter trade has been fair. The demand for carnations and roses has shown no abatement. Prices remain firm. Funeral work has been plentiful and has called for a good class of work, the demand for long-stemmed Beauties on these occasions being large. The supply of these is large and the quality fine. The Van Bochove brothers are cutting great quantities which are perfect in stem and bud.

Carnation planting has just started. The severe frosts of last week scared the planters off for a day or two. The quantity put in the field will greatly exceed that of last year and will include all the best introductions of last season.

Bedding stock is beginning to move, some very heavy orders having already been filled. The prospects for a good season in these is good.

G. Van Bochove & Bro. are putting up five houses, each 150 feet long. They are of the finest construction and will have all the up-to-date improvements.

The usual May sickness overshadows the market. It is the same story every year, but we forget. The patient has grown weaker every day during the last week, but there will be no dissolution. Recovery is sure. Meantime business is fair, the quality of stock is excellent, and at some figure everything goes. The actual volume of trade is quite equal to May of other years and June, with its weddings, is close at hand.

Oregon, Ill.—Miss Agnes Patterson has opened a floral and seed store here.

Springfield, Ill.—Wm. G. Newell, for the last two years foreman for Gesler & Drury, Galesburg, Ill., has accepted a position as rose grower with Miss Bell Miller of this city.

New Castle, Pa.—W. H. Weinschenk has a novel side hill house that is 81½ feet wide and 200 feet long. The roof follows very closely the slope of the side hill, which is to the south. The house is used mainly for growing vegetables. The construction material was supplied by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The Oklahoma Floral Co. has purchased ten acres of land in a new part of the city and along the car line, to which the present range of 10,000 feet of glass will be removed and 5,000 feet of new glass added. The entire tract of land is being parked and will be known as Epworth Park. Excavation is being made for a four-acre lake in same. The company is doing business as florists, nurserymen and seedsmen and handle everything in the three lines next season.

KANSAS CITY.

There was much excitement and enthusiasm over the arrival of the president Friday, May 1, the weather being clear and warm, after a cold snap which destroyed flowers and fruits of all kinds. April 29 was a corker for weather—rain, sleet and snow. Everybody is busy getting ready to entertain the president.

W. L. Rock had the decoration at the Baltimore hotel for the reception and luncheon to the president, in which he used two thousand Roosevelt and one thousand Enchantress carnations, these two colors blending together and making a very fine decoration for the tables. He also used 300 American Beauties, both short and long, 50 strings of smilax, 250 sprays of Sprengeri, along with spireas and hydrangea plants and palms in banks and clusters around the walls and doors.

A. F. Barbe gets the contract to furnish our city parks with about 20,000 blooming and foliage plants.

George M. Kellogg of Pleasant Hill, Mo., sent in a fine lot of American Beauties Thursday afternoon to his wholesale place to the help of the florists in town. Mr. Kellogg also sent a fine box of Beauties to the president.

Stock is still being used up clean, every florist being somewhat busy.

A. F. Barbe will enlarge his place with 10,000 feet of glass this spring, which will give him about 50,000 feet devoted to cut flowers and plants.

Our old friend, James Payne, is successor to the late Paul Ducret and expects to build the place up in good shape after June 1.

Arthur Newell's two stores were very busy places Friday and Saturday until a late hour, with funeral work, sprays, designs and two casket covers.

Mrs. Lamb, at George M. Kellogg's wholesale store, was very busy Thursday with a retail order for 550 American Beauties and twenty-five dozen red carnations for out in Kansas.

Miss Alma Beeler returns from a short visit to her home.

Mr. Tim Noll, late of Joplin, is now with Mr. Arthur Newell at his Twelfth street store. L. M. S.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

It seems this week as if the bottom of the market has dropped out. "Nothing doing" is the phrase used by almost all the florists. Stock of all kinds is arriving in very large quantities and the accumulation of stock at the wholesale places is something awful!

Carnations, roses and sweet peas can be bought in quantities at one's own figure. As carnations are plentiful the ordinary grades do not have any show; so many of the fancy sorts are to be had at a low price. This will also hold good on roses, only the best grades sell, the ordinary and seconds cannot be moved at any figure.

Smilax is again plentiful and the demand is very small.

Notes.

The Cut Flower Co. is receiving some very fine dagger ferns, which sell at $2 per 1,000.

John Bader is decorating the Pittsburg Opera House this week.

Theo. F. Beckert, of Coraopolis, is cutting heavy on sweet peas, of which the quality is hard to beat.

Frank Faulk, of Allegheny, is the patentee of a gas making appliance; the device is economical and cheap. Mr. Faulk is also devoting some time to a fumigating device to be worked on the same principle as the gas making machine.

Over on the North Side E. C. Ludwig reports business good in funeral work.

Gustave & J. W. Ludwig have booked quite a few June wedding orders and say business is keeping up better than was anticipated.

Last week we had good-natured Billy Kasting from Buffalo with us for a few days.

Mr. Ford, representing A. Herrmann, of New York, was also a visitor.

Hoo-Hoo.

MILWAUKEE.

Mrs. Edlefsen, wife of William Edlefsen, and Mr. and Mrs. Kroseberg, son-in law and daughter, have safely arrived in Europe and will tour through the principal countries, spending considerable time in France and Italy. Mr. Edlefsen will probably leave about June 15 to join them, and also as a representative of the Milwaukee Turners to attend the turnfest at Nuremberg, Germany. C. C. P.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Charles Ehlers started in business here May 1 and reports prospects bright.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Walter P. Stokes, Philadelphia; Firs Vice-Pres., Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Sec'y and Treas., S. F. Willard Wethersfield, Conn. The twenty-first annual convention will be held at Philadelphia and Atlantic City, June 23, 24 and 25, 1903.

VISITED CHICAGO: R. H. Shumway, of Rockford, Ill.

THE BRISK demand of last week for early seed corn has practically exhausted all first class seed stock.

E. H. HUNT, Chicago, says the call for florists' flower seeds was never better than this season, orders running larger than usual.

MR. ROBINSON, representing the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., passed through Chicago Saturday on his way to Milwaukee and other Wisconsin points.

ONION SEED sown for sets in the vicinity of Chicago has made a very favorable start. The acreage for red and white sets is fully one-third less than last season.

THE unusually slow sale for cabbages at the principal shipping points during the winter has had a depressing effect on seed sales of the shipping varieties this spring.

MR. E. J. DEAL, manager, W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Boston, England, while visiting Chicago this week, confirms report of shortage in turnips and early round beets.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—The Buckbee Seed Co. has broken ground for a new mail order building. It will be of stone and brick and four stories high. It will cover 180x60 feet and have 40,000 square feet of floor space.

IN THE Chicago papers the Western Wrecking Company is advertising for May 21 an auction sale of the seed salvage taken by it from the fire ruins of the Leonard Seed Company's Monroe street warehouse.

HARRISBURG, PA.—The Holmes Seed Co. has moved into the new quarters at 9 North Market Square. The building is 35 by 165 feet and is splendidly adapted to the business. The company reports mail trade as double that of last year and store trade as 90 per cent larger.

NOW THAT the season is near its end, reports generally show that mail trade receipts for this season will fall short of last year in volume. Orders have been as plentiful, but quantities have been cut. The higher prices for many seed items and the backward weather are given as the causes.

John C. Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, son of Mr. S. F. Leonard, is to be married June 16 to Miss Helen M. Gale. Miss Gale is a daughter of F. M. Gale, of the Bristol & Gale Co., implement dealers, Chicago. This announcement is the more interesting from the fact that the firm of Bristol & Gale were old-time Chicago seedsmen, having had in the early eighties a considerable hold upon the market gardeners of Chicago and supplying both seeds and implements to them. The firm was one of the pioneer seed concerns of Chicago, and continued this branch to about 1884.

CHARLES C. MASSIE of Northrup King & Co., Minneapolis, passed through Chicago this week on his way to Europe. He sails from Boston May 16.

AT CHICAGO the high prices for seed of the pickling cucumbers is no drawback to sales. The growers received high prices for "pickles" last year and that fact is sufficient to make seed selling easy, regardless of price.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. Johnson & Stokes report that counter trade during April and thus far in May has been very good. Continued cool weather prolongs the planting season. The demand for all kinds of field corn has been very heavy, but the supply of choice samples hard to maintain. The present dry weather is retarding the vegetable plant trade, but it has been good up to this time.

CLEVELAND, O. An item of interest to the seed trade, which is of vital interest to us, is the unusually backward season. Some of our gardeners report less seed in the ground to date than was ever known before. This may be partly due to the high price of seeds, few gardeners caring to take chances, but it is largely due to the peculiar weather, one day warm, followed by a week of cold. May 8 this region was visited by a heavy frost. The frosts have played havoc with the tulips, of which many thousands were planted last fall. The 30,000 planted in the Public Square have been nothing like the display of last year, the flower stalks being not much more than four or five inches high. The late tulips, what few were planted, are just coming into their glory, the Golden Crowns being particularly beautiful. Gesnerianas are just beginning to show color.

PHILADELPHIA.—Counter trade has responded nicely to the past few days of warm weather. Mail orders have slackened up and this class of trade is now well over for the season. This class of trade was not up to former years with some of those who make a specialty of this line. There has been a "terrible drop" in sugar corn. Speculators who held Evergreen at $15 per bushel early in the season are now willing to sell at $3.50. Parties who bought early on open account now claim reduction or threaten to ship back. Prices on cucumbers, peas, and wax beans remain firm. The demand for field corn is notably heavy and orders come from very distant points. The low price that prevailed for onion sets has resulted in a decrease of 50 per cent of seed sown for sets over that of 1902. The vegetable plant trade promises to be unusually heavy. Many tomato plants were lost to the growers by the recent cold weather. Mr. Moore, of Moore & Simon, has joined the ranks of automobilists. Mr. Langbridge, representing Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., and Mr. Bradstreet, representing the Cleveland Seed Co., were recent callers, as was Mr. Duryea, of Henry Nungesser, New York city.

JOLIET, ILL.

The bowlers from the Chicago Carnation Company journeyed to Chicago on Saturday, May 9, to roll the return match with the McKellar & Winterson team. The latter team won hands down. This makes an even break, each team having won a match. There is some talk of the "rubber" being played at Blue Island in the near future. After the game last Saturday the home team took the visitors over to the Vogelsang, where a fine spread was awaiting them, and to which full justice was done. After the usual speeches and songs the Joliet boys took their late train home, more than pleased with the hospitality shown them, which in a measure acted as a balm for the defeat on the alleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Witterstaetter paid us a visit on Sunday, while on their honeymoon. Dick looking like a young graduate from high school and his wife as happy as the proverbial bride that the sun shone on. They were married at Cincinnati on May 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hartshorne celebrated their tin wedding this week, looking not a day older than when they were married ten years ago.

The Chicago Carnation Company has received the required number of plants of Fiancee to insure Dorner & Sons the total amount of cash agreed to on the contract.

Jos. Labo reports a wonderful run on bedding plants and other spring stock. He has used up two cars of nursery stock. The demand for this class of stock beats anything ever before experienced in this town, due in a measure to the untiring efforts of the Improvement Society and our local press.

The dry weather following the two heavy frosts of two weeks ago is very bad for the carnations planted out in this locality.

MARSHALL, MO.—The Marshall Floral Co. reports Easter trade as 50 per cent better than last year. Everything was cleaned up. Great call for roses and carnations. Good sale on lilies and callas. The Marshall Floral Co. will erect two new houses, each 16x100, for carnations.

OMAHA.

Omaha is, and has been, in the midst of considerable "doin's." After Easter came the President, and of course we gave him the glad hand. Shortly after we received the cold shoulder in the way of the worst spring freeze the oldest inhabitant has ever experienced. The weather is still sufficiently bad to discourage spring planting and scarcely any has been done. We are having a tempest in a teapot in the way of a strike and business is suffering more or less as a consequence.

A very fine banquet was given the President at the Omaha Club. Ropes of electric lights, asparagus and carnations composed the festooning, while on the table were miniature floral cannon and gun boats, representing the army and navy.

Cut flower trade is good; in fact, some of our retailers are buying much more than ordinarily. Prices have dropped a notch, but this applies more to carnations than to any other flowers. There were many May parties given the past week, which called for considerable decorative stock and quite a number of cut flowers.

I have reports that a number of firms are contemplating improvements of considerable magnitude the coming summer. Those which I believe to be authentic are the following: Chas. Ederer will build two rose houses, each 20x100. Louis Henderson will build two new rose houses, each 20x150, and will probably rebuild some. Hess & Swoboda are now building a rose house, 25x200. A. Donaghue will extend six carnation houses. The extensions, with three short plant houses, will comprise about 630 running feet, or about 10,000 to 12,000 feet of glass.

J. J. Hess will leave for Europe June 11, his stay to cover about three months.

J. H. B.

Sandusky, O.—The park commissioners will recommend the building of a new greenhouse in Huron Park.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

Business since Easter has been very good. There has been plenty of funeral work and swell decorations to keep the florists busy. Wm. Peirce has been obliged to call on other florists for plants in order to do all the decorating he has done since Easter. E. H. Chamberlain has added a new refrigerator to his store fixtures and it makes a big improvement in the appearance of his store. James Kecketson, who has been on the sick list for some time, is improving. S. S. Peckham reports a large sale on nursery stock and spring plants. Geo. Pasell intends to take a trip out of town to see some of the large ranges of glass and note the different styles of houses in order to judge what is the best style to build. He has a fine piece of property here for greenhouses, on which he now has four or five old-fashioned sash houses. He says he is going to put up something this summer that will be up to date.

Visitors have been quite numerous for the past few days. C. B. Knickman, was here representing Aug. Rhotert, of New York, and says he is picking up a fine business from his old customers. We also had Mr. Greenlaw, of N. F. McCarthy & Co.; Mr. Greene, of M. Rice & Co.; Mr. Muldoon, of the Providence Seed Co., and Mr. Bryant, of A. H. Hews & Co.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building Thursday evening, May 14. C.

Auburn, N. Y.—Jacob Wride, the veteran florist, died recently, aged 64 years. He was born in England but had been a resident of Auburn many years.

Adiantum Hybridum

Finest of its class for either cutting purposes or as a pot plant. (See illustration in Florists' Review, April 16.) Grows freely in hottest weather when Adiantum Cuneatum goes off. Fronds are large, averaging 18 inches to 2 feet, produced abundantly, and realize double price at least of ordinary Maiden-Hair Fern. It produces no spores, being a hybrid, raised by J. H. Ley, between Adiantum Decorum and Adiantum Amabile.

SEE WHAT FLORISTS SAY:

Your Adiantum Hybridum which I had from you two seasons ago has proved a money-maker. Having increased my facilities for growing same, kindly book me one thousand more.
James MacFarland,
Staatsburg-on-Hudson, N. Y.

I have been using your new Adiantum a good deal. The fronds are very much liked by my patrons. As a pot plant I consider it one of the best. Z. D. Blackistone.

Your Adiantum Hybridum is a great improvement on other varieties. Fronds are very fine for cut uses.
George C. Shaffer.

Your new fern Adiantum Hybridum is the grandest fern for cut sprays I ever handled; demand far greater than supply. It stands better, lasts longer, and sells better than any other fern on the market to-day.
F. H. Kramer,
Anacostia, D. C.

I consider the most valuable point about your Adiantum Hybridum is that it will grow splendidly during the hot weather, which Adiantum Cuneatum will not do. Its lasting qualities are also far superior. For a pot plant it is really grand.
P. H. Meehan,
Grower for F. H. Kramer, Anacostia, D. C.

GRAND RAPIDS.

This is the most backward spring in several years. We have had weather in chunks, about four days' rain, two days' sunshine, a couple more of rain and blustering, cold and raw. On the 30th of April the thermometer went down to 22 degrees, freezing tulips and other bulb stock in exposed positions, even pansies being affected. The bright days have materially increased the cut of carnations, but not enough to show a surplus, demand keeping pace with increased supply. On the other hand, roses are scarce, shipping orders exhausting the supply. While indications are for a heavy crop for Memorial Day.

Violets are over, stock is all propagated, and carnation plants are going into the field as fast as they can be rushed, although those that were planted the fore part of last week were practically killed. Field-grown carnations will be a scarce article this fall.

Henry Smith has a large force at work rebuilding that portion of his plant destroyed by fire. He is building his boarding house on the south side of Bridge street, so as to have it beyond the reach of another fire, should one ever occur.

Crabb & Hunter are building a propagating house 16x200 feet, with skylight glass for a roof. This glass is wavy and excludes the rays of the sun, ideal glass for either a propagating or palm house. Their range of four houses, 29x200, are well under way. The Garland iron gutters and cedar rafters from A. Dietsch & Co. are used throughout, with Quaker City ventilating apparatus; modern in every respect. American Beauties and carnations will be grown.

Recent visitors: A. Blome, A. L. Vaughan, S. S. Skidelsky and several Dutch bulb growers. G. F. C.

ALBION, MICH.—A. H. Dew reports the best Easter business he has ever had, bulb stock, azaleas and carnations selling past all expectations. He will this summer build another carnation house, 36x24.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—F. E. Dorner reports an excellent plant trade and largely increased cut flower sales at Easter. They had a fine lot of lilies, azaleas, tulips in pans, hyacinths, hydrangeas, spireas, Crimson Ramblers and lilacs, which found ready sale. In cut flowers, carnations were in short supply. Of lilies, daffodils, valley, hyacinths, tulips and roses there were about enough to fill orders.

Greenhouse Fumigating Powder

Is the newest and best article on the market to-day for the complete destruction of all insects that infest Greenhouses or Conservatories, being a special boon to Rose and Beauty growers and prepared particularly for the destruction of Greenfly and Thrips. There is nothing injurious in it to plant life, even the most delicate fern. It is especially recommended for Beauties, Roses, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, Lilies, Smilax, Asparagus, Palms, Ferns, etc., and we claim that insects will be entirely eradicated when the houses are thoroughly fumigated with the powder. It is put up as follows:

All Cypress is good, but some is better than others.

The best is open-air dried, and it must be open-air dried in the South. It takes two years' open-air seasoning to make Cypress good enough to go into our Greenhouse material.

Such Cypress can't be picked up every day. We have 2,000,000 feet of it ready for use. Shall we use some of it in material for you? Our prices are reasonable and stock the very best.

If you want the best paying crop that you can plant for summer plant.....

There is nothing that you can plant that will increase in value so rapidly as this fern. The demand has been so great, and our advance sales so large, that we have not offered it recently, having only just completed filling advance orders. We have a nice lot of young stock coming on, and can fill all orders received from this date promptly on receipt. Even at the present high price it has been impossible to keep up with the demand, and there is sure to be a tremendous demand for it another season when it can be offered at lower prices. Now is the time to invest in it and get the benefit of the tremendous demand and good prices which are sure to prevail another season. The Boston Fern, although it has been cultivated many years, is still scarce. As Nephrolepis Piersoni will sell better and be in greater demand even than the Boston Fern, we predict a scarcity of Nephrolepis Piersoni for several years to come and at big prices. Owing to the great and continued demand, we do not expect to be more than able to meet the demand this spring, so that customers can rest assured that there will be no change in price this season.

We offer strong young plants, 2¼-in. pots, at $9.00 per doz.; 50 plants at 60c each; 100 plants at 50c each; 500 plants at 45c each; 1000 plants at 40c each.

Extra large plants, 6-in. pots, $27.00 per doz.; 50 plants at $1.80 each; 100 plants at $1.50 each. These large plants will make fine stock for growing on into large specimens for fall trade, and they are also very nice for immediate sales.

MEMORIAL DAY HINTS.

Of all the wreaths and wreaths for Memorial Day there is none much more satisfactory nor half so quickly made as a loose wreath. For lack of time, and inclination as well, discard sphagnum and stemming, or use the empty wire frame wrapped with smilax or asparagus and studded with flowers. These can be wired in easily, and the whole serves the purpose as well as the more elaborate design. It is no more difficult to pack with ice than the loose cut flowers.

It is surprising the decline in demand for the regulation "made-up" design, both for funerals and memorial purposes. But we have no regrets at this movement. Wire, scissors, tacks and hammer constitute a decorator's equipment nowadays.

The wreath, however, is holding its own, and it certainly deserves its popularity. The loose wreath as described above and illustrated in the photograph reproduced herewith might be defined as a design guiltless of formality and as well a cluster assuming a definite form.

I hope to see the day when the floral design shall be a mixture of long-stemmed flowers and brains. We are getting to that point faster than we realize, and the average designer is far more capable than he usually gives himself credit for. But he needs to break loose and assert himself.

There is shown herewith a plain smilax wreath with a flag ribbon drawn through the inside edge, and a loose wreath of Asparagus Sprengeri, with roses, finished with two classical ends of ribbon.

Other combinations for this occasion might be suggested as follows: Centaurea foliage with scarlet carnations and cape jasmines.

Swainsona galegifolia, Salvia splendens, smilax and white carnations.

Laurel or ivy with Kaiserin roses tied with the red, white and blue in separate ribbons.

Crimson Rambler or Liberty and Golden Gate roses, with a touch of Ageratum Mexicanum.

COMPRESSED AIR VS. SYRINGING.

In the REVIEW of May 7 was an article on the substitution of compressed air for syringing roses. The idea seems perfectly feasible, except that in place of substituting, I would suggest using the two methods of syringing in unison. That is to say, use compressed air on cloudy days in winter, when little ventilation can be given, and syringe with water on bright, sunny days when the plants can dry out before night.

The reason I suggest the use of both methods is because they are both of equal value in themselves. Syringing with water performs two offices; it keeps down red spider and promotes growth. If you notice closely you will observe that after constant syringing with water the foliage becomes softer and the shoots break out from the wood, increasing the vigor of the plant and producing more flowers.

Even if there were no red spider in existence I should still continue syringing. If we should put aside syringing with water and use compressed air in its place, we could not, I am sure, keep down red spider permanently. By using compressed air we could easily, by applying it through the hose with sufficient force, detach them from the leaves, but they would soon crawl back again without being seriously injured by their adventure. It would be the same every day, with the spiders constantly increasing in number until they would literally carry the plants away.

I do not mean, however, that aerating with compressed air is not an advantage. I think it would be a very valuable aid in the production of first-class flowers. But if cold air were applied, as is suggested in another column of the paper, mildew would become as thick as the red spider. A sudden chill coming through the hose would be disastrous. And if warm air were used alone, spider would thrive. Therefore I wish to suggest using both methods together. Use air on cloudy days to aerate the plants and use water on sunny days. If the house should not dry out before night, then warm compressed air may be used to dry it out.

For carnations it would be an advantage to have compressed air even in place of water, for the constant application of water to the foliage is injurious. Water washes off the natural protective element of the carnation leaves; that bluish substance which rubs off with water or friction of any kind. Perfectly cold air could be used for carnations and would not produce mildew as in the case of roses. But this is something for the carnation grower to talk about as I am not well versed on carnations. ARTHUR F. CAPERS.

comment of May 7 regarding the use of "cold" air. It was not suggested that the air be any colder than the water now used for syringing. We were merely recording the opinion of one grower that it was the cold as much as the moisture that made syringing such a valuable aid in keeping red spider in check, and that syringing with warm water was not nearly so effective as that direct from the hydrant. Mr. Capers makes what seems to be an excellent suggestion regarding the value of compressed air in the carnation houses.—Ed.]

TROUBLE WITH PHOENIX.

I send herewith a piece of a leaf of Phoenix Canariensis that is infested with scale. I would like to know the name and remedy. Insecticides which I have tried checked but did not destroy them.

M. L. B.

The portion of a leaf of Phoenix Canariensis forwarded by "M. L. B." is not infested with scale, though such a condition often does exist with the plant in question. The specimen is suffering from a severe attack of a certain fungus that seems especially at home on this phoenix, and if the entire plant is as badly affected as this piece of leaf I should be strongly tempted to burn it rather than to attempt a cure. The fungus in question is one of the peronosporas, a genus that is closely allied to the mildews, and makes its growth within the tissue of the leaf in the form of filaments or mycelium, from which there are issued through the stomata or pores of the leaf, tiny branching growths on which are produced the spores to reproduce the fungus, and it is the clusters of these minute growths that have been mistaken for insects. Owing to the fact that this peronospora does most of its work inside the tissue of the leaf, it is a difficult subject to eradicate, and the most promising remedy would be either Bordeaux mixture or sulphate of lime solution applied in spray form, though it would be unwise to claim either as an absolute specific. MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

The Plantsman's Busy Day.

The next two weeks will be such a busy time there will be little time for writer or reader to commune. The carnation man will have his young crop in the field and will be at peace. The rose man will be throwing out and replanting, but this he does not have to do all at once. In fact, it is an advantage to let the planting of rose houses cover a period of two or three months. Then there is more likelihood of some of the houses being in good crop at all times. So the rose grower is not worried, provided he has the requisite pile of soil ready. The chrysanthemum grower is anxious to get his benches empty so that he can plant, for while a good crop of flowers can be grown with planting as late as July or early August, you will get much better flowers by planting early in June. No class of florists is, however, half so much worried as the poor fellow who must fill 500 vases, has half a mile of boxing to do, and expects to dispose of 100,000 bedding plants and largely plant them out.

This has been such a strange season, and is at this writing so warm, that people whose past experience should tell them that June 1 is as early as it is safe to put out tropical plants, are calling us up by 'phone every hour and insisting that their flower beds and veranda boxes must be filled at once. You would like to tell them to go to Hellespont, for that's at the eastern end of the Mediterranean and far away, but you must be suave, polite and discreet and reason with them. The remark, "Very well, madam, I will put them out, but of course I am not responsible for what occurs" will "fetch" lots of them. It appeals to the most sensitive human organ, the pocket.

I am aware that 300 or 400 miles south of this, say at Philadelphia, perhaps, flower gardening is almost over, and so it may be in southern Illinois, Indiana and other western and more southern states, but I know full well that in western New York, where the mists of the Niagara float over the blossom laden apple orchards, we usually, to be more definite, about twice out of three seasons, get a frost along about May 30. Sometimes it will only scorch, or rather chill, coleus. Sometimes it will kill them dead and kill back geraniums, but they always recover.

Spring Planting.

You can't carry everybody's troubles on your shoulders, and when a thing is demanded by your customers, do it. There is a great difference in the hardiness of plants, a knowledge of which you perhaps give your customers the credit of having, but not one in ten does have it. They have the same idea about a pansy, coleus, geranium and caladium, and it is for you to talk a little education into them.

Geranium beds could have been planted by the 15th, and all the better for it, but coleus, cannas, acalypha and these tropical plants should be left with us until the first week in June. It is true that with us all outside vegetation is quite ten days earlier than the normal season, but that's no proof that a frost may not visit us later. The peculiarities of the seasons have left a slight tracing on our gray matter which we can recall at pleasure, but we are not such a keen observer as the man who observed that if he lived through the month of February he always lived the rest of the year.

This planting of flower beds for our patrons gives us much labor and under some circumstances should be paid for. A rule we have tried to observe for some years is that a flower bed that holds $10 worth of plants we will plant without extra charge. Anything below that we charge the time, and the bed must be dug and ready for a planting. If you know the beds are in the same condition as the winter left them, then charge for labor, no matter how big the bill is.

There is some comfort in having your own experienced help plant these flower beds, for it will be properly done, the beds will have a good appearance when finished and the plants have a good start. If the coachman or hired man does the job, he will get the first row too close to the edge or too far from it, some too deep and some too shallow. He will not plant them the right distance apart, but will spin them out or crowd them. And, above all, he seldom knows the correct way to plant and water.

The Way to Plant.

And this leads me on to my annual crop of chestnuts, but chestnut as it may be to many, I write for the beginner and insist there is only one way to plant a geranium or any bedding plant, a shrub, evergreen or elm tree, and that is to make ample excavation, loosening the soil at the bottom of the hole. Then place the plant in position with sufficient soil around it to hold it in place. When all the plants are so placed, get the hose, if getable, if not, the watering pot, and fill up with water. When that is soaked away fill in to the surface of bed with the rest of the soil. This inch or two of dry soil acts as a mulch and keeps the soil around and beneath the plant moist and is worth a dozen waterings on the surface, even if you did get the water down to the roots, and you know very well if the bed has ever so small an elevation in the center that you would have to stand for an hour with the hose to get the water down six inches.

About filling these orders that will come now with a rush, don't put off a day or hour in filling an order that should and can be filled. All of us are more or less "shirky" and so apt to say, "Well, there is no hurry for a day for that." Get it off; the other day will be busier still. Get it off your mind, off your place, and it will be "something accomplished, something done." We think the Saturday before Easter a most rushing, laborious day. I am sure I have in years gone by known every day from May 25 to June 10 the equal of that. Someone else does it now; I could not stand the pressure.

Violets.

The best violet grower in this vicinity plants in the beds along about the end of June, or as soon as he has cleared out his bedding plants. He propagates them from runners directly after Easter, then puts them into flats until planting time. Now where are they? Not under glass, but out of doors, beneath the shade of trees, or partial shade. The heat of a house now would be very injurious to them, either the double or single varieties. I think his great success is due to the fact that this "Wise" man's house is of sash, which is removed during the summer and not put on in fall until danger of frost.

ROSES.

Seasonable Hints.

With our planting plans already perfected, young stock, soil, etc., in proper condition, the first object should be to find a market for the old stock. If these can be disposed of at a figure that will leave a fair margin of profit after paying for the labor of careful lifting, packing and shipping, it is like money found, as they have got to go anyhow.

So soon as the old plants and soil are removed, the benches, if the bottoms are of wood, should be put into a good state of repair, so that there will be no danger of a break-down during the season. All old soil and rubbish which has gathered under the benches should be removed and the boards of the bench given a good washing by playing the hose on every crack and crevice, so that all the old soil is removed.

As cleanliness is very essential in a rose house, the glass, sash bars and walls should get a thorough wash down to remove all dirt and scum which has accumulated during the winter. The woodwork of benches and walls should now get a good coating of hot lime wash. This helps to preserve the wood and destroys insects and their eggs.

To prevent the soil from running through the cracks, which should be of the width of three-fourths of an inch, wheat or rye straw, clean, cheap and easily applied, is very suitable. This should be put on thick enough to keep the soil in place until it gets settled.

Those who can afford the time and can secure the material will find it to their profit to use either tile or hollow brick for bench bottoms. This costs more time and money to erect properly, but if the work is done efficiently the cost of repairing for the next ten years will be scarcely worth counting. In this style of bottoming the drainage is as nearly perfect as it can be and to a great extent does away with the danger attending overwatering by careless or incompetent help.

The benches being ready, they should be filled as quickly as possible, so that the soil may not dry out too much previous to planting. The soil should be spread as evenly as possible and great care should be used in this particular, as on the even settling of soil depends a good deal of the success of the young stock.

The benches should be filled flush, and if bone meal is to be used as a fertilizer it should be put on previous to planting, and can be either stirred lightly into the surface of the soil or left on the surface. The act of planting will place as much of the meal near the roots as is good for them at present; the subsequent watering and stirring of the soil will gradually convey the rest to within reach of the roots. If the soil in the benches is five inches deep the quantity required is about ten to twelve pounds to every 100 square feet of surface.

Bride, Maid, Ivory and Golden Gate are usually allowed about 144 square inches of space to grow in, but in my experience I find that with vigorous stock and good soil this is far too little, the best cut coming from benches where the plants were allowed 225 square inches, or fifteen inches each way between plants. Beauties should be allowed something like 300 square inches, if high grade blooms are desired. Diagonal planting is preferable to planting at right angles, as it is so much easier to give the plants the full benefit of the syringe.

Previous to planting the stock should be carefully examined to see that none of the balls are dry. Any plants put into the bench in this condition take a much longer time to start than do the others. The balls should be disturbed as little as possible, simply rubbing off the sharp edges around the surface and not even removing the drainage.

The plant should be placed just deep enough to cover the ball and the soil pressed firmly around it, leaving a slight depression around the neck of the plant. This should be slowly filled with water as soon as possible after planting, and it should be repeated at least twice a day every bright day for a couple of weeks. At this stage young stock revels in copious supplies of water. Syringing should be practiced at least once a day during bright weather to keep red spider in check. The house can be cooled off once or twice a day by sprinkling the walks. RIMS.

USE FOR OLD PLANTS.

In resetting our rose benches every spring for some years past we have been selling the bushes that were to be replaced with young plants to customers to plant out in their gardens. We cover the cost of the young plants by such sales and our customers, as a rule, are well satisfied, as they usually get good blooms through the season. I don't know if anyone else does this. I have not seen any mention of it in any of the correspondence in the florists' journals.

A question arises right here: it is this: If rose plants that have been forced under glass for a year or so can be lifted and set in the open ground and continue to bloom satisfactorily through the summer, why would they not do equally well if they were lifted and reset in new soil in the greenhouse?

Perhaps I ought to have said that our customers do not cut the plants back, but leave them as they were in the bench. They save a good many of their rose bushes over winter by some protection. The varieties used are those most commonly grown, such as Bride, Bridesmaid, Perle and Wootton.

J. W. Margrave.

ROSES FOR SIMILAR TREATMENT.

Can I grow Bride or Kaiserin, Bridesmaid, Golden Gate and Perle with success in the same house? If not, please give a list that can be grown in the same house. L. R. A.

Bride, Bridesmaid, Golden Gate, Ivory and Liberty can be grown with success in the same house, the same temperature and atmospheric conditions being required by those varieties. Beauties can also be successfully grown under the same conditions. During the winter months some of these varieties require more care in watering than do the others. Kaiserins and Perles for winter blooming are more productive if grown at 62 or 64 degrees. Ribes.

CARNATIONS

CARNATION NOTES—EAST.

Watering in the Field.

The present dry spell, coming as it has, directly the young stock has been planted out, has caused no little anxiety among the growers in this section. It has been imperative to do a certain amount of watering, and while I am decidedly against watering in the field, in extreme cases set rules often have to be put aside or the result will be a heavy loss. I believe, in the case of young plants recently transferred from the greenhouse to the field, no harm will result in helping them through a dry spell by intelligent watering.

It is quite a task, as well as an expensive operation to water a large field, however laid out, but with our system of planting in long beds I think we have some advantage over those who plant simply in rows. We also plant quite closely, which is preferable to the method of planting far enough apart to allow of the use of horse cultivators, on account of less area requiring water, with consequent less expense.

The expense, however, is inconsiderable compared to the loss sustained should a large percentage of plants perish by drought. Then the further necessity of purchasing plants at housing time would be quite an outlay.

Thus far this season we have done no more than to carry the hose through a path to the far side of the lot, one man watering two beds from this path, another drawing the hose back as the work proceeds, and so on through the field.

This, however, was only done directly after planting out and would be tedious work to continue; besides it is not in any great degree practical, so I will describe the method, referred to in my notes of March 26, of using the paths as irrigation ditches. Although the plan cannot be called true irrigation, as practiced in California and other states, it has proved to be practical and as inexpensive as any method we have tried.

Our lot slopes slightly towards what is termed the far side. The land is naturally heavy, so that from walking in the paths at planting time the soil has become solidly packed, allowing very little water to soak away. A temporary clay dam is constructed at the far side across each path, the hose is carried down a path to within about fifty feet of the dam, where another is made.

As soon as the space between dams is filled with water two men with square pointed shovels distribute the water by splashing or throwing it each way half across the two adjoining beds. While this is being done another like space can be filling, ready for distribution.

Circumstances may require that these spaces be twice filled and likewise thrown over the beds. In any event, make a thorough job of watering, filling each path in turn as many times as your judgment will tell you that the soil demands.

Next comes the most important part of the operation, namely, to break up the surface soil with the hand cultivator as soon as the water disappears, which it will do in a short time. It is of no use to water unless cultivation of the soil immediately follows. In fact, the conditions would be worse than before if it were not done.

Although an expensive piece of work, it is not likely that a repetition will be needed if thoroughly done; for once the plants get well started, repeated cultivation between the rows, rain or no rain, will keep the plants in growing condition.

Speaking of the availability of bone meal last week, the "still later applications of liquid manure, etc.," were made while growing carnations and not while experimenting with other plants, as the wording would imply.

Geo. S. Osborn.

OLD ROSE SOIL FOR CARNATIONS.

Is soil that has been on the rose benches the past season desirable for use on the benches for carnations for next season? W. O. S.

Up to about ten years ago most growers benched their carnations in old rose soil, and not infrequently they were planted in soil that had grown roses the previous winter. Some very fair carnations were grown in this kind of soil when it had been left to lie exposed to the weather a year or two, but I never saw a good lot of carnations grown in soil that had roses on it the winter before. In all such cases the soil would most likely be sour and exhausted. About ten years ago some of the leading carnation growers began using only new soil for their carnations, and it did not take them very long to demonstrate at the exhibitions that it was far better than soil that had been used shortly before.

I have used soil that had grown roses, and with good results, after it had lain exposed to the weather about three years and I have done the same with soil that had grown carnations. By handling your soil properly you can use it over about every four years, and it will be as good as any you can get. By handling it properly I do not mean to simply dump it on a large pile and let it lie three years and then wheel it back into the house. Such soil should be spread out in a pile about a foot deep. In the fall sow it down in rye and when the rye is about eight inches high in the spring it should be plowed over and the rye turned under. After plowing it you can sow it down in clover and let it lie until the fall before you want to use it, at which time you should turn the clover under and spread over a good coat of cow manure and let it lie until the next spring. As soon as you can handle it you should rick it up, thoroughly mixing the soil and the manure. I like to rick it up in the spring, because it does not dry out so much as it does when spread out, and there will not be so many weeds growing on it and taking out the plant food.

This may seem like putting a lot of work on old soil, but it will pay to do it, and when handled this way it will be almost as good as new soil, if not quite as good. If you are able to get as much new soil as you need it will, of course, be easier and quicker, and possibly cheaper, to get new soil each year, but there are places where it is almost impossible for the florists to get a good supply of new soil each year, and in such cases the above method can be worked to advantage.

If it is the correspondent's purpose to escape changing the soil on his benches, I should advise him to by all means change it if he values his next season's crop. A. F. J. Baur.

LIME AND BONE MEAL.

There are a great many angle worms in the compost pile made up last fall for use the coming season for carnations. I am told to mix lime with it to get rid of the worms, but I want to turn it in June and mix a lot of bone meal. Will the lime kill the worms, and will it not at the same time prevent the bone from being as useful a fertilizer as it would otherwise be?

Inquirer.

It is not generally considered best to mix your bone meal into the soil before it is on the greenhouse benches, and unless you want to do it for some specific purpose I would advise you not to mix it in outside. For several weeks after planting the carnation plants on the benches they require mostly nitrogenous foods, and as bone meal is especially rich in phosphoric acid it is needed most when the plants are producing their crops. By mixing in some bone just before planting it will become available as plant food by the time the plants need it, and there is no need of having it available any sooner. In fact, it is better so, because while the plant roots are comparatively inactive and the soil lies idle it is likely to become soured if too much decaying matter is mixed through it. We do not mix in even as much bone at the beginning as many growers recommend, but rather add it later on, as we see the plants need it. Mr. Osborn advises not to mix in any bone, and I have no doubt he finds it works quite satisfactorily.

To get rid of the angle worm you can mix some lime through the soil, which can best be done by turning the pile over and sprinkling the lime as you pile it over. The lime will not lessen the value of the bone if they are mixed in at the same time. It is generally agreed that when lime is mixed with other fertilizer it will set free and allow to escape valuable plant foods, but not so when the two are mixed into soil. The lime will have the same effect on the fertilizer, but the soil will take up whatever the lime causes the bone to let go and will keep it stored up for the plants. In fact, the soil will perform the same functions, only it will take it longer to do it.

BLOOD FOR CARNATIONS.

Please let me know the best way in which to use fresh blood for carnations. I am situated so I can get the blood direct from a near-by slaughter-house.

E. E. M.

I don't think that I would care to use fresh blood on my plants, for I doubt very much if it would be a benefit to them. That blood contains plant food in large proportions I do not doubt, but I think it will have to go through proper preparation in order to make those plant foods available. No doubt you are aware that dried blood is sold by all supply houses, but I am unable to inform you as to the process employed in drying the blood. I would experiment a little on my own account if I were situated as you are, and find out for myself a way of using it successfully. Thoroughly saturate some soil with it and when that dries off enough mix that again with other soil, making several patches of different strengths, and note what effect it has on the plants. Also plant a few plants in soil without the blood, so you may see if there is any difference.

Perhaps the best plant to experiment with would be the chrysanthemum, because not only will it stand considerable abuse along that line, but it is also quick to show it when it likes a certain food. But by all means experiment also with the kind of plant on which you expect to use the stuff in the future, as it may differ greatly from the chrysanthemum in its likes and dislikes. The experiment should extend clear through the flowering season to be conclusive.

PIPING A HOUSE.

I have a house, 16x85 feet, ten feet high, the side walls plastered inside and out, with an air space between. The house is divided into three sections, twenty-three feet for palms, thirty feet for roses and thirty-two feet for carnations. I want to heat this with a Weathered conical boiler No. 6, using 3-inch or 2-inch cast iron pipe. How should it be piped? The temperature sometimes falls to eighteen degrees below zero.

Subscriber.

For the effective heating, by water, of the house in question, using 3-inch cast iron pipe, ten lines will be needed in the palm house, nine in the rose house and eight in the carnation house, or if 2-inch is used, fifteen, thirteen and twelve lines will be needed. I do not know what "Subscriber's" reason is for desiring to use 3-inch or 2-inch cast iron pipe. These sizes are not generally used for heating purposes, and, although it is possible to procure suitable fittings for making up the heating coils, it is difficult, as but few manufacturers make them and only small stocks are carried. It is better to use a standard article, which can be easily and more generally procured, such as the 3½ inch cast iron pipe of 4 inch outside diameter, and by manufacturers wrongly designated as 4-inch pipe. Or the 2 inch wrought iron pipe of common use may be employed. If 3½ inch cast iron pipe is used nine, eight and seven lines will be required in the respective compartments. If 2-inch wrought iron pipe is used fifteen, thirteen and twelve lines will do. The arrangement of the pipes in coils would depend largely on the depth of the boiler cellar below the greenhouse floor, the arrangement of paths and benches and the location of doorways, also on the extent of control of circulation desired in the several compartments.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Propagating.

The chrysanthemum is propagated from February to September, according to the method or needs of the grower, but it is safe to say that the great bulk of the plants for use by the commercial grower are propagated in May and planted out in June or early July. There is one thing to look out for in propagating at this time (and more particularly this year, with its heat and drought, which is phenomenal in this section), and that is to see that the cuttings are frequently sprayed and watered, or they will get hard and the proportion that root will be unsatisfactory.

If your propagating house is much exposed to the sun, a cooler and better place to root your cuttings is under a north wall of the greenhouse, where, with a spraying morning and evening, a good "strike" is almost certain. Cuttings when put in the sand will wilt to a greater or lesser extent at this time of year, as they grow quicker on the parent plant and are consequently much softer in growth; but the aim of the grower should be to have the cuttings wilt as little as possible, and this can only be accomplished by shading and spraying.

Planting Out.

It was a frequent practice with some growers to plant nice young stock, that had been rooted in March or April, on the carnation benches when the carnations were thrown out in May or June. Nowadays, with the ever-increasing importance of the carnation crop and the fact that the carnations are benched earlier every year, the poor old mum is crowded out and several growers of my acquaintance have discontinued growing them altogether.

If one has a piece of waste ground within reasonable distance of the water supply, it can be utilized to good advantage by planting the mums on it, and these plants, if lifted carefully at the end of August and potted up, will give a lot of useful flowers. The florist with a home trade who handles his plants in this manner and does not disbud much will find the sprays of flowers very useful in funeral work and such like designs. Brian Boru.

TROUBLE WITH CYCLAMEN.

Will someone please tell me through the Review what causes the leaves of my cyclamens to wilt, then dry up and die? The new leaves keep starting. If someone can tell me how to prevent it I will appreciate it. Subscriber.

It is most likely young plants from seed sown last fall that are being troubled with this leaf disease, whatever it is. Under ordinarily good treatment I never saw cyclamen, particularly young plants, lose any leaves. Therefore, it is impossible for me to guess at the cause.

Just a few remarks on what their treatment should be at this time of year. Perhaps they are in 3-inch or possibly 4-inch pots. They should have tobacco stems between the pots, for it helps greatly to keep down aphis. They should be finely sprayed every bright morning. The cyclamen should never be allowed to get killing dry, neither does it want to be kept in a state of soak. The sun is powerful now, and from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m. a lattice or thin cloth shade should protect them. Other hours and dull days they should not have any shade. Under these conditions you should have no trouble of any kind with your cyclamen.

PAINTING HEATING PIPES.

I would like to ask Mr. Gibbons if there is any danger from using lamp black, linseed oil, drier and turpentine as a covering for pipes in greenhouses? Is there any danger that there would be fumes sent off during heavy firing which would be injurious to plants? Also, would there be any gases or fumes which would not be perceptible to a person in the house at the time when the pipes are heated? Inquirer.

There is very great danger in using the preparation Inquirer describes for painting heating pipes in greenhouses, as the fumes thrown off by the coating when the pipes are heated is poisonous to most of our greenhouse plants if not to all. The effect varies with different plants, a smooth hard coated leaf being less subject to injury than a soft hairy leaf.

The duration of the danger depends largely on the temperature to which the pipes have been exposed. Thus, if steam heat is used the evaporation is quick and complete and most fatal to the plants during such process of evaporation, but when the process is complete no further injury will be done; but if a moderate heat only is applied to the pipes, as in the case of water heated pipes, the danger period would be extended.

Different persons have different power of the sense of smell and it would be difficult to make definite statement as to the condition referred to in the last paragraph of Inquirer's letter.

A FLOWER GARDEN.

We have a plot of ground 160x210 feet that we want to devote to a flower garden. It slopes slightly to the east. We desire to use the general assortment of bedding plants, filling the entire space except for good walks for the public to use in examining the garden.

If some of the expert gardeners among the readers of your valuable journal will tell me how to lay out this land to best advantage I shall esteem it a favor.

EXPRESS RATES.

A reader says he is having difficulty in getting the single merchandise rate on cut flowers sent by express. Sometimes the package comes billed at the extra rate formerly prevailing and the agent says he can not correct it when it has been billed wrongly.

Our reader should protest to the superintendent of the company, and should pay all such overcharges under protest only until the matter has been corrected. If the matter is followed up all overcharges will be refunded to him.

PIPING.

How many rows of 1¼ inch pipe will it require to heat with hot water four houses, joined on a hill side? Size of houses 19x56, 11 feet to the ridge, glass at east end, and south lights small. Temperature required, 55 degrees, where the glass is down for a short time to zero, but most of the winter about 10 above zero. J. L.

As J. L. does not give the pitch or rise of the side hill on which his connected houses stand, I can not determine the glass area of the roofs accurately enough to advise as to number of lines of 1¼-inch pipe to be used in each house. He will require one line of 1¼-inch pipe for every 41 inches of glass, meaning across the houses, roofs and exposed glass side all to be included.

MILWAUKEE CLUB MEETING.

Quite a lively club meeting was held May 12. C. B. Whitnall was elected treasurer to succeed Wm. Currie, who has resigned, as he intends to leave for Scotland shortly. The club has also organized two rival bowling teams. Wm. Edlefsen is captain of one team and Alexander Klokner of the other. Drawings were made for the best bowlers among the craft by each captain alternately, and the teams are very evenly matched. They will bowl from now on until convention week and then six of the best men will be selected to capture some of the convention prizes. At our next club meeting C. B. Whitnall will tell the boys all about his California trip and Robt. Zepnick will read a paper on "Success in Growing Violets." Refreshments will also be served.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Those who had hoped for improvement in the market this week have thus far been disappointed. Receipts continue never heavier, and quality is, of course, going down grade as a result of the sudden change to summer weather. But really there has been more cause for complaint. It is still possible to move the stock, even if at unmentionable figures, and the wholesale houses continue to find the aggregate of sales footing up to a very respectable total, whatever the local store men may say.

Naturally it is only a small part of the supply which attains to anything like top quotations. Beauties are selling well, although at low rates. The receipts of long-stemmed buds are particularly heavy just now and some of the best selling at $2 per dozen in quantity. Brides are soft and small and Maids losing color. Liberty still sells well, also Chatenay.

There has been a deluge of carnations, most of them pretty fair, and prices have held up better in this department than on roses, although Tuesday saw quite an accumulation in certain quarters. Sweet peas were never better and rarely more plentiful. Peonies have been coming along slowly and selling well, where carefully rebunched. One of Kennicott's growers sent in a lot of peonies by freight, arriving Monday. He was from Missouri and needed to be shown. Miscellaneous items are in full supply and little demand.

Decoration Day.

What Decoration day will bring forth is problematical. The wholesalers report many inquiries for prices on large lots, and all expect big business. If the weather stays warm there is likely to be large supplies of rather low grade stock at cheap prices, but a change to cool and cloudy might mean a scarcity and prices going up. Better order early.

Club Meeting.

There was a slim attendance, nevertheless a packed house, at the special club meeting Monday evening, and action was deferred in the matter of arranging for a new meeting place, the only question permitted to come up, unanimous consent being denied on P. J. Hauswirth's motion to admit of a general discussion of the affairs of the club. There was only one objection to the proposition to change the meeting night to Monday, but the debate on the report of the trustees was enlivened by a slip of the tongue which, should many such occur, would necessitate the larger hall against which the speaker was at the moment arguing.

In opening the meeting President Thompson expressed his regrets that the attendance at recent very interesting meetings should have been so small, and admonished his committees that it is high time they took action on the matters in their charge. He stated that there are eighty-six delinquent members on the list, whom he argues should be dropped if they do not pay up.

After adjournment refreshments were served and a splendid entertainment provided by professional talent whose presence was due to Walter Kreitling, than whom there is no more indefatigable worker in the club's behalf. He had Schildkret's orchestra; Professor W. W. Carnes, elocutionist, and Professor Hutchinson, pianist, whose work was supplemented by impromptu performances, vocal and terpsichorean, by J. P. Risch, E. A. Kanst, George Pieser, J. D. Thompson and Mr. Kreitling.

Mr. Thompson and Walter Kreitling, acting as the transportation committee, announce that the club will go to Milwaukee in August, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Road. They ask that all delegations passing through Chicago have tickets read so that they can join the club's special train.

Various Items.

The introducers of carnation Adonis have been having their own troubles in propagating, and J. D. Thompson says he wishes to speak a word in their behalf. He says he has 2,500 as fine plants of the variety as one would care to see. He received 5,000 cuttings in January and sent out half of them to his customers. The remainder he has brought on with a loss of barely 5 per cent, and 10 per cent he considers an average loss in handling new sorts. But Mr. Thompson says that some of those who received small lots from the same batch report high losses, from which he concludes that much of the complaint as to Adonis is due to some defect in treatment after the cuttings were sent out.

J. A. Budlong is pushing work on his new range of carnation houses and proposes to bench about half his stock directly from pots, giving it most of the summer indoors. He will grow Flora Hill, Pern, Governor Wolcott, Boston Market, Lillian Pond, Governor Roosevelt, Harry Fenn, Mrs. Ine, Prosperity, Stella, Enchantress and Lawson, about 35,000 plants in all. John Cook, formerly with W. N. Rudd, is in charge of the carnation department. Mr. Budlong opened his wholesale house, under the management of John Zeck, five years ago last Saturday.

P. J. Hauswirth is probably the only florist in town who has artificial refrigeration. His box is piped from the cooling machine run in the Auditorium Annex, the portion usually occupied by ice containing a coil of 125 feet of 1½-inch pipe cooled by carbonic acid gas. It works almost too well, the tendency being to get the temperature too low, but this will be easily remedied by reducing the size of the coil. There is no dirt and practically no drip.

Alex. Henderson's two-year-old baby fell into a kettle of boiling water last Saturday and was terribly burned about the arms and shoulders. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson have many friends in the trade who unite in hopes for the child's recovery.

The tulips were fine at Washington Park this season. Mr. Kanst and his force are now busy with bedding plants.

Chicago has for years been known as the "Beauty town," but there are others. L. M. Noe, of Madison, N. J., who is a visitor this week, says that at Easter he handled over 17,000 Beauties, 36-inch and upward, at his New York sales stand, but he notes it was ten times a normal supply.

The referee in bankruptcy has paid a first and final dividend of 6 per cent to the creditors of Walter Retzer. The proved claims aggregated $35,065.35, only a few hundred dollars of which was in the trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reinberg will celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary next Friday evening.

Weiland & Risch, with a force of fifty men, are pushing things on their new range of nine houses 28x165. They expect to be ready within three weeks to plant the entire range to Beauties.

A. Lange reports a very fair run of work, both at his old stand and at the Floralia. He is steadily building up his out-of-town trade as well as local business.

A number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Hartshorne assisted in the celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary at Harlowarden, Joliet, Ill., May 14.

D. Branch has the two glass houses on the roof of his Indiana avenue store filled with bedding stock, principally geraniums.

The Chicago Tribune recently printed a picture of H. G. Selfridge's range of new greenhouses at Lake Geneva, also a view in one of the orchid houses. Charles Gebhardt is in charge.

Poehlmann Brothers Company is cutting longiflorum lilies in quantity and expect the supply to keep up all summer.

Fred Klingel, of Peter Reinberg's, welcomed a baby boy to his home Sunday.

Bassett & Washburn say that the way the trade is developing on the Pacific coast is shown by the fact that they shipped more than 25,000 rose cuttings there this season. Greenhouse building is going on at a great rate out there.

E. F. Winterson Company is handling a large line of bedding plants and shows some particularly good geraniums.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The cut flower market is very dull. The hot weather has been pulling down the quality of the stock, which averages lower than a week ago. There is some business, such as the coaching parade festivities, gifts of admiring friends to a newly appointed judge on the occasion of his being sworn in, tributes to fair amateur singers, etc., but from a wholesaler's standpoint the street men are entirely too important people. Better things are expected next week. There are lots of orders coming in for Memorial day. Then the commencements and the June weddings are near.

The hot weather has pushed the outdoor stock in a way that makes it probable that indoor flowers of fair quality will be eagerly sought for next week, but this is still problematical. Carnations have fallen off slightly in quantity. There is not much demand for them. Quantities go on the street at buyer's prices. Outdoor valley is to be had in quantity if anybody wants it, but no one does. It is divided between the Greeks and the—hospitals, let us hope. Bard of Avon gladioli can be had (must I say Shakespeare?), and some nice stock gillies with good stems. Quantities of roses are coming in. Most of them bring something.

Hillside.

Just now Hillside is a scene of tremendous activity. There is glass enough going up out there to encourage the trust to try another raise. It was different in the early spring, when a party of four took advantage of a grey day in Lent, when business was dull and the watering light, to take a trip across country to see the roses that grow on the side of the hill. The place is some miles east of Germantown, out Mount Airy avenue, past "Gray Towers," looking like Windsor Castle, the Englishman said, past Roslyn Height. Just as you think Willow Grove must be near by you reach Hillside. All was quiet there that day. Only a few signs of preparation showed what was coming, like the sand shower on the deck of the ship, a sure sign of action.

It is curious how quickly Hillside has sprung into prominence as a recognized horticultural Mecca. Ernst Asmus went there when in Philadelphia not long before. He hardly went anywhere else. A good many other New Yorkers have gone there. Yet the place is new and not large, or rather it was not large then. The reason of the pilgrimages of so many horticultural lights to this distant shrine is easily told. They go to see roses handled in a different way than is generally seen, and it may be incidentally added wholesalers are also subjected to a different and most skillful course of treatment.

But to return to the roses. Those chiefly grown are American Beauty and Liberty. They are wonderfully strong and vigorous, with shoots like ax handles, as one of the party remarked. It would not be surprising if some day the system of growing there would be named "Why not?" just as Fahrenheit is the standard for measuring heat, and so may the Farenwald method become the standard for growing Beauties and Liberties.

Briefly speaking, this system or method of growing aims at getting stuff when it's wanted, and it may be applied to any stock that is forced. Its introducer gets more out of a house in a month than some growers do in a year. The idea is to get the stock in a certain condition and then let it rip. The danger is that you may have to rip the plants out before you get well started. You are pretty sure to strike on a rock unless you thoroughly master the intricacies of the system. For further information you must go to Hillside.

Notes.

Leonard Barron, secretary of the American Rose Society, has been in this city lately arranging the final details for the national rose show to be held here in March, 1904. The schedule has gone to press and will be issued in a couple of weeks.

Leo Niessen is receiving peonies regularly and expects heavy shipments for Decoration day.

The Flower Market is handling some of the old-fashioned Marechal Niel roses. These come from C. Haenni's Sons.

Peonies are now in quantity, but the demand is only limited. Harris is cutting heavily of the early red variety.

Japanese snowballs are now in full flower and meet with a fair demand, as does mock orange.

There were some nice Centaurea imperialis in Battles case lately.

Edwin Lonsdale sends a few of the new yellow calla lily to the market. This seems like a good thing if it could be had in quantity.

There is quite a demand for Japanese maples in pots. They are decorative on lawns.

The Ivory rose is proving what its introducer claimed for it, viz.: that it was a good rose for summer. The quality keeps up during the hot weather.

The Philadelphia Carnation Company (Dumont & Crawford) is pushing work on its new houses. Most of the young stock is in the field and doing nicely.

J. F. Blakeborough, Clayton, N. J., says his carnations have done very well this winter. He is building up a very nice local trade in the short time he has been located there.

R. G. Palmer, the popular manager of the Doylestown base ball club, has his hands full these days. It took him all of one day hunting through Jersey with "Bill" Davis to find a good pitcher, but he got there.

Albert Knapper, who moved to Antlers last fall, is sending good sweet peas to the Flower Market, also some very fine purple pansies, and a novelty in the way of a new polyantha rose.

Mary Plender, wife of the late John Plender, recently sold a property on Twelfth street used by John Plender as his store years ago. The selling price was in the neighborhood of $30,000, and the cost of this property was about $5,000. This looks as though it would be the right thing for all florists to own their own stores. Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Exhibition.

The fourth annual meeting of the New York Horticultural Society was held last week Wednesday and Thursday in the Museum building at Bronx Park. The donation of $150 by the Council to the Chrysanthemum Society for the exhibition next November was greatly appreciated. The yearly report by Secretary Barron was an encouraging one, showing a handsome surplus in the treasury. The lecture by Mr. Farquhar, of Boston, was an able effort, and on his favorite subject, "The Flowers, Fields and Woods of Japan." The annual exhibition was hardly up to last year's splendid showing, especially in novelties. The prize of $50 for the best novelty was captured by Siebrecht & Son with a specimen of Phoenix Roebelenii. This firm also received first prizes for groups of palms and foliage plants, for crotons and for collection of ferns, and second prize for collection of orchids. Lager & Hurrell took first prize for orchids with a collection of nearly fifty varieties. The prize for exhibits of wild flowers was won by the Bedford Agassiz Association. F. Weinberg took first prize for a collection of agaves, and showed also his sport of Begonia Vernon. L. A. Martin, of Greenwich, Conn., took first prize for his collection of flowering shrubs, consisting of nearly 100 varieties. Mr. Martin also received a gratuity for his syringa exhibit, as did G. Smith for peonies.

Bronx Park, under Dr. Britton's administration, grows more interesting daily, and its magnificent conservatories draw immense crowds, especially on Sundays, when they are enjoyed by thousands of visitors.

Local Notes.

The long drought, extending over a month, is beginning to affect vegetation seriously, and while the florists have felt no alarm to date, the nurserymen and gardeners already realize damage that cannot be added to without considerable loss. All the early vegetables have about doubled in price. Long Island farmers particularly are complaining.

All lines of business feel the effects of the labor troubles, and florists on the subway route are especially nervous.

David Clarke's Sons, whose fine new store was illustrated just after Easter, will leave the old greenhouse stand on Broadway about July 1, removing the conservatories to their new property on Fordham Heights, and the greatest apartment house in the world will be erected on the block they have occupied so many years. They have a surplus of large kentias and arecas, too high for accommodation in the new houses, which they will offer at auction in June.

The Rosary, with its Taylor wedding and its moving to the new quarters on Thirty-fourth street, has had a busy week. The new store is very handsome and convenient.

Jos. G. Leikens left for Newport Tuesday to take charge of the business of Siebrecht & Son and to prepare for an early opening. This firm will vacate its store on Thirty-seventh street in New York July 1 and make its Arcade store on Forty-sixth street and Fifth avenue its headquarters until the opening of its new store at Thirty-eighth street about the end of November. Two bay trees may be seen in front of the Thirty-seventh street store, the largest ever on exhibition here, it is claimed, measuring over nine feet in diameter and fourteen feet in height. These trees are held at $1,600 for the pair, which gives a better idea of their proportions.

Hicks & Crawbuck have been very successful with their "two stores in two cities," but have decided to close the New York branch until fall.

The Fifth avenue store of Thos. Young, Jr., had a unique decoration last week for the opening night of "The Runaways," a new comedy at the Casino. A horse and carriage were made, ten feet in length, the cart of red roses and smilax and the horse of white roses and swainsona, tied with blue ribbon. The value was $200 and the effect was excellent. On Monday Mr. Young had the decoration at the dinner of the Union League club, the principal table design being a rug of flowers made of Asparagus plumosus and Brunner roses.

The violet season has reached the end. It began early in September and lasted late, and was the greatest on record. Some idea of its magnitude may be realized when it is stated one wholesaler handled 4,725,000 flowers in the eight months.

The outing committee has extended the time for receiving advertisements and prizes until next Monday, May 25, on which date the programme will positively be handed to the publishers. Anyone who has forgotten to send can forward copy immediately to F. H. Traendly, who reports a general interest in the club's festive day, July 1, and the sale of enough tickets to insure a very much greater attendance than that of 1902.

The great convention at Milwaukee is a theme of interest now in the east and preparations are already under way for a record crowd, which promises to be away ahead of any year to date. The New York Florists' Club voted unanimously at its last meeting to go via Chicago.

Herman Schoelzel has purchased the greenhouses of Rudolph Asmus, at New Durham. He is a young man of fine ability as a plantsman and developed the old Thumann establishment into a most successful venture.

P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga., was a recent visitor.

H. C. Steinhoff has returned from his annual excursion to Bermuda.

J. Austin Shaw.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

We cannot report any improvement in the cut flower market for the past week, as it still remains inactive. It is greatly overstocked in every line, and it is very difficult to move the surplus. It is only by a heavy cut in prices that the retailer can be induced to buy in quantities. Even the street venders say there is little or no business, and the low prices are no temptation to them to buy in large quantities. There were several heavy funeral orders the past week, which helped the market somewhat.

Roses are still very much overstocked and the quality keeps up much better than usual. The stock generally comes in somewhat mildewed at this time of the year, but as yet very little of it is to be seen. Beauties of extra good quality are keeping up fine. Brides are in good form and Kaiserins are improving. These, with Maids, Meteors, Perles and Gates, are most plentiful. Prices can hardly be quoted on them, being graded according to the quantity bought. A dozen will cost 4 cents each; 25, 3 cents; 100, 2 cents, and 1,000, 1 cent.

Carnations continue to move very slowly. They are fine in quality and large in supply, with the price as low as $5 per 1,000, and $1 in 100 lots. The wholesalers are still dumping plenty of them. Sweet peas are now almost a glut and thousands are coming in every morning in all colors. The best are still up in price, but poor stuff cannot be sold at any price.

A good Decoration day trade is looked for. Inquiries have already been made in regard to prices, but same are not expected to advance much if the supply keeps up as it has. The prospects are for a big supply at very low prices.

Club Meeting.

There were only a handful of members in attendance at the May meeting of the club. President Dunford was reported sick and unable to attend. Ex-President Fillmore opened the meeting at 3 o'clock. The different committees reported and were continued. The trustees were instructed to arrange for the annual picnic some time in July and make a report at the next meeting in June. No essays were read. Mr. Fillmore was down for an essay, but was excused until the June meeting. William Davies, formerly with the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., was a visitor and gave us an interesting talk. Mr. Davies is now an attorney and a resident of our city. The subject of flowers is still interesting to him, and he was made an honorary member of the club. Vice-President Windler is down for an essay for the June meeting on "Peonies and Irises for Cut Flowers; how to increase stock and care for them." The meeting will be called a "sweet pea meeeting." The members who grow sweet peas are requested to bring whatever they can to make an attractive display. After a little social talk about our business the meeting adjourned until June 11, at the usual place.

Notes.

The weather is just right for planting out and the plantsmen are very busy at the present time, with a great many orders ahead. More planting is being done in the West End than ever before, and especially in the neighborhood of the World's Fair grounds where the traffic is big.

Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in town booking Decoration day orders. Martin is from Missouri now and you have got to show him.

J. W. Dunford, of the St. Louis Carnation Company, is sick at his home in Clayton. From last reports he is improving.

Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, is laid up with a sprained back, caused by overlifting.

William Jordon reports that he will build two new houses this summer, to take the place of the old ones which are now being torn down.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, has moved his family to the Berdan place, which Mr. Pilcher bought a few weeks ago. "Pilch," as he is best known, will remodel the place and build a few new houses this summer.

Out at the World's Fair grounds the landscape department is busily at work. Work is planned to show a succession of lawns. The slopes are being sodded and the level areas sown with blue grass. Wm. Mehl is in charge of the Tesson greenhouses, which are now being used by the landscape department for plants and shrubs. J. J. B.

A PROGRESSIVE CONCERN.

The C. C. Pollworth Company, Milwaukee, is in its new store, 454 City Hall Square, this week. A view of the front of the establishment is given in the accompanying illustration. The lower floor is given to the cut flower department and a sample room for the supplies which are carried on the upper floors. The offices are on the second floor and above is the factory for wire work. The basement is given to bulbs and similar lines. The store is thoroughly modern in all its appointments.

BALTIMORE.

The Drought.

The lovely weather continues. It has been a perfect month of May, the temperature moderate, the air fresh and the skies clear and bright, but the weather dry as the proverbial bone. Farmers cannot plow, the seed in the soil does not come up, the hay crop promising to be a failure for the second successive year, and gardening operations are largely suspended, except where soil and conditions are exceptionally favorable.

The Market.

Trade continues fairly active. There are many social entertainments, public and private, and the demand for this purpose and for funeral work keeps all the stores at least comparatively busy. Stock is in pretty large supply. At times one color or variety is short, but by some substitutions all demands are met by more than an ample provision. Roses continue in fairly good shape, and the same is true of carnations, due, doubtless, to the absence so far of burning, torrid heat, which the middle of May so often brings. Valley is over, and the out-door shrubs are abundant.

The commencement season is about to begin, which makes some business all around. Also many June weddings are in prospect. After these, languor and midsummer dullness.

Notes.

Edward Holden, long head gardener for Mrs. Robert Garrett (now Mrs. Dr. Jacobs), and famous for his skill in forcing fruits and vegetables, will go into business on his own account, having secured a place near Mount de Sales.

Alexander Scott, manager of the Florists' Exchange, the clearing-house here for growers and buyers of cut flowers, has been much indisposed for the past two weeks, but his friends hope to see him soon fully recovered. As is known generally, he is the brother of your Buffalo correspondent, much resembling him, in physical traits, at least.

Hans Schuler, son of Mrs. Schuler-Thomas, the well-known and successful florist on Saratoga street, is gaining new laurels and greater reputation in Europe as a sculptor, his work showing true genius.

Of all melancholy failures to meet popular favor in this quarter, the Sunrise rose is ahead. Though in other places it appears much admired and is praised for its beauty, here it cannot be sold and hardly given away. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Storm-bound with roses and carnations! They have been showering upon us for two weeks and not much let-up yet. Many are good, too many are indifferent, and altogether too many are bad. Huge quantities are being sold at all kinds of prices and the hospital department is working overtime. There is none too much of other seasonable bloom, as a rule, but things are running very irregularly and "no one knows what a day may bring forth." Indeed, sweet peas would be too plentiful except for the fact that there is a fine retail call for them.

All the wholesale places seem to expect a heavy Memorial day traffic and are generally preparing for it in every possible way. At this time chances are about even for a short crop of outdoor flowers at the end of the month, so that the stocks of greenhouse goods are quite likely to come well into play.

Various Notes.

The new market at 163 Columbus avenue is near completion and is particularly adapted for its purpose, aside from being a bit out of location, which makes it somewhat inconvenient for patrons. But they all seem to arrive just the same, and I do not know that any great loss is being felt from the rather radical change. The new high ice chests seem models of their kind. Mr. Elliott is rapidly getting himself located upon the second floor, and the fern man, Robinson, is dealing out new southern ferns at a great rate from his basement annex. And Jansky is pulling wires for his share of that kind of trade very nimbly indeed.

Father William Walsh, son of the manager of the Co-Operative Market, John Walsh, who was ordained in December, 1890, and has since then been curate at Walpole, fulfilling his duties in that position with signal success, was on February 1 advised by his physicians to visit California for his health. He did so and has just returned perfectly restored, bringing some thirty pounds of California-made bone and muscle. He is going back to duty in a few days. From the fact that his parishioners in Walpole surprised him with a purse of $1,000 in hard coin when he was obliged to leave them, it looks as if they might be glad to see him again at his old post. J. S. Manter.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We have had President Roosevelt and his party with us for three days and the town has assumed a very gala appearance. Bunting, flags and miles of garlands is the order of the day and great quantities of flowers have been used in decorations. One firm had an order for 2,000 buttonhole bouquets, 500 corsage bouquets, and 1,000 yards of garland. But outside of the few days' rush there is little doing, and most of our wealthy families are getting ready to leave town for a couple of months. Carnations, roses and sweet peas are still a glut in the market and are received in innumerable quantities from the growers. The latter flower is in splendid shape at this time. Countess of Radnor, Emily Henderson, Mrs. Gladstone and Cardinal seem to be most in demand and they bring about 50 cents per dozen bunches wholesale. The sidewalk merchants handle them in vast quantities, and they sell a bunch containing about 100 flowers at 10 cents per bunch. They are grown mostly in the vicinity of San Mateo by the Italians and Chinamen, who, by the way, have corralled most of the raising of outdoor flowers.

Notes.

The Alameda county branch of the California State Gardeners' and Growers' Association was organized last Friday evening in Gier's Hall, Oakland, by the president of the state body, H. H. Lilienthal, assisted by Theodore Lynch, Bruner Lilienthal, F. W. Pitak and R. D. Cruikshank, members of the state executive committee. The plan for the organization of the growers has been well received and most of the nurserymen and gardeners are anxious to become associated with the central body, which has recently been organized in San Francisco. The organization work is to be extended throughout the state until every county shall have been taken in under one head. The charter members of the Alameda county branch are John Vallance, David Fisch, Geo. Karmann, Ernest Bernsee and Anton Leothout. Within the time of the next few meetings it is thought that every grower in the county will be on the membership roll. G.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Business with us is as good as can be expected at this time of the season. The only noticeable demand for any quantity of stock is for funeral work and some early school commencements. The wholesale men are a busy lot these days handling the greatest surplus of roses and carnations ever known. Quantities of stock are left over each day. It is difficult to find an outlet for the surplus stock as there are but two Greek street men who handle flowers. The demand is only for the very best of stock, the poorer grades have no market and good stock is offered for sale as low as $5 per 1,000 for carnations and $10 per 1,000 for roses.

The bright hot weather of the past week has had quite an effect on roses. The want of rain is now being felt by carnation growers. We have had quite a long drought.

Fred Burki and Chas. Koenig are sending in some very good Kaiserins. H. P. Joslin was the first one in with peonies this season.

Wm. Lauch is cutting heavy from a late-planted lot of longiflorum lilies which are very fine.

Notes.

A delayed shipment of 32 boxes containing carnations, sweet peas and roses was turned down by the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., late last Saturday night. The shipments were made in time so they should reach the consignee at 7 a. m. that morning; instead of that time the Express Co. presented them at 9:30 p. m. for delivery.

The market for bedding stock is very brisk and a general cleaning up is looked for in that line before Decoration day.

Fred Burki is building a bowling alley at his Bakerstown place.

B. L. Elliott is shipping quantities of Narcissus poeticus to the Cut Flower Co.

Edward Reid of Philadelphia, was a visitor this week.

Mrs. Peterson, wife of Chal Peterson of East Liverpool, Ohio, died last Monday, May 18. We extend our sympathy to Mr. Peterson.

Hoo-Hoo.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

We are having an unusually long spell of dry weather and everything is showing the lack of rain. Outdoor flowers for Memorial day will be scarce. Tulips, lilac, Narcissus poeticus, etc., that we ought to have for Memorial day are in full bloom now. Deutzias and snowballs will probably be in about right, and possibly a few peonies, and from present appearances these will be about all we shall be able to get in the way of outdoor flowers. At present carnations, roses and Easter lilies are too plentiful. There is a good demand for sweet peas and hardly enough to go around.

Society Meetings.

The regular meeting of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held Tuesday evening, May 12. The committee appointed to consider the matter of a flower show recommended that it be held in September. No action was taken.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held Thursday evening, May 14. The hall committee was given further time to look up a hall for a permanent meeting place. It was voted to hold our regular meetings through the summer months. A. B. Hathaway, J. H. Cleary, Ed Bliem, George Borden, E. H. Chamberlin, S. S. Peckham and W. P. Peirce were appointed an entertainment committee to make arrangements for an outing excursion or any other entertainment they may decide upon to amuse the members during the quiet times of the coming summer. Mr. Zerkmann, of New York, attended the meeting.

Notes.

Charles Ames, clerk for E. H. Chamberlin, is recovering from an accident that happened a few days ago. He was carrying a vase of flowers, when he fell, cutting his wrist so that it was found necessary to take quite a number of stitches to close the wound.

Recent visitors were Mr. Zerkmann, of Sigmund Geller, New York, and Mr. Meade, of Jos. Breck & Sons, Boston.

C.

THE GREATEST MEDIUM.

We consider the classified plant advertisement department of the Florists' Review the greatest medium in existence today for disposing of surplus stock. The busy florist can find what he wants at a glance. The first insertion of our adv. cleaned us out.

M. I. O'Brien.

Sharon, Pa.

Santa Monica, Cal.—V. E. Hathaway is secretary and manager of the newly organized Golden State Plant and Floral Company. He has not, however, retired from his own business, but is taking a lively interest in the new venture.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

During the last week florists have suffered considerably on account of the absence of rain, none having fallen for nearly one month, in fact not since carnations have been planted. All kinds of plants will suffer. It is to be hoped that the drought will soon be broken.

Business continues good, for the season. Carnations and roses are coming in almost too plentifully, and prices, of course, are consequently low. Roses sell from 2 to 6 cents; carnations, 1 to 2 cents. Gladioli are coming in fine at 6 cents. Sweet peas, 50 cents per 100, and fine at that. Bedding plants are selling well and there is hardly enough good stock to go around.

The bowling team is about to go to Baltimore and have a three-cornered contest between Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Captain Ernest of the local team will have something to face which will not be so very easy, but he says he will try it. He expects at least twenty or twenty-five of the boys to go to Baltimore. Following is the score bowled in practice May 13:

ORANGE, N. J.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society took place on May 6 at their rooms in Orange. The usual monthly floral display was varied only by the exhibition of Cattleya Mossiæ of great beauty by Dr. J. M. W. Kitchen, of the Willowmead Orchidery. It is only the second time that the plant has bloomed since its importation two years ago. John Crosby Brown and family were among the visitors during the course of the evening. Two new members were elected. A. D. Rose, who was to have addressed the society, was prevented by serious illness, which, however, the doctors hope will be but temporary, and Dr. Kitchen spoke upon "Freaks of Nature in Plants." The deaths of members, James Withers and Henry Bird, one of the oldest Newark florists and a member of long standing, were noticed and entrusted to a committee for appropriate expression of sympathy, etc., to the families of the deceased.

KANSAS CITY.

Stock is all being used up. Every florist in town is busy with funeral work and May weddings. Mrs. Lamb, wholesale, reports a very busy week. Geo. M. Kellogg says that his peonies never looked better at this time of the year. Prospects are good for plenty for Decoration day. All the greenhouse men are busy with bedding plants, both for shipping and planting out.

Arthur Newell has sold his favorite trotting horse, Pat, and is now on the lookout for one to replace him. It will be hard, Arthur.

J. P. Coen, of Lexington, Mo., was in town Sunday. He reports business very good at home.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

BLUE RIDGE, PA.—John C. Bullitt has removed his business here from Beckley, W. Va.

HOUGHTON, MICH.—The Lutey Floral Co. is building a new store on Sheldon street.

MADISON, WIS.—Fred. Rentschler has bought a residence on Spaight street for $4,500.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—George Hunt took unto himself a wife at Perrysville, Ind., May 9.

GREENFIELD, IND.—Jacob Forest is reported to have a white sport of the Lawson carnation.

OGDEN, UTAH.—James Varney has built a house 50x125 and reports a good business.

EATON RAPIDS, MICH.—Mary La Fever reports trade good and increasing at a rate truly surprising.

BRISTOL, VT.—L. M. Gage reports an increased demand in all departments, particularly for bedding plants.

REHOBOTH, R. I.—The greenhouse of James A. Eddy, near this village, was burned on the morning of May 2.

HIAWATHA, KAN.—J. W. Margrave may well claim to be the dean of the craft. He was born August 16, 1814.

ANAMOSA, IA.—Mrs. Charles Abbey has built a greenhouse on Ford street and embarked in the florist business.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—The Creston Floral Co., capital $20,000, will engage in growing cut flowers and nursery stock.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Three heavy frosts the first three nights in May ruined all tender plants that had been put out.

BEAUFORT, S. C.—On May 11 hail broke 2,800 lights of glass in the greenhouses of Admiral Beardslee, on St. Helena Island.

UTICA, N. Y.—Wm. B. Hill, who has been in the employ of florists here at times for many years, died April 29, aged 70 years.

CHATHAM, N. Y.—The Chatham Floral Co., capital stock $50,000, has been incorporated by R. E. Shuphelt, P. A. Shuphelt and R. S. Tank.

BRANDON, MAN.—Fred Mansoff is building another house 21x100. It will first produce a crop of lettuce, to be followed by chrysanthemums.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—On the last evening of the session the legislature passed the bill appropriating $270,000 for the Agricultural College at Urbana.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—M. F. Higgins has taken the greenhouses of Humphrey Grout, one of the oldest florists in this city, who has removed to Feeding Hills.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Peter Schotzka, gardener at the Soldiers' Home, has disappeared and is supposed to have committed suicide. He was formerly employed in the Chicago parks.

WESTON, O.—A. M. Neifer reports a very good spring business. He also does a considerable trade in early vegetables.

PEORIA, ILL.—Earl W. Metz and Miss Laura W. Wheeler were married at the home of the bride at Meredosia, Ill., May 13. Mr. Metz is decorator for J. C. Murray.

LYNN, MASS.—Frank Dolansky, who was at one time in the business with Fred Smith, has recently purchased the Smith greenhouses and will add several new houses.

NEWBURG, N. Y.—The Chadburn Manufacturing Company, makers of automatic ventilating machinery, are building a new factory, which will be completed in the early fall and will greatly increase their facilities.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The Golden State Plant and Floral Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are Carl F. Schrader, T. A. Johnson, Nellie M. Schrader, T. H. Dudley and V. E. Hatheway.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.—A lot of 2,500 trees shipped here by Missouri nurserymen has been condemned by the county horticultural inspector. Eighty-eight were ordered burned and the rest dipped at the expense of the nurserymen.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—Some idea of the extent of the business of the Caldwell Mower Co. may be gained by the fact that they have already this season shipped over 30,000 of one pattern of the many lawn mowers they make. The factory is working day and night.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The firm of Eldred & Warburton has been dissolved and Mr. C. C. Warburton will hereafter be permanently located at the greenhouses, where he will conduct a wholesale and retail business. He expects to add about 5,000 feet of new glass to his present range this summer.

FLINT, MICH.—B. Hasselbring is perfecting plans for overhauling his entire greenhouse plant and intends also to add three houses, each 30x140 feet. He will then have a modern plant of about 50,000 feet of glass, of which a large part will be devoted to growing carnations for the wholesale trade.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Ridge Lawn Cemetery Co. has built two houses 20x100 for lilies, bulbs, ferns, rubbers, hardy roses and a general line of bedding stock to cater to the cemetery trade, which is heavy in this vicinity. They report a ready sale for all that they have been able to produce. It is intended to erect during the summer a carnation house 21x150, with iron gutters and all the latest improvements. Edward and Chas. Werick are proprietors.

NATHAN SMITH & SON, Adrian, Mich.

CINCINNATI

The Market.

The past week gave us hot weather. The sun shone every day, and for the first time this season there was more stock than could be handled. The regular supply of roses and carnations was reinforced by shipments from numerous small growers, who, during the winter dispose of all their stock at retail. This, together with the increased cut of regular shippers, produced a glut of no small proportions, and the price of all kinds of stock was forced downward in long strides. Generally speaking, though, business was very good, and the aggregate sales very encouraging.

The prospects now point to a decrease in the supply of stock very shortly, with corresponding increase in price. Already the decrease can be noticed, and I do not doubt but that by Decoration day there will be a scarcity of both roses and carnations.

The hot weather is rapidly making itself felt in the quality of roses. While the color still holds, most Bridesmaids being good in that respect, the size is growing smaller every day. American Beauties open up very quickly, which takes something from the price that can be obtained for them.

Carnations are coming thick and fast and are of fine quality. They possess extraordinary keeping qualities also. Their sale was slow, nevertheless, and many could not be disposed of.

There were still a few Harrisii, but they move slowly. Some extra fine iris are in fair demand, bringing from 3 to 5 cents.

Smilax is more plentiful, but asparagus is scarce. There is plenty of fine adiantum. Eastern ferns have about played out, but the new stock from the south is coming in.

Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson have returned from French Lick Springs.

Ed. Fries met with a severe accident which caused a cut in the scalp, requiring ten stitches. He is rapidly improving.

Park Superintendent B. P. Critchell was called before the board of public service of this city during the past week to answer charges made against him by the assistant park superintendent, Mr. Jones, but the board exonerated Mr. Critchell and Mr. Jones was given his release. Mr. Daly was appointed to succeed him.

Vernon Grave, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor; also Martin Reukauf, of Philadelphia. C. J. Ohmer.

The general verdict as to the market is that no such complete stagnation has ever been experienced at this season in any previous year. At times there has been absolutely no demand and some stock, sweet peas particularly, could not be given away. As to prices, the average is away below what listed rates indicate. Even the better grades are in such surplus as to have to be "jobbed" at rates which will make the growers tremble. Outdoor stock is very plentiful and improvement is not in sight.

Seed Trade News.

Pres., Walter P. Stokes, Philadelphia; First Vice-Pres., Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Sec'y and Treas., S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn. The twenty-first annual convention will be held at Philadelphia and Atlantic City, June 23, 24 and 25, 1903.

S. C. COURTEEN was recently elected president of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce.

A. W. McT. MARTIN, of L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, sails for Scotland May 30, accompanied by Mrs. Martin.

INFORMATION is already reaching us of expected shortage in European root crops, such as beet, turnip and radishes.

IT IS reported that tomato seed crops were badly injured by recent cold weather and some sorts will be reduced fully 50 per cent.

THE dry weather has put a stop to business with houses dealing with market gardeners. It is remarkable the effect the drought has had in this department.

THERE seems to be a skirmish for stock seed of many of the odd varieties of squash, pumpkin and melons. Some of the growers find it difficult to procure good stock.

COUNTER sales at all the northern cities are reported first class, better so far than in any May for some years, and of sufficient volume to make the present season the equal of any in recent history.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Frank Hoerman, the seedsman, is interested in an onion growing venture here. Ten acres are being planted with onion sets. An adv. for 100 boys to do the planting brought out some interesting comment in the local papers.

American importers do not take kindly to the very innocent proposition of French bulb growers to "advise us how many Romans you want us to send you and we will invoice them at the very lowest prices we possibly can when filling order." It pays to wait and push Dutch Romans and valley in the meantime.

PHILADELPHIA.—In the Court of Common Pleas, on May 13, judgment was rendered against the plaintiff in the suit of Seldon Twitchell against P. B. Mingle & Co., Twitchell alleging that six bushels of seed purchased in 1901 was winter instead of spring rye. The defense was on the "disclaimer" printed on the bill.

Visited Chicago: J. J. Van Waveren, of L. Van Waveren & Co., Hillegom, Holland; A. Stecher, of the Stecher Lithograph Co., Rochester, N. Y.; E. S. Thompson, Michigan Seed Co., South Haven, Mich.; Wm. Markurth, of the Harnden Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Robert Fulton, of Henry & Lee, New York, the latter en route to Japan.

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—The Allen Seed Co., of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., has arranged for the leasing of a warehouse here for the storage of seed peas and beans. The company has contracted for about 1,000 acres of land from farmers in this vicinity for the planting of beans, and a similar area will be secured for peas. The project of building a large warehouse and elevator here is being considered.

THE American Seed Trade Association will meet at the St. Charles Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., June 23 to 26. The annual meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League will be held during the week, the day to be hereafter named by President Bruggerhof. It is announced that W. Atlee Burpee & Co. will entertain the association and other trade visitors at Fordhook on Monday, June 29.

PRICES on Roman hyacinths at Ollioules, France, are still unsettled and practically no American orders have been placed. A cable May 18 says this is beginning to have its influence and the market, now at about 90 francs, is weakening and liable to break at any time. Paper whites will undoubtedly be from 2 to 5 francs higher than last season, and importers do not think that even a big break in Romans will affect very much the price of these.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Henry A. Dreer Co. states that its seed business has exceeded all previous years. They notice that many of the large orders came in earlier than usual, many having come in February when preparations were being made to start the cold frames. March is, however, their heavy month, with April a good second. Some idea of the size of their plant business can be obtained from the fact that there are now considerably over 100 men on the Riverton pay roll.

PHILADELPHIA.—So far this month counter trade has been very good, and the indications are that it will even up the losses of April, which were due to the cold, wet weather during that month. The demand for all kinds of seed corn continues to be good. Field corn is selling especially well and most stocks are well cleaned up. Prices for all kinds of vegetables continue to be high, which augurs well for the next season's trade. Peas and sugar corn have germinated poorly, which means short crops and high prices for the farmer. Vegetable crops of all kinds are from two to three weeks late, all of which will assist to maintain prices for the agriculturist. Dry weather is also retarding both planting and growing crops.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa Seed Co. says under date of May 4: "Our trade during the entire season has been a trifle better than last year, but we invested a little more money for advertising and do not think that it was as much better as it should have been when additional expense is considered, so that we were somewhat disappointed during February and the first half of March. The latter half of March and all of April have, however, been considerably ahead of last year, and our orders are keeping up remarkably well for this season of the year. The mail order plant trade has been especially good and the demand for hardy perennial plants seems to be increasing. We are this year adding fourteen greenhouses to our range and have 48 acres of land around our greenhouses devoted quite largely to flower plants, bulbs and growing small items in the seed line."

DENVER, COLO.—J. L. Dwalon, manager of the Haines Seed Co., reports: "Spring very backward. Many of the seeds planted have rotted; many others came up and were frosted. We had snow on April 12 and a freeze on April 13, which froze the rhubarb and asparagus to the ground, and snow again the last of April. The cabbage pests have already made their appearance, even in the hotbeds and cold frames, in some instances destroying the entire planting. The ground is in better condition for work than it has been before for years."

SEED CROP REPORT.

Following is a report from England received May 18:

As reports of the state of growing crops are beginning to be current, we think it well to give you a preliminary report, as under: Beet doing badly generally; about one-half of the acreage destroyed; but we hope to be able to report more fully in about a month. We still expect to be able to make good deliveries on some varieties. Sugar beet and Swiss chard we cannot report on at the moment. Borecole, Extra Dwarf and German greens failed entirely; tall and dwarf will possibly yield a full crop. Broccoli and Brussels sprouts, ditto. Cabbage doing badly generally and several lots not running. These we also hope to report on more fully in about a month, and may still be able to make good deliveries on some varieties. Carrots doing badly and we fear deliveries on most varieties will be short. Kohl-Rabi, leek, mangel, parsley, radish, savoy and spinach looking well. Swede and turnip are looking very well generally, but two weeks ago might have been damaged by sharp frosts the latter part of April. White Milan turnip has entirely failed. Golden Ball is doing badly, one-half crop. Red Strap Leaf and Early Red Globe we fear will be short.

CORN PHENOMENA.

Sweet corn has deported itself in a very unsatisfactory way this season. Lots of the same variety, which went into the dry house side by side under conditions so nearly alike that in average seasons they would have come out with the same per cent of vitality, showed on test a difference in this respect of nearly 50 per cent. The explanation lies in the fact that we had an English summer, and the great wonder is that the germs of any variety matured.

The low average temperature produced other singular results in the sweet corn crop. The smut fungus did not thrive. In overhauling with my men, ear by ear, about 2,000 bushels of ears it was very seldom indeed that we found any smut, certainly not a tenth as often as usual, and where found it was insignificant in quantity. The inference would naturally be that it is a hot weather plant. But, on the other hand, the Cory corn (one of my own introductions, but I must tell the truth about this sort of my adoption), which, being exceptionally hardy, thrives in cooler weather than most sorts, is peculiarly liable to this disease.

Another peculiarity of the sweet corn of last season was the remarkable degree of freedom from flinty kernels. The Early Crosby was the variety which came more especially under my observation. In this the flinty kernels were as rare when compared with average seasons as the smut fungus. It might be an interesting study for some of our intelligent agricultural college graduates to determine the cause of these flinty kernels in a variety of corn which has been most carefully selected as to seed stock for a long series of years. A test from planting them developed the fact that they rarely produced their like.

Another phenomenon of our English summer was the many ears having mainly small, withered kernels that had no chit. It is a fact worth noticing that the kernels of such ears that grew around the butt end were usually plump and all right for a row or two, and more rarely a few of the kernels at the small end. Would the inference be a safe one that such kernels as a rule would give a more vigorous progeny?

I see by a catalogue received recently that our English cousins are introducing one early variety of sweet corn having indorsement from their Canadian fellow countrymen. I trust that the firm may be more successful than was I when several years ago I attempted something along the same line with about a couple of responses as the outcome of my effort.

Very likely some of my fellow seedsmen have had their laugh over one unique statement in the English advertisement where it is stated that "The cobs are a great favorite among the patrons of Covent Garden Market." I thereupon wrote Messrs. C. & Co. that I was greatly pleased to learn so interesting a fact, for I had experienced considerable difficulty in disposing of mine and would be pleased to ship him several cords f. o. b. at $20 per cord. No answer returned as yet.

MONTREAL.

The Market.

The trade in Montreal has changed very little since my last report, and everybody seems to do a satisfactory business, funeral work and weddings aiding greatly. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful. Roses are generally good. Perles and Sunrise now have better stems; Liberties and Beauties increasing in supply, with an overstock of Brides and Maids. In carnations some splendid flowers are cut, but white are rather scarce, owing chiefly to the disease, which made havoc among Glacier, the principal white grown here. Lily of the valley is scarce. Violets are an item of the past, and bulbous stock, except that growing outside, is out of the market. Sweet peas have appeared and sell well.

Notes.

We are having very dry weather. The sun is bright, with high temperatures, but the nights are really cold, the thermometer often registering below the freezing point.

The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club met May 5 in Alexander's room, a large audience of members being present. The meeting was one of the busiest we had this year. Two new candidates were admitted, W. Matthew, of Outremont, and Harry Eddy, of Westmont. G. Robinson spoke in behalf of the new Canadian trade paper. A. Wilshire complained against the unlawful business done by plant peddlers. C. Craig proved that the hardy platycodon can be grown and forced in pots by the good specimen he had on exhibition.

Walter Wilshire has rented the old established place of Colin Campbell at Rockfield. He intends to grow cut flowers for wholesale only, making a specialty of carnations. Mr. Campbell will run his retail store as usual.

C. A. Smith, of Lachine, has recovered from a severe illness. A. Bee.

Butler, Pa.—Anton Krut, Jr., reports Easter trade as 20 per cent larger than last year. Bulbous stuff was cleaned up but carnations were most largely called for at but slight advance in prices. Roses, violets and lilies sold well and were of good quality.

DENVER, COLO.

The Colorado Society of Floriculturists was organized by the florists of the state at a meeting here May 12. The objects are to arouse public interest in plants and to give flower shows in different cities of the state. The state board of horticulture will be asked to join the society in a floral display at the Pueblo state fair next fall. Assurances of support were received from many florists throughout the state.

The following officers were elected: President, John Salterthwaite; vice presidents, Frank F. Crump of Colorado Springs and Mrs. E. B. Davis of Fort Collins; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Johnson of Boulder; secretary, J. A. Valentine; committee for conference with board of horticulture, A. J. Graham and J. A. Valentine; committee on schedule for Pueblo show, F. F. Crump, A. E. Mauff and J. A. Valentine.

ST. PAUL.

Trade Good.

Warm, sunny days have succeeded our cold, cloudy weather and vegetation is on the move. Trade is active and everybody is kept hustling. Cut flowers have been moving very freely, with about enough good stock to go around. Low grade stuff has, however, sold very low. Carnations have not been so plentiful, and fancy blooms still command nearly as good prices as in the winter.

Notes.

Swanson is still displaying an abundance of bulbous bloom that is very showy and attractive. I recently saw in his store a very beautiful crescent wreath made of Bride and Dorothy Perkins roses. While this latter is not, strictly speaking, a florist's design rose, its beautiful pink tints contrasted so finely with the creamy white that I cannot desist from mentioning it in passing.

Bedding out has commenced in earnest. Geraniums, pansies and all other bedding plants are popping into bloom on the lawns with amazing rapidity.

L. L. May & Co. report an excellent shipping trade to all parts of the northwest, and a good demand for vases, beds and boxes at home.

Decoration day trade bids fair to eclipse all predecessors. Outdoor stock, being late, will scarcely be in bloom for the occasion.

I recently called on Fred Buseh, the veteran vegetable grower of Minneapolis, and found 60,000 feet of glass devoted to cucumbers and tomatoes, just ready for the market. An average of six to seven pounds of tomatoes is obtained from each plant, and present prices 25 cents per pound. X. Y. Z.

$25 to COLORADO and BACK.

It has been estimated that between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 persons in the United States take a vacation every summer. They spend between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 yearly in pursuit of pleasure. This is a great deal of money to spend during a vacation, but this season the expenditure per capita may be somewhat less on account of the low railroad rates offered by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

From July 1 to 10 this line will sell tickets to Colorado and return from Chicago for $25. This will enable many to enjoy their summer's outing at slight expense. Colorado resorts are cooler than the seashore.

Through train service, Chicago to Denver, every day via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Union Pacific line.

"Thripscide"

Is the newest and best article on the market to-day for the complete destruction of all insects that infest Greenhouses or Conservatories, being a special boon to Rose and Beauty growers and prepared particularly for the destruction of Greenfly and Thrips. There is nothing injurious in it to plant life, even the most delicate fern. It is especially recommended for Beauties, Roses, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, Lilies, Smilax, Asparagus, Palms, Ferns, etc., and we claim that insects will be entirely eradicated when the houses are thoroughly fumigated with the powder. It is put up as follows:

1 lb. Tin Can	$ .25
5 lb. Tin Can	1.00
25 lb. Sealed Box	4.50

THE schedule of prizes for the June and November exhibitions of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society has been issued. The exact date of the former will be announced later and those of the latter will be November 12 and 13. Copies of the schedule may be had by addressing C. W. Smith, secretary, 27 Exchange street, Providence, R. I.

APPEARANCES are DECEPTIVE

The Caldwell Towers

belie their strength.

Every tower is built to withstand four times the weight of the filled tank. Every part of every tower is severely tested. That is why there are no leaks and no repairs. The first cost is not high, but the satisfaction is great.

A postal will bring our catalogue and price list.
